COAL AND OIL CODES OFFERED TO GOVERNMENT

Builders, Wool and Rayon Groups Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Codes for the regulation of two of the country's major industries, bituminous coal and oil, were proposed today to the industrial recovery administration.

The coal code was submitted with the solid backing of unionized mine labor and with the support of operators producing approximately one-fourth of the country's soft coal tonnage. It was characterized by those who originated it at a joint meeting of operators and labor representatives as the most promising step yet taken toward stabilization of the industry.

The oil industry's code was given to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, head of the recovery administration, by the American Petroleum Institute. Its submission presaged hearings to begin July 20, at which the governors of all oil producing states will be represented and where there will be decided not only the internal government of the industry but the question of prorating oil production between the various states and producers.

Base Wage of $5 a Day.

In the bituminous coal code operators and workers agreed on a $5 a day base wage for day labor underground, and for pay for other classes on a tonnage basis in conformity with that base. There was no agreement, however, on hours of work.

Through its representative, labor held out for a flat 30 hour week, while the operators insisted on a half year at 32 hours a week and a half year at 40 hours a week, or else a full year at 36 hours a week.

Hours of labor, therefore, will be left to be determined at the hearings which are to be set by Gen. Johnson for the near future.

Under "standards of employment" the coal code carried provisions of major importance. In addition to the provisions required under the industrial recovery act, protecting the right of the worker to bargain collectively and prohibiting yellow dog contracts, the code banned the labor of workers under 16 years of age; it provided that wages must be paid in lawful money or par check; that employés other than maintenance or supervisory men or watchmen should not be required to live in company houses, and that employés should not be required to trade at company stores.

As to Minimum Prices.

For their part the operators wrote into the code a section on minimum coal prices in which it was stated that sales should be made at such prices as "will realize to the producer the fair average cost of production and sale, plus a reasonable margin of profit."

"Failure to maintain such prices as will return the fair average cost of production and sale," it was stipulated, "shall be deemed a violation of this code."

The code for bituminous coal resulted from a meeting, which has held day and night sessions here, of the representatives of union labor, headed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and operators, representing between 25 and 28 per cent of the country's soft coal tonnage. The meeting was presided over by Thurlow G. Essington, former Illinois state senator and now general counsel for the Illinois operators.

Representatives for the operators came from thirteen states—Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Montana, and Wyoming.

Absent, however, were operators of nonunion mines, particularly those controlled by the Rockefeller and Mellon interests. These have been meeting in New York and are expected to submit a separate code of their own.

Coal Code Preamble.

In the preamble of the coal code its drafters declared:

"Fair and constructive competition is to be encouraged, but unfair competition must be eliminated.

"As the amount paid to employés in the coal mining industry constitutes a far greater part of the cost of the product than in those industries producing competing fuels, the position of the coal industry with relation to competitive fuels and other sources of energy must be safeguarded so as to preserve the normal markets and outlets for coal and thus to

YELLOW CAB CO. LAUNCHES WAR BY FARE SLASH

Operators Vow to Fight to Finish.

A taxicab rate war was opened by the cab companies of Chicago last night. Charges as low as 10 cents a mile were announced in the first few hours of the struggle, which was pictured by all the cab operators involved as a fight to a finish.

Chicagoans prepared gleefully to take advantage of the new rates, which place this city on a taxicab rate basis as low as any in the country. Parties of three and four discovered that taxicab transportation for certain distances was as cheap as, or cheaper than, street car and bus travel. None of the companies is charging for extra passengers.

Begun by Yellow Cab Company.

The rate cutting was begun by the Yellow Cab company following the refusal of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to grant the company's petition for an injunction to restrain the city from carrying out the new ordinance setting a maximum cab rate of 20 cents for the first half mile and 10 cents for each succeeding half mile.

The Yellow Cab company, which has been operating on a rate of 20 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each succeeding half mile, announced a flat rate of 10 cents for two-thirds of a mile.

The new rate, according to Thomas B. Hogan, president of the company, will cause the company to invade the field of mass transportation and directly compete with the elevated lines, surface lines, bus companies, and steam railroads.

Rival Company Cuts Rate.

The Public Taxi Service company was next to enter the rate war. It announced that the rate of its 82 cabs would be a flat charge of 5 cents for each one-third mile. This company had previously been charging 15 cents for the first one-third of a mile and 5 cents for each succeeding one-third.

No official announcement came from the Checker Taxi company, but the independent Checker drivers, a majority of those driving this type of cab, undercut both their competitors by putting into effect a flat charge of 5 cents for each half mile, a rate at which one might be driven almost anywhere in the loop for 10 cents. The independent Checker drivers had been charging the "15 and 5" rate, which really started the war. This was a charge of 15 cents for the first one-third of a mile and 5 cents for each succeeding one-third.

The New Cab Rates.

Distance, miles.	Yellow Cab.	Checker.	Public Taxi.
One-third	$ .10	$ .05	$ .05
One-half	.10	.05	.10
Two-thirds	.10	.10	.10
One	.20	.10	.15
One and one-half	.30	.20	.25
Two	.30	.20	.30
Two and one-half	.40	.30	.45
Three	.50	.30	.45
Four	.60	.40	.60
Five	.80	.50	.75
Ten	1.50	1.00	1.50

The Yellow Cab company said that meters on all its machines were being changed as soon as possible to conform with the new rates. Jeffrey A. O'Connor, city commissioner of public service, said last night that his taximeter inspectors had examined 200 Yellow cabs and found that the meters were registering correctly. All of the Yellow cabs will be inspected before they are allowed on the streets.

For Mass Transportation.

Attorney Howard Ellis of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, who represents the Yellow Cab company, said, in announcing the new rates: "Up to now the Yellow Cab company has considered its business to be in the semi-luxury class. Now it finds it necessary to go into the mass transportation business and proposes to do it in a thorough fashion."

President Hogan of the Yellow Cab company said he believed the company could make money under the new rates because of the great volume of business expected. He said that he believed suburban residents would now employ cabs instead of train transportation.

Judge Continues Case.

Judge Wilkerson refused to issue the injunction against enforcement of the city ordinance asked by the Yellow Cab company until there had

Bogan Moves to Cut 1,400 Teacher Jobs

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, and his assistants began yesterday to work out the details of the $5,000,000 economy program adopted by the school board on Wednesday. Mr. Bogan estimated that more than 1,400 persons, or 10 per cent of the Chicago teaching staff, would lose their positions through the sweeping reductions ordered by the school trustees.

Opposition to the retrenchments that swept away numerous fads and frills in the school system, abolished the junior high schools, and closed Crane Junior college, developed rapidly when the drastic steps became known to school employés. The possibility of an injunction to restrain the board from carrying out its program was discussed by teachers' groups.

Bogan Promises to Obey.

Mr. Bogan declined to comment on the board's action other than to say that he would obey orders like a good soldier.

"We're trying to carry out the orders of the board," said Mr. Bogan. "The junior high school teachers will be absorbed in the elementary grades and senior high schools. These sweeping changes in the school system will take weeks of hard work to put into effect."

Executives to Lose Jobs.

However, the first definite information on those who are to lose their jobs was furnished by the superintendent. The list included the following:

MISS ANNE DAVIS, director of vocational guidance.

OSCAR ANDERSON, director of orchestral music.

MISS FLAVILLA NORMINGTON, supervisor of lunchrooms.

MISS KATHERINE CONNERY, director of administration.

Mr. Bogan is also confronted with the difficult task of removing two of his five assistant superintendents and five of his ten district superintendents.

1,425 Teachers to Go.

Besides these seventeen administrative heads the positions of 1,425 teachers in special lines were abolished in the board action, which will take effect before the beginning of the school term in the fall.

The teaching positions cut out of the school system are as follows:

Household arts	222
Manual training	221
Kindergarten	300
Physical education	232
Winchell school	10
Jones school	17
Crane Junior college	151
Elementary school principals	147
Visiting teachers	17
Special investigators	5
Vocational guidance	17
Physical examiners	5
Defective speech	11
Parental school	12
Band leaders	34
Orchestra leaders	24
Total	1,425

The program of abandoning completely the junior high school type of instruction will require the rest of the summer to complete, according to Mr. Bogan. Pupils in the seventh and eighth grades will be returned to their elementary schools to fill up hundreds of vacant rooms, while those of ninth grade status will go into senior high

FLYERS LAND AT SHEDIAC, N. B.; MONTREAL NEXT

May Reach Chicago Tomorrow.

(Pictures on Back Page.)

SHEDIAC, N. B., July 13. — Gen. Italo Balbo and his armada of 24 Italian seaplanes glided down on to Shediac's harbor this afternoon after a six hour flight from Labrador. Gen. Balbo plans to take off at 9 a. m. tomorrow [8 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time] on the 500 mile flight to Montreal, the sixth stage of the squadron's cruise from Orbetello, Italy, to A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

If the flyers are not delayed here or at Montreal, they may reach Chicago Saturday afternoon. The distance from Montreal to Chicago is 870 miles.

Today's 800 mile hop from Cartwright, Labrador, was impeded only by a light fog off Cape St. George, Newfoundland, and moderate headwinds. The planes traveled at a speed of 145 miles an hour most of the time. The flight was considerably easier than yesterday's 1,500 mile hop from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Cartwright when fog enveloped the planes for 600 miles and the flyers bucked headwinds all the way.

May Take Inside Route.

Gen. Balbo did not announce what route he intends to follow to Montreal, but it is believed he will choose the "inside route" over Maine and Megantic, Quebec. Upon reaching Montreal the planes will land on the St. Lawrence river between the Island of Montreal and the south shore at Fairchild's seaplane base.

The fleet, flying in formation, came into view here about 3:30 p. m. [2:30 Chicago daylight saving time]. A great crowd was on hand to welcome the flyers as their planes swooped down after circling the bay. All 24 planes were in sight as the first ship carrying Gen. Balbo touched the water.

Bright sunshine and the coming of the air armada brought thousands of visitors into this seaside resort. A gentle breeze stirred the British and Italian flags and bunting that decorated the town. Shediac has a population of 2,000. Its residents confine their attention to making boots and shoes and to the oyster industry, except on days like today.

Flight Is Traced.

Messages from TRIBUNE correspondents and the Mackay Radio, which was in contact with the armada en route, traced the course of today's flight from Labrador.

The planes began taking off from Sandwich bay in triads and groups of six in regular order. Gen Balbo led the first group—the blacks—into the air at 9:50 a. m. [8:20 a. m. Chicago time]. Capt. Umberto Nannini followed with the red group five minutes later. Then came Capt. Gennaro Giordano with the white group at 10:05 a. m. Capt. Vincent Biani had the last six planes, the green group, in the air twenty minutes later.

By the time the last group of planes were in the air the leaders were sighted at Venison island, down the Labrador coast line. The ships were next sighted over the towns of Grady and Battle Harbor. In an hour and 40 minutes the planes had flown the length of the Labrador coast line and entered the Strait of Belle Isle. They turned to the Newfoundland side of the strait and sped southwest along the coast.

Run Into Headwinds.

The Italians had weather that was considered clear and warm as they went down the Labrador coast, but ran into headwinds as they turned right along the Newfoundland coast. In Newfoundland the squadron was reported from Bonne bay, Bay of the Islands, and off Cape St. George. The planes were bucking strong headwinds as they set out across the Gulf of St. Lawrence for the Magdalen islands. The armada crossed those islands and Prince Edward Island and was sighted off Shediac soon afterwards.

The sea was calm as Gen. Balbo and his co-pilot, Lieut. Col. Stefano Cagna, led the first triad down at 3:37 p. m. [2:37 p. m. Chicago time]. The planes had maintained formation nearly all the way. Twenty planes were landed within seven minutes. A few minutes later all 24 were on the water, and the squadron had completed its fifth

Guggenheims, Guests Saved from Ship Fire

New York, July 13.—[Special.—Sighted by the alert eyes of an army flyer as they struggled to keep afloat in the seas ten miles off Montauk point after their yacht had caught fire, Lieut. Col. Meyer Robert Guggenheim, his wife, son and three guests were rescued from drowning.

The guests on the power cruiser Firenze were Miss Helen Allen of Garden City, L. I., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Thomas of Babylon, L. I., near the Guggenheim summer home.

The rescue yesterday was directed from the army observation plane of Capt. William G. Rector, who spotted the burning boat while directing artillery practice from the guns of Fort Wright at Fishers island on a floating target towed by an army tug.

Aviator Directs Tug.

As soon as he saw the six persons struggling in the water Capt. Rector flashed word to the fort to cease firing, flew over the tug to draw attention to the swimmers, and then circled the party in the water to indicate their position for forty-five minutes until the tug came alongside and lifted them to safety.

A coat type life preserver, the only one in the plane, was dropped by Capt. Rector to the swimmers.

Although unable to swim, Col. Guggenheim, who has served in the New York State National Guard, refused this aid, giving it to one of the women in the party. He clung desperately to a cork bumper from the yacht.

The victims were driven from the cruiser by a fire which started from a kerosene stove in the cabin. A big wave knocked the stove loose and overturned it, setting fire to the cabin. Mr. Thomas and his host tried to extinguish the blaze with fire extinguishers, but were forced to the deck by smoke and flames. The flames also cut off access to life preservers in the cabin.

All Jump Into Ocean.

When it became apparent that nothing could save the boat or keep it long afloat, the party jumped into the ocean. Not a boat was in sight, but the plane soon flew overhead and Capt. Rector sighted the blazing hulk.

Shortly after they had been rescued, the yachting party saw the Firenze explode as flames reached the fuel tanks. It sank almost immediately.

The swimmers were taken to the fort hospital, warmed with a drink of medicinal liquor and given blue denim dungarees, worn by soldiers on working parties.

Col. Guggenheim is a son of the late Daniel Guggenheim, copper magnate and sponsor of aviation. He is a brother of Harry Guggenheim, former ambassador to Cuba.

PRINCE OF WALES MAKES FORCED LANDING IN MUD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Bad weather brought down the prince of Wales today—not from his horse but from a new airplane which made a forced, though perfect, landing on a farm near Swanage while en route to Weymouth. The prince with his escort and the pilot tramped bareheaded through a muddy field in the rain until a passing motorist came to the rescue. The prince, his clothes drenched, was on his way to Weymouth to inspect the guard of honor of the British legion. He made his apologies for being late and reviewed the unit in his bedraggled attire. Heavy rain and poor visibility forced the prince's pilot to land.

CHICAGO VISIT STILL PART OF ROOSEVELT PLAN

Washington, D. C., July 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will establish the summer White House in the Hudson river valley and spend most of August at the family home in Hyde Park, N. Y.

The President still hopes to visit A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, but has fixed no definite time for that.

Plans for departure have not been completed, but it is likely the President will set out for Hyde Park the latter part of this month.

'Life for Pint' Victim Freed in Michigan

Lansing, Mich., July 13.—[Special.]—Gov. William A. Comstock today ordered the release of Fred Palm, first victim of Michigan's "life-for-a-pint" law. He was given an immediate parole when the governor, after a conference with W. Alfred Debo, commissioner of pardons and paroles, signed a commutation order reducing Palm's sentence for the second time. The new commutation specifies a minimum term of five years and nine months, the actual time served by Palm, thus permitting the immediate parole.

Palm, whose sentence under the habitual criminal act in 1927 stirred the state to indignation and brought intervention from liberals of other states in his behalf, will be paroled to Toledo officers, Debo said, where he will open a barber shop purchased with his savings while in prison.

After a mandatory life sentence had been imposed on Palm in Ingham county Circuit court here by Judge Leland W. Carr, a fight was launched against the excessive penalties of the law. In 1929 the legislature removed prohibition law offenses "and other minor felonies" from the life sentence provisions of the act.

In line with this softening of the law, Fred W. Green, then governor, modified Palm's sentence, but did not specify in his commutation order any credit for "good time," thus requiring Palm's imprisonment for the full minimum term despite his perfect prison record. It was this oversight of Green's that Gov. Comstock corrected today in further reducing the former lifer's sentence.

Palm was arrested in 1927 by Lansing police who found a pint of gin in his home.

stage and 4,730 miles of the trip to Chicago. The elapsed time, computed from the first takeoff and first landing, was 6 hours and 17 minutes for the 800 miles, or at an average speed of about 130 miles an hour.

The Italians departed from Cartwright after spending 15 hours there. They arrived at Cartwright at 6 o'clock last night. The crews slept while base officials and mechanics refueled and serviced the planes. This morning Gen. Balbo received a message from Rome expressing Premier Mussolini's great satisfaction with the armada's success on the Iceland-Labrador lap.

Officials Greet Balbo.

Shediac had long prepared a welcome for their most distinguished visitors. Mayor Alphonse Sormandy, Dr. Murray MacLaren, minister of pensions and national health, and L. P. D. Tilley, premier of New Brunswick, greeted Gen. Balbo and five of his officers as a motorboat brought them from their planes to the pier.

The entire personnel of 96 men—a pilot, co-pilot, radio operator and mechanic to each plane—was brought to the town in automobiles. Dr. J. Clarence Webster, chairman of the reception committee, read a welcoming message from Sir George Perley, acting prime minister of Canada.

Before leaving their planes the crews anchored the ships safely to the buoys which had been placed for them in advance. Twenty-four dories loaded with gasoline began refueling them at once.

PLAN CITY'S WELCOME

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Plans for the reception in Chicago of Gen. Italo Balbo and his complement of one hundred men in the Italian air armada of twenty-four Savoia Marchetti seaplanes have been completed, Maj. Reed G. Landis, chairman of the reception committee, announced yesterday. The armada is expected to land in Chicago harbor either tomorrow or Sunday at the end of the 7,000 mile flight from Ortebello, Italy.

The reception is planned to be one of the most picturesque ever held in the United States, Maj. Landis said. More than half a million persons are expected to see the twenty-four Italian seaplanes arrive over the lakefront, escorted by a squadron of American army planes. The seaplanes will sweep in to a landing between Navy pier and the Fair grounds. Waiting crowds in the Fair grounds will be informed by radio broadcasts over the public address system of the progress of the air fleet as it nears the city.

Welcome on U. S. S. Wilmette.

When the armada has landed, its officers will be taken aboard the U. S. S. Wilmette where the reception committee will extend an informal welcome. At this time the army planes will give a display of formation flying overhead.

The Wilmette will steam around the Fair grounds to the south end of Northerly island, where the Exposition's lagoon fleet will transfer the party to the boat landing at the Hall of Science. Two hundred Italian war veterans will greet them at the landing, while Italian girls strew the lagoon with flowers. The group will enter fifty automobiles and, escorted by the Black Horse troop, drive to Soldiers' field.

More than 110,000 persons are expected to watch the welcoming ceremonies in Soldiers' field. There will be no admission charge to the public and 80,000 seats will be available, 30,000 having been reserved for distinguished guests and members of Italian societies. At the field a nine gun ambassadorial salute will be fired in honor of Gen. Balbo, who will inspect his guard of honor, which will be composed of United States army troops from Camp Whistler, in the Fair.

Greetings by Horner and Kelly.

Maj. Landis will present the members of the reception committee and Harry S. New, representative of the federal government; Gov. Horner, representing the state, and Mayor Kelly, representing the city. Rufus C. Dawes will extend a welcome on behalf of the Fair. The army band will play the national anthems of the United States and Italy.

After the ceremonies at Soldiers' field Gen. Balbo and his party will be driven down Michigan avenue to the Drake Hotel, escorted by the Black Horse troop. That will be the extent of their public appearances on the day of their arrival. The morning of the second day they are here Gen. Balbo and his officers will attend a thanksgiving mass at the Holy Name cathedral conducted by Cardinal Mundelein.

Gen. Balbo will make official calls on Mr. New in the federal building, Gov. Horner in the Illinois building at the Fair, and on Mayor Kelly at the city hall, returning to the Fair to call upon Mr. Dawes and attend a luncheon in the Administration building. In the afternoon he will inspect the Italian pavilion.

The third day of its stay in Chicago Gen. Balbo will motor to the airport for lunch, and to Lake Geneva to thank residents there for the elaborate preparations made for the emergency anchorage. The fourth day, Gen. Balbo will visit the Fair again and will end the day with a round of entertainment before the departure for New York early the following morning.

Flies to Greet Balbo.

New York, July 14 (Friday.)—[Special.]—Prince Giorolamo Rospigliosi and Princess Rospigliosi of New York City left Newark, N. J., in a plane for Chicago at 1 a. m. today to meet Gen. Balbo and his fleet of seaplanes when they arrive at the city. The Italian air minister during his stay in New York will be the house guest of Prince Rospigliosi. The princess is the former Marion Snowden.

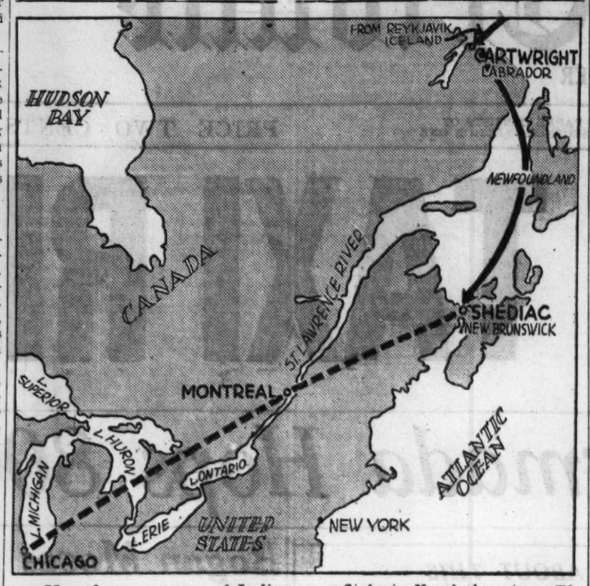
ITALIANS IN NEW BRUNSWICK



Map shows progress of Italian mass flight in North America. The 24 seaplanes commanded by Gen. Italo Balbo flew from Cartwright, Labrador, to Shediac, N. B., yesterday. The 800 mile flight was covered in 6 hours 17 minutes. The next stop on the flight to Chicago is Montreal.

GUARD PUT OVER GRANDCHILDREN OF ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., July 13.—(AP)—Concerned over kidnapings, the secret service has extended its guard over the grandchildren of the President.

Russell Wood of the White House detail is guarding the 15 months old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Another operative is watching over the two little children of Mrs. Anna Curtis Dall and precaution has been taken to protect the young child of Elliott Roosevelt.

These actions are under the law which requires that the secret service be responsible for the family of the President as well as the President.

It was emphasized, however, that no threats have been made against the presidential family and the moves were purely precautionary.

LINDBERGHS TO FLY NORTH FROM ST. JOHN'S TODAY

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, July 13.—(AP)—Stormy weather that grounded Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today was clearing tonight and lightening skies gave promise of a fine day for the next stage of their northern mapping flight.

Their powerful plane was in readiness for an early takeoff for the Labrador village of Cartwright and Col. Lindbergh expected to start early tomorrow. The Lindberghs arrived here yesterday from Halifax.

TOSS STENCH BOMB INTO CAFE.

The Sheffield avenue police yesterday sought a motive for the throwing of a stench bomb through a window in the Maisonette Russe restaurant at 2800 Sheridan road. The bomb was thrown by men who drove up in two automobiles.

MISSING MONEY IN KIDNAP CASE ADDS MYSTERY

St. Paul, Minn., July 13.—[Special.]—The mystery of the weird attack Wednesday morning on two St. Paul doctors deepened late today. The police discovered that $600 carried by Dr. W. H. Hedberg the evening of the violence, was missing when he was taken to Ancker hospital.

Dr. Hedberg said the money was for a cash payment to a sister-in-law in St. Paul with whom he jointly owns property. Dr. E. J. Engberg was the other physician in the mysterious case.

Dr. Hedberg, president of the Minnesota Chiropractors' association, said the attack on him followed his refusal to perform an illegal operation on a woman, which, he believes, was proposed in an attempt to frame him with criminal charges.

Dr. E. J. Engberg, secretary of the state board of medical examiners, recounted all he could remember of the night of terror. He could supply no motive for the attack and said he remembered nothing after he had been made unconscious shortly after he was abducted.

Dr. Engberg, it was believed, had been seized in an attempt to force him to perform a surgical excision on Dr Hedberg. Refusal led their captors to attempt to kill Dr. Engberg by leaving him unconscious in Dr. Hedberg's automobile beside the tracks of the Northern Pacific railroad.

The doctors were able to give the police the descriptions of three abductors and are looking for a woman who visited Dr. Hedberg's office July 5, asking for an illegal operation. Dr. Hedberg said she fled when questioned, leaving $15 in bills, later found to have been marked. It was reported Dr. Hedberg's list of patients and cash book were stolen.

SBARBARO FLIES ON TO MEET BALBO AFTER ACCIDENT

Former Judge John A. Sbarbaro, carrying letters of greeting to Gen. Italo Balbo, whom he planned to meet at Montreal, left Chicago airport early yesterday in the plane of George F. Harding, but the plane was forced by motor trouble to land near Three Rivers, Mich., and was damaged in the landing so that it could not proceed.

Judge Sbarbaro was met at Kalamazoo, Mich., a few hours later by an Illinois national guard plane, which then took off for Montreal. The other occupants of the Harding plane, including Mrs. Sbarbaro, Mr. Harding, J. L. East and J. J. [Red] Harrington, the pilot, were not injured. They returned to Chicago by bus.

The letters carried by Judge Sbarbaro were from Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, Rufus C. Dawes, and Lieut. Col. Carlo Tempesti, Italian aviation officer who is in charge of the base for the armada here.

WOMAN ASSERTS SHE SAW RANSOM PAID FOR FACTOR

Report Agrees with Victim's Story to Police.

A woman believed to have witnessed the payment of ransom which resulted in the release late Wednesday of John [Jake the Barber] Factor yesterday reported what she had seen to Chief of Police George Kummerow of Elmhurst.

Factor declared yesterday that his friends raised $50,000 to effect his release from the kidnapers who held him twelve days, and the manner in which he said the money was paid coincided in all details with the story told to Chief Kummerow.

The witness is Mrs. Cardie Kiefer, who lives on route 2 in Du Page county, near Hinsdale. While sitting in the front yard of her home at about 10 minutes before 4 p. m. on Wednesday, she said, her attention was attracted by a Checker taxicab driving slowly west in 22d street and being followed by a small coupé containing two men. The cab stopped about two blocks east of York street and the coupé stopped behind it, she said.

"There was one passenger in the cab," Mrs. Kiefer went on. "He got out and approached the coupé. He was carrying something that looked like a brightly colored chain—perhaps it was a pair of handcuffs.

Describes Cab Passenger.

"The door of the coupé was opened a few inches and the man from the cab looked in. Then he went back to the cab and obtained a brief case which he gave to the men in the coupé. The coupé left hurriedly, going west in 22d street. The cab backed into a driveway, pulled out into 22d street and drove east toward the city."

Mrs. Kiefer said the actions of the men seemed strange, but that the Factor kidnaping and the payment of ransom did not occur to her until she read the paper yesterday morning. She said she could identify the passenger in the cab, whom she described as a large man with dark features, and also the driver, but she was unable to obtain a good view of the men in the coupé.

Rumor Others on List.

There were rumors yesterday that the Factor kidnapers, pleased with their success, were planning to kidnap some millionaire Chicagoan for whom a ransom fully as large, if not larger, might be obtained. Among those mentioned as prospective victims were John Hertz, Otto Lehmann, and Warren Wright. All are prominent in financial and sporting circles and are now racing their stables at Arlington Park. Federal agents took cognizance of the reports, but regarded them as the outgrowth of idle gossip.

The story of his kidnaping, as related by Factor, confirmed the recital by Mrs. Kiefer. He said a friend of his family went alone with the money and met agents of the kidnapers on a road west of Chicago.

Factor's announcement that $50,000 ransom was paid was a repudiation of statements made upon his release Wednesday night that no ransom was paid. He denied that he had promised to pay any more, but it was reported in quarters close to the Factor "inner circle" that a much larger sum was the consideration. The amount most frequently mentioned was $200,000.

Threaten to Abduct Sons.

It was not considered improbable that Factor could make his own terms with the kidnaping gang by assuring them that his securities, deposits, bank and brokerage accounts were in his own name and inaccessible to friends.

It was reported that Factor came to terms in short order after the kidnapers threatened to kill his 7 year old son, Alvin.

Factor told his story from a bed in his Pearson hotel suite while a masseur applied his alcohol ministrations. The twelve day growth of beard was gone and his hair was in order, but his eyes were still sensitive to light and Dr. H. Soloway, in attendance, kept the lights dim and allowed no photographing.

"There were three cars following us when we left the Dells," Factor said. "I knew they were following us and that I was to be taken. Jerry [Jerome] was driving and Mr. Epstein [Attorney Al Epstein, a friend of Factor] was in the car with us. My wife was following in another car with friends.

"I told Jerry to drive slow. The three cars pulled in between our two and my car was forced to the curb. They reached for Epstein and asked 'Where's Factor?' I told them I was Factor and they kicked Epstein out.

"They took me in their middle car and held my head down low in the tonneau.

Eyes Tightly Taped.

"We drove about 25 minutes, in circles. Then they stopped at a house and they took me downstairs to a basement.

"That night they put some tape over my eyes and said they were taking me for a ride. 'Your friends are talking,' they said. They drove around for quite a while, over paved roads, and then turned into a narrow rutty lane and stopped at another house. I was taken upstairs to a bedroom on the second floor.

"They told me I would have to get $250,000. I told them my accounts and securities were in my own name and that my friends couldn't get hold of my money, but that if they would get in touch with my friends I would pay them back whatever they could raise.

Captors Become Impatient.

"After several days they became very angry and called me a liar and other abusive names. Once one of the men struck me in the stomach and another kicked me in the back. They poked me in the back and in the neck with machine guns.

"About last Sunday, I think it was, they took off my ring and handed me a slip of paper to sign and they told me they were sending the ring to my wife.

"The next day they told me they had about decided to let me go and take Jerry and Alvin while I went out to raise some money. I pleaded with them and told them I would do everything I could.

"Tuesday night the men came in and seemed to be in a jovial mood. They told me I could go the next day. Wednesday, about 9 o'clock, they took the tape off my face. They were very careful about this and used alcohol, but it had stuck in my hair and I suffered agony.

"They put a sort of cap made out of gauze over my head and drove me to the place where they let me out. I asked them how much ransom had been paid, and they said, 'Ask your friends.'"

Replies to Hoax Charge.

The ex-barber was asked what he thought of charges made by Franklin Overmyer, counsel for the British crown, calling the kidnaping a hoax contrived to escape extradition to England for trial on a $7,000,000 stock fraud charge. Factor replied in the soft, benign tones with which he used to sell fancy tonics to visiting farmers.

"I sincerely hope that neither Mr. Overmyer nor his family will ever have to suffer what I have gone through," he said.

While Factor was describing the horrors of his captivity, 100 picked policemen and detectives from Chicago were combing the northwest section of the city and county in search of the Touhy gang of ex-convicts.

Denies Plans for Elopement

FRANCES DEE.

"No Engagement"

Hollywood, Cal., July 13.—[Special.]—Frances Dee, leading woman, today declined either to affirm or deny that she and Joel McCray, youthful movie star, had planned an elopement marriage for this month. Miss Dee, who came to movies by applying for an extras job as a lark during a summer visit here said, "There will be no engagement," she also said, "If it does happen it will be just like that—unexpected," and snapped her fingers. McCrea confided to friends he had "popped the question" but received no definite answer. Miss Dee was a student at the University of Chicago and a want ad taker on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE before coming here. McCrea was an athlete at Pomona college, Cal., until a year or two ago.

NO WORD FROM ABDUCTORS OF JOHN O'CONNELL

Albany, N. Y., July 13.—[Special.]—The O'Connell family has had no recent word from the kidnapers of young John J. O'Connell Jr., the nephew of Dan P. and Ed J. O'Connell, the Democratic bosses of upstate New York. Dan denied today that any of the twenty-two intermediaries suggested by the family had been accepted by the kidnapers, and he and friends of the family reiterated their statement of the last two days that there is "nothing new." O'Connell Jr. was kidnaped from in front of his home here early Friday.

"Have you heard anything that gives you hope the boy will be returned soon?" Dan O'Connell was asked today at his summer home in the Helderberg mountains south of here.

"We have received no information today," he said.

"How about the intermediaries?"

"The go-between hasn't been selected. They didn't like any of the names on the first list of eleven we published, and we haven't heard from them since the second list was printed."

It was reported yesterday that both Dave Hotaling and Paul Carroll, named by the family as intermediaries, had been accepted by the kidnapers, but Dan said this was not so.

"Do you expect a letter today?"

Middletown, Pa., July 13.—(AP)—Lieut. R. M. TWO ARE HELD FOR QUIZZING IN LUER CASE

St. Louis Hotel Man and Son Arrested.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Alton, Ill., July 13.—[Special.]—Arthur M. Cooper of St. Louis, former proprietor of a hotel here, was locked up in the Madison county jail at Edwardsville, Ill., tonight, for questioning in the kidnaping of August Luer, Alton banker-packer. Cooper's 22 year old son, Arthur Jr., was also held.

St. Louis police arrested them there today in the bachelor hotel, which the father operates, after Cooper had twice talked by telephone with Mayor Thomas Butler of Alton, holding himself out as an intermediary for the Luer kidnapers. Mayor Butler and Madison county authorities were perplexed to decide whether Cooper's calls were inspired by a quirk of mind or whether he might have some really sinister connection with the case.

Mayor Gets First Call.

The mayor was in a city council meeting here last night when Cooper made the first call. He explained that he was calling, according to the mayor, because "some of the folks over at Alton seem to think I know something about the Luer case." It was the mayor's impression, in talking with Cooper at that time, he said, that the hotel man was intoxicated.

Leading Cooper on, however, the mayor explained, he was astonished to hear Cooper suggest that if one of the 77 year old banker's sons be named on the ransom committee the Luer family selected, and if $50,000 cash be made ready, the captive might be released within eighteen hours.

"The way it looks to me the Luers have the wrong men on their committee," was the mayor's recollection of Cooper's statement. "Ransom? Well, $50,000 ought to turn the trick. If they put one of the Luer boys on the committee and raise that much they ought to hear something from their father in eighteen hours."

Police Also Hear Call.

Unknown to Cooper, it now transpires, his call was heard not only by the mayor, but by St. Louis police. Cooper had been proprietor of the Mineral Springs hotel on Luer property here for five years until last July 18. Then his mounting obligations to them caused the Luers to take it over. Upon the abduction of the banker a casual suspicion was directed towards Cooper and his own hotel telephone in St. Louis had since been tapped. The police said they heard Cooper telephone to a waitress to approach the Luers for $50,000.

Mayor Butler telephoned to Cooper at his St. Louis hotel this morning and this time found him apparently sober. Notwithstanding the change in his condition, the mayor said, Cooper still was of a mind that if the ransom committee be changed and $50,000 cash be made ready the banker would soon be freed.

At police headquarters, according to St. Louis reports, the father admitted Mayor Butler's interpretation of the telephone calls. He and his son having signed extradition waivers, both were brought across the river boundary to the Edwardsville jail and booked without charge. They are to be quizzed tomorrow by Sheriff Peter Fitzgerald and State's Attorney Leslie Geer.

HOW TO OBTAIN FEDERAL AID IN KIDNAPING CASES

3 Rules of Procedure Laid Down by U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings today laid down three rules of procedure for the families of kidnaping victims throughout the country who wish to obtain federal aid.

At the same time the attorney general declared that he is pushing steadily his war on crime. He revealed that he hopes to draft one air tight act to be passed at the next congress, that he plans to set up a criminal data clearing house at once, and that he is weighing the suggestion of a federal police force.

Follow These Rules.

Three rules the attorney general laid down for families victimized by kidnapers were:

1. Communicate immediately with the nearest agent of the federal bureau of investigation, telling him of the kidnaping. Local officials will know how to reach the federal officer.
2. Take prompt steps to keep out of the picture all others except law enforcement officers and, especially, keep other persons from the scene of the crime, so that notes, memoranda and other clews are not disturbed.
3. Make full disclosures to the law enforcement officers concerning the crime, but do not make all this information public. To do so may endanger the life of the victim and will certainly warn the criminals.

In addition to having a staff of specialists, who have had years of experience with kidnaping cases, the federal government has the national finger print identification files in Washington, Cummings pointed out. He characterized these records as "very valuable in crimes of this sort."

Plans "Air Tight" Law.

Suppressing of kidnaping is merely one of the aspects of the federal war on crime which he has proclaimed, the attorney general said.

Taking the many suggestions for federal laws which are flooding him and his special criminal assistant, Joseph B. Keenan, Cummings said he hoped to draft one air tight federal act which would have united public support and which the next session of congress would pass.

What the new law may contain, he is not yet prepared to say, Cummings admitted. There were indications, however, that the interstate traffic in machine guns and other weapons might be one of the focal points.

Without waiting for a law, Cummings said he is preparing to take some steps. A central clearing house of criminal information will be set up. Conferences will be held with law enforcement interest, and a program of meetings is now being mapped out.

MAYOR WELCOMES MRS. ROOSEVELT IN QUEBEC TOWN

RIVIERE DU LOUP, Que., July 13.—(AP)—After driving from Quebec City, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived here tonight and was welcomed by the mayor. The wife of the United States President was accompanied by Miss Lorena Hickok of New York and the two registered at a hotel and announced they would spend the night here. They are on a vacation motoring tour.

When Mrs. Roosevelt left Quebec she did not disclose her destination. Mrs. Roosevelt said Wednesday she planned to visit her summer home at Campobello island, N. B., and it is thought she is en route to New Brunswick.

INDIANA SONGS, ORATORS, GIRLS ENLIVEN FAIR

Hoosier Day Is Begun and Ended with Music.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Indiana marched proudly down the Avenue of Flags at A Century of Progress exposition yesterday. The Hoosier landscape was firmly fixed in this scene. Her songs floated out from the great court of the Hall of States in rich and lively sentiment. Her orators drowned out the barkers for the hot dog stands. Her women matched the gay colors of the Fair and demonstrated the power of organization and the appeal of social service.

If the American states are passing into the political shadows, as asserted recently by a New York economist, there was no awareness of it in the Indiana group. There is a boundary which economics can never conquer. It was marked out in historical perspective by Gov. Paul V. McNutt and in its more homely and literary connotations by Meredith Nicholson, novelist and sometime politician.

Begins and Ends with Music.

Indiana day began with band music in the morning and ended with choral music in the evening. The arrival of the governor and official party at the 14th street entrance at 1 p. m. was signalized by the turning out of the cavalry troops from Camp Whistler and a review in the court before the Administration building. After luncheon there were a parade and then speeches and music for four hours.

The smart Laporte drum nd bugle corps, the Muncie Boys' band, the Butler High school band, the Jennie Lind chorus of Whiting, the Goshen High school band, the Elkhart High school trumpeters, the Elkhart, Frankfort, Columbia City and Hammond High school bands, the Hammond Technical High school bands, the Indianapolis News Newsboys' band and the Cappella choir of the Arthur Jordan conservatory of Indianapolis made this day memorable in music.

Among the literary notables who accompanied the governor's party at various entertainments were George Ade, Theodore Dreiser, John T. McCutcheon, and Mrs. Kin Hubbard.

Program at Indiana Hall.

The official program began in front of Indiana hall in the Court of States at 4:30 p. m., where the color guards were massed to escort the governor and his party to the rostrum of the central court. In this party were Mrs. McNutt, Mrs. J. E. P. Holland of Bloomington, founder of the Tri Kappa sorority, and Mrs. Chalmer Schafer of Fort Wayne, president. This organization is interested in civic welfare and art, and has 12,000 members in 112 cities.

After the massed choirs under Blythe Hendricks had sung the invocation, A. Murray Turner, chairman of the Indiana commission, spoke for a few minutes, introducing Richard Lieber, director of the commission, who in turn presented Mrs. Schafer and Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition.

Gov. McNutt and Mr. Nicholson were the orators of the occasion. The governor thanked the officers of the Exposition for assigning to Indiana as its day at the Fair the anniversary of the passage of the ordinance organizing the territory northwest of the Ohio river.

Territory Organized in 1787.

"On July 13, 1787," he said, "the thirteen United States in congress assembled in this ordinance provided for the formation of their first territory and laid down principles for its development, principles which have been of the utmost significance for this whole country.

"The beginning of the new territory, to be sure, was made at Marietta, in our neighboring state of Ohio, but in a peculiar sense Indiana was the heart of the old northwest territory. The Wabash river, our Wabash, cuts across its very center, the greatest artery of travel and trade throughout the territory between the great lakes and the Ohio.

"On the banks of the Wabash stands Vincennes, where only a few years before the ordinance was passed, the victory of George Rogers Clark sealed the destiny of the northwest and assured its cession to the United States."

The governor proceeded to tell how Indiana had kept faith with the principles of the old ordinance. She entered the union dedicated to freedom and fostered, he said, the spirit of religious liberty and kept emphasis upon free public education.

"Though at times intolerance, prejudice and even bigotry have invaded our borders," he said, "they have never been able long to resist the spirit of fairness and freedom traditional since the beginning."

He spoke of Indiana's contributions to a century of progress in statesmanship, manufacturing, scientific farming, and concluded with a touch of that poetical fervor that ever flourishes in Indiana soil.

"At home our stately tulip trees have shed their blossoms," he said, "but our state flower, the zinnia, is in full bloom. Our state banner waves proudly, and the cardinal, our state bird, is singing its sweetest as it flits like a spark of fire from tree to tree. From the high hills overlooking the Ohio to the lovely shifting dunes just around the bend of Lake Michigan, from the scenic valley of the white water to the banks of the Wabash, rises the hymn to Indiana."

Melodious Indian Names.

Mr. Nicholson said that the mere utterance of the word "Indiana" has invoked a proper noun so rich in connotations, with so powerful an appeal to the imagination, that countless volumes, even by Hoosier historians, could add nothing to it.

"To hear some fair daughter of the state describing herself as from the region of the Mississinewa or the Tippecanoe, or from the shores of Maxinkuckee or Wawasee, is like listening to symphonic melodies drifting across dew-drenched clover fields on a summer morning. Hardly a night passes but the radio carries Paul Dreiser's immortal song of the Wabash touched to silver by the moonlight.

"Trustworthy witnesses all the way from Logansport to Vincennes testify that they have seen with their own eyes gods and goddesses from Olympus dancing along that lovely stream while Pan piped on a willow whistle and with his goat hoof beat the time."

He spoke of progress, of politics, and of the workers in social betterment, and then came to his own field, that of literature.

"It was Edward Eggleston," he said, "best known for his 'Hoosier Schoolmaster,' but a historian of distinction, who first declared before the American Historical society that the social life of a people, their manner of living, their diversions and cultural expressions, were just as interesting and important as their political and military history. His stories of Indiana were all based upon honest observation; and it is from him that we must date our important contributions to literature.

Riley, Tarkington, and Ade.

"Riley picked up the torch where he dropped it. James Whitcomb Riley, coming after him with sentiment and humor, disclosed a new order of Hoosier. And with Booth Tarkington's many delightful books and plays came a broadening of the social picture in keeping with a new sophistication. Hoosier humor has its own distinction, happily exemplified by those sound philosophers, George Ade and Kin Hubbard, and the cartoons of John McCutcheon are unique through his gift for the homely touches that make the whole world kin.

Land of Romance.

"In spite of changing styles of fiction, Indiana is truly the land of romance and submits with a wry face to the bitter pills of the realists. Lew Wallace, under his beech trees, sent Ben-Hur's chariot whirling up Main street in Crawfordsville and on around the world. In the same town Maurice and Will Thompson, poets of exquisite charm, by their expertness in the witchery of archery, set all America practicing with bow and arrow. And at Shelbyville Charles Major forgot the hollyhocks and old-fashioned roses at his window and brought ancient knighthood once more to flower."

In the evening Tri Kappa sorority gave an invitational reception in honor of Governor and Mrs. McNutt and at 10 o'clock the governor and his wife received the people of Indiana informally in the Indiana hall.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

The Chicago Women's Symphony orchestra, directed by Ebba Sundstrom, will present an hour's program from Hollywood at the Fair on Friday, July 21, at 8:30 p. m. It is the only women's symphony in the world with a woman conductor giving regular concerts.

James K. Steele of Manila, official representative of the Philippine government at the Fair, arrived in Chicago yesterday. He will arrange for Philippine day at the Fair, Aug. 5, on which occasion Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy of the islands will exchange greetings by trans-Pacific telephone with President Dawes of the Fair. The exchange will be broadcast over the Fair loud speaker system.

Florence E. Allen, associate justice of the Supreme court of Ohio, will be the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Christian Century forum in the assembly room of the Hall of Religion today at 4 o'clock. Her subject will be "Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow."

The average cost of operating the Fair is $23,000 a day, Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said yesterday, of which $1,500 is spent for insurance. The remainder goes for salaries, lights and incidental expenses. There are 700 concessions that are also required to carry insurance.

A portrait of Abraham Lincoln, painted by Thomas Buchanan Read in 1864, is a part of the Lincoln exhibit in the Illinois Host building. The painting is on wood and is eight by ten inches. Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, who is considered an authority on Lincoln subjects, believes it to be the best portrait of Lincoln in existence. It is owned by C. H. Kunning of Evanston, Ill., and is being shown publicly in Chicago for the first time.

The Costa Rica exhibit in the Agricultural building has furniture made of 25 different kinds of native hardwoods, all in natural grain and color. Some of the woods unknown in the United States are cocoabola, ronron and nazarene, the latter so named because of its purple color similar to the color of the robe in which Christ is frequently pictured.

A series of medical tests of the inhabitants of the Midget village at the Fair is being conducted by Dr. Don C. Sutton, formerly professor of physical diagnosis at Northwestern university and now in charge of the senior wards at the county hospital.

Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday granted an injunction in the Superior court restraining officials of the Fair from closing the 101 Ranch wild west show. Col. Zack Miller told him that, although the officials of the Fair had granted him several days to adjust a dispute over the insurance which he carried, they sent a force of guards Wednesday night and barred customers from his show.

SUNDAY SECOND LUTHERAN DAY AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

Expect 75,000 to Attend Celebration.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Sunday will be the second Lutheran day at A Century of Progress. The first was held a few weeks ago under the auspices of the American conference of Lutheran synods. The Lutheran day on Sunday is sponsored by the Missouri synod, a national church body with more than 2,000,000 adherents.

It is believed that the two Lutheran days' total attendance in Soldiers' field will be in excess of 125,000 persons. Leaders of the Missouri synod expect 75,000 people for their celebration on Sunday afternoon. The American conference Lutheran day gathered nearly 50,000. At the Lutheran day on Sunday it is planned to have one of the largest choruses ever assembled in Soldiers' field.

To Lead Chorus of 8,000.

Walter Sassmannshausen, noted musical director, will direct a chorus of 8,000 men, women, and children in the singing of the German Te Deum, a festival hymn written by Martin Rinkart in the 17th century, and it is expected that the audience of 75,000 will join in the singing.

The Missouri synod's history lacks only 14 years of covering the entire period of Chicago's century of progress. Immigrants from Saxony, seeking freedom from their homeland's religious restraints, settled in the central states. Late in May, 1847, an entry appears in Chicago's diary which reports the organization of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri and other states. After ten days of meetings, a congregation was organized which now is known as First St. Paul's church, La Salle and Goethe streets. Today there are 150,000 members and 168 churches in this synod scattered throughout Chicagoland.

Oppose Church-State Union.

The memory of religious persecutions suffered in their homeland caused the Missouri synod to knit itself into a close unity. The church has abhorred the theory of the union of church and state. No pastor can be found who will utter a public conviction on matters political. Three years ago, however, when the synod met in convention at River Forest, a cry arose from the delegates for good beer, but resolutions condemning the interference of politics in "moral matters," were adopted as well. The whole prohibition matter, as a political issue, was summarily condemned.

LONDON PAPER PAYS MORGAN HIGH TRIBUTE

(Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, July 13.—J. P. Morgan's departure for England is taken by the London Times as an opportunity for delivering editorially one of the most remarkable encomiums this newspaper has ever given to a living financier.

Deploring that at the time of the senate inquiry the American public "was ready, as occasionally it is ready in every country, to believe the worst," it says, no mists of misguided emotion existed here to becloud the issue.

"Outside the United States and particularly in countries allied during the world war, there are a thousand reasons for the most friendly consideration of all that affects the great house whose services to the entente are so recent, so honorable and so distinguished. It has been said, but too seldom remembered, that victories of war were gained as often in the counting house as on the field of battle.

"This is true, as also it is true that without this willingness of Morgan to help much that was accomplished in the treasuries in those desperate years could hardly have been undertaken. The memory of these services and the spirit which they recall won't fade on this side of the Atlantic. In Britain and in Europe there can thus be no temptation to assume—as indeed there is no shred of valid evidence to suggest—that the good faith in the house of Morgan, in its relations with its government and clients, is in question."

OFFICIAL ADMITS MOSCOW HAS "SOME" TYPHUS

MOSCOW, July 13.—(AP)—The presence of "some" typhus in Moscow and vicinity was acknowledged today by A. Zaluski, member of the collegium of the commissariat of health, who denied, however, that the disease was epidemic.

[A dispatch from The Hague on July 11 said that reports from Moscow told of a typhus epidemic there of alarming proportions, with hospitals crowded with victims of the disease.]

Zaluski cited official figures showing 68 cases of typhus in Moscow province and 15 in Moscow proper in the month of May, as compared to 92 in the province and 15 in the city for April. He added that figures for the same two months of last year were unavailable, but estimated that they were about the same. The June figures for this year have not yet been assembled.

The official added that local health authorities had the disease under control.

HOTEL REVELRY IS CUT DOWN BY FAIR FOOTACHE

Despite the fact that most loop hotels are filled to capacity, the majority of them have less midnight revelry, fewer bedroom drinking parties, than they saw during the lean days of 1931 and 1932, their executives said yesterday.

"Fair feet" is the answer. Feet aching after tramping through miles of exhibits at the World's Fair, visitors to Chicago return to their hotel rooms late in the evening in search of no further divertisement than a soft mattress.

"The influence of the Fair is clearly reflected in the habits of our guests," it was stated at the Palmer house. "The house is full and we do an enormous business in all our dining rooms at breakfast. The people come home at night and go straight to bed. We have few calls for ginger ale or mineral water after 11 p. m."

John Burke of the Congress hotel, president of the Chicago Hotel association, pointed out that the cafés and other public rooms of various hotels are doing a thriving evening business.

The Chicago Association of Commerce issued a statement yesterday pointing out that Chicago, with more hotel rooms per capita than any other large city, still has plenty of hotel space for its visitors this summer.

Shark in Hudson River; Bathers Warned by Police

New York, July 13.—(AP)—Marine police and coast guardsmen began a search tonight for an eight or ten foot shark reported to have entered the Hudson river. Capt. Von Wagner of the fishing boat Celtine, which plies to Sandy Hook and Sea Bright, said he observed the shark off 42d street yesterday and again today off 125th street. A warning to bathers was dispatched over the police teletype system to river bank towns as far north as Poughkeepsie.

FAIR TO OBSERVE BASTILLE DAY IN PROGRAM TODAY

Offer Delaware Ceremony and Bargain for Kids.

BY EARL MULLIN.

The Bastille, grim fortress of royalist Paris into which political prisoners were thrown at the whim of the Bourbon kings of France to die in subterranean dungeons, will be recalled today at the World's Fair. Special programs participated in by French and Moroccan officials, soldiers of the United States and officials of the Fair will commemorate the 144th anniversary of the storming of the ancient keep by an enraged populace.

July 14 is the independence day of the French people and is observed with the same panoply wherever members of that nationality live as is the July 4 celebration of the United States. Today at the Fair is officially designated as Bastille day in tribute to the French republic.

Consul to Participate.

The official program will center at the Moroccan pavilion, the Pantheon de la Guerre, and the presentation of a special program in the Streets of Paris. Among the distinguished guests who will participate are: Rene Weiller, French consul, and Mme. Weiller, Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair; Commissioner Grimm-Provence of Morocco, Prof. Fay of the College of France, and American army officers.

A flag raising ceremony with the French consul as guest of honor will be held at 3 p. m. at the Pantheon. The program will include French choral singers under the direction of Edouard Defresne and salutes by a French drum and bugle corps. A special reception and lecture and a tour of the war panorama, itself the product of 128 French artists and depicting the scenes of the world war, will conclude that portion of the day's ceremonies.

A formal dinner, attended by the dignitaries of the day, will be held at 6 p. m. in the Moroccan pavilion.

Two other special programs will fill the day at the Fair. They are Children's day, when 5 cents will procure admission to the Fair and entrance to most of the concessions for children under 12 years old, and observance of Delaware day.

Troops to March for Delaware.

Delaware day ceremonies will center at the court of honor at the 14th street gate. High light on the program will be the review of the 1st battalion, 6th infantry, from Camp Whistler. One company will be designated as an escort to the colors and will parade the Delaware state flag.

With the patriotic celebration of the French day of independence and the two other special observances officials expect an attendance greater than that of previous Children's days, which have averaged more than a hundred thousand visitors.

Tomorrow to Be Ohio Day.

Tomorrow will be Ohio day at the Fair, ending a four day series of state days—Idaho, Indiana, Delaware, and Ohio. A special program will be presented in the court of the Hall of States, where there is an Ohio exhibit. Honor guest of the day will be Gov. George White. One of the features of the program will be the honor escort of Cleveland Grays, one of the oldest regiments in United States army history.

DE KOVEN FOUND GUILTY OF HAVING OBSCENE BOOKS

Seymour De Koven, 29 years old, owner of a book shop at 111 North Clark street, was found guilty of possessing obscene literature by a jury in the Municipal court yesterday. Cameron Latter, attorney for the defendant, entered a motion for a new trial, which was continued by Judge Erwin J. Hasten to July 20.

De Koven was acquitted on charges of selling obscene literature several weeks ago. He was arrested on May 4 by the morals squad headed by Sergt. William J. Burns, after Arthur Kepler, 827 North La Salle street, at the direction of the Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association, had purchased a book called "Love in a Taxi." Yarrow attended yesterday's trial. Kleper was not present.

After the jury had been impaneled, Judge Hasten ordered that a packing case full of books and pictures taken from De Koven's shop be produced in court. From this Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin selected 178 exhibits. Attorney Latter, in his closing arguments, said that the state had not proved the ownership of the books.

NAMED AS JUDGE

CHARLES B. MOLTHROP.

Gov. Horner yesterday appointed Charles B. Molthrop, a Chicago attorney living at 555 Park avenue, River Forest, to the vacancy in the Superior court caused by the resignation of Judge John Prystalski.

Judge Prystalski was a candidate for the Circuit court on June 5 and after his election he resigned from the Superior court to take his post in the other court. Grover C. Niemeyer, first assistant state's attorney, was elected for a full term in the Superior court in place of Judge Prystalski, but will not take office until Dec. 1. Mr. Molthrop's appointment is for the vacancy existing until that time.

Mr. Molthrop is a former village president and village attorney in River Forest, and has long been active in the Democratic organization in the country towns. He has practiced law in Chicago for 32 years, is married, and has four grown children.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED.

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury which investigated the death of Dr. M. A. Markin, 61 years old, who was killed by motor fumes Wednesday in the garage behind his home at 456 Englewood avenue.

2 WIVES ORDERED TO PAY ALIMONY TO THEIR MATES

First Cook County Cases Under New Law.

Two wives were ordered to pay alimony to their husbands by Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday in the Superior court, under the Illinois reciprocal alimony law which has just become effective. These are the first cases in Cook county in which wives have been ordered to pay alimony under the new law.

Harold Kettell, 2508 Argyle street, a bookkeeper who has been out of work for some time, obtained the first order. Mrs. Grace Kettell, 2127 Montrose avenue, who is employed as a stenographer, was ordered to pay him $1,000 in installments of $10 a week.

Attorney John Timm filed a bill for divorce on behalf of Kettell, charging that Mrs. Kettell deserted him in 1931, taking with her their furniture, $2,500 from a joint savings account, and a $1,000 bond. Attorney Harry X. Cole then filed a cross bill on behalf of Mrs. Kettell, charging that Kettell had deserted his wife.

Counter Charges by Wife.

Upon their marriage, Mrs. Kettell charged, they agreed that Kettell was to pay the household expenses and that she was to continue working and put her pay in the joint savings account. Later, she charged, Kettell quit work, began associating with other women, left her for a time, and, when he returned, came to their home only to eat and sleep. Upon those occasions he urged her to leave him, and she finally did so, she states.

Kettell had asked for alimony a week ago, but Judge Sabath found that the reciprocal alimony law did not take effect until yesterday and postponed the case until then.

Yesterday Attorneys Timm and Cole reached an agreement under which Mrs. Kettell was granted the divorce and was required to pay her former husband alimony for approximately two years.

Wife Must Pay $3.50 Weekly.

In a second case Judge Sabath ordered Mrs. Kunegunda Koska to pay Joseph Koska temporary alimony of $3.50 a week and also to furnish him free milk and eggs from their farm, which they own in joint tenancy, at 134th street and Avenue F, on Wolf lake.

Mrs. Koska has a bill for divorce pending, charging cruelty, and Koska has filed a cross bill charging his wife with starving him and forcing him to sleep in the barn. Yesterday she charged before Judge Sabath that he had been stealing her chickens and ducks.

"I had to," protested Koska. "My wife has the farm and I didn't have anything to eat."

State Senator Richey V. Graham was the sponsor of the reciprocal alimony bill, which provides that wives as well as husbands may be required to pay alimony if their circumstances justify it. The bill was adopted shortly before the legislature adjourned. The bill was allowed to become a law without Gov. Horner's signature.

Other provisions of the act permit the court to award custody of children to either parent, as the interests of the individual child may require, and to require either parent to provide for the support of children. The court may have a master in chancery inquire into the circumstances of life of both parties in a divorce action.

MADISON ST. CAR SERVICE TO FAIR TO START TODAY

Madison street surface cars will begin running to the 23d and 18th street entrances to A Century of Progress this morning. In the daytime every other car, appropriately placarded, will be routed to the World's Fair rather than making the regular loop downtown. At night all Madison street cars will use the Fair terminal.

The Chicago Surface lines hopes that the Roosevelt road extension to the Fair will be in service early next month. The city expects to complete the viaduct over the Illinois Central road about Aug. 1. It will take only a few days to lay the tracks after the bridge is finished.

BOY SAVES DOG, BUT VIVISECTION BATTLE GOES ON

Arthur Koestner, 12 years old, 3538 South Winchester avenue, saved his dog, Spotty, from a vivisection laboratory yesterday, but the suit attacking the city dog pound ordinance upon which seizure of the dog was based was referred to a master in chancery by Judge Robert E. Gentzel in the Superior court.

When Arthur went to the pound Spotty could not be found. Capt. Patrick McCauley later found the dog and restored him to the boy.

Mrs. Irene McLaughlin brought the suit on behalf of the boy as an attack upon vivisection. She had given Arthur the dog from her animal refuge, Orphans of the Storm at Deerfield.

Judge Gentzel referred to Master in Chancery Cornelius J. Harrington the attack on the constitutionality of the ordinance permitting the city to give unclaimed animals from the city pound to medical college and hospital laboratories for purposes of experimentation. Meanwhile Mrs. McLaughlin will care for Spotty at her refuge.

Attorney Angus Roy Shannon was given leave to intervene in the case. He pointed out to the court that invalidation of the dog ordinance would seriously hamper the teaching of medicine and medical research in Chicago. Master Harrington was instructed to report his findings to the court before Sept. 26.

Fair Queen Greets Throngs at Harvester Co. Exhibit

Miss Lillian Anderson of Racine, Wis., who was chosen queen of A Century of Progress in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S $20,000 international competition, is hostess at the International Harvester company exhibit in the Agricultural building at the Fair, which is visited daily by thousands of people. Miss Anderson welcomes the visitors and gives each one a souvenir postcard showing her driving one of the International Harvester company's modern tractors. She will be at the exhibit through next Sunday daily from 2 to 4 p. m.

U.S. SHIFTS STAND ON SILVER AND BANKS AT PARLEY

Decides to Discuss Money Co-operation at London.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—The United States delegation reversed itself twice today at the world economic conference. The first reversal came on the matter of coöperation between central banks, which was dropped yesterday on a statement from the Americans that they had been advised by the federal reserve board that the time is not ripe for such measures.

Today James M. Cox, American chairman of the monetary commission, explained that what he really meant was not that the subject could not be discussed now but that it was too early to take any action. With this new light on the situation it was decided to have the monetary commission meet tomorrow to consider it again.

Second Reversal.

The second reversal might be called only a development. Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] introduced a new set of resolutions on silver to replace those withdrawn a few days ago. Significantly they made no mention of gold, thus allowing silver to be discussed alone.

Nothing very revolutionary was contained in the new resolution, which provided among other things for the governments to agree to avoid further debasement of silver coinage, and advocated free trade in silver and consultation of central banks on a proposal to carry part of their reserve in silver. No specific proportion of the metal was mentioned in this latter respect, however. The original resolution called for optional use of one-fifth the currency coverage in the white metal.

Pittman's resolution was referred to the monetary committee.

Another resolution, introduced by Representative Samuel D. McReynolds, declared in favor of lessened hours of labor and an increased wage scale throughout the world by international agreement, and this was also referred to the committee.

British Spurn Public Works.

The British caused a sensation in the meeting of the economic commission today by flatly refusing to take part in an international public works program. Sir Atul Chatterjee, Indian high commissioner in London, speaking as a delegate of the international labor office, advocated a plan by which funds would be raised for such schemes by international loans.

Walter Runciman, president of the British board of trade, replied bluntly that Britain would not agree to any such plan, would not make any loans and would not be represented on any committee for such a purpose. Britain, he said, had tried public works for relief of unemployment and found them expensive and inefficient for the purpose.

He said that each country must carry out its own plans without outside aid or interference.

Prime Minister MacDonald today presided at a meeting in which the four big wheat exporting countries tried to obtain an agreement with wheat importing nations to plans for restriction which have been agreed upon by the producers.

It was decided to hold a series of two and three party conferences and to meet again tomorrow when, if a modicum of agreement can be achieved, the matter may be sent to the economic commission for the appointment of a special subcommittee on wheat.

Dominions Urge World Inflation.

LONDON, July 13.—(AP)—A world price raising program of wide scope was understood tonight to be under consideration by the British dominions for the world economic conference. This step was revealed as the dominions were authoritatively said to be putting tremendous pressure on the British government to unhitch sterling from the French franc and go along with the dominions in the American inflationary schemes.

J. M. Keynes, British economist, an outspoken champion of President Roosevelt's recovery policy, set to work with Sir Henry Starkosch of India today to draw up the dominions' ideas of what the world should do in order to obtain relief from the effects of low prices.

One of the principal points of the proposal being drawn up was understood to call on all nations to state what they can do to raise prices and how far they would like to raise them.

RECESS OF WORLD ECONOMIC PARLEY IS URGED BY SPRAGUE

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's "messengers" to the world economic conference in London, Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley and Herbert Bayard Swope, came back to the United States today on the liner Manhattan with Oliver M. W. Sprague, the American delegation's financial adviser, avowedly skeptical as to what they have accomplished.

One of them, in fact, Mr. Sprague, frankly advocated the adjournment of the parley for three months, until it becomes "fairly clear" whether the present improvement in the internal economic condition here will persist.

Dr. Moley himself, although he restrained his positive utterances to a typewritten statement declaring his intention to report to the state department and the President and dodged questions by reporters, hedged in one of his negative replies on the optimistic statement he made on the way to London, when he spoke of the conference as "on the road to results."

"Do you think now that the conference has been a success?" he was asked.

"I can't say," said Moley. "What do you think?"

"I have been on the water for a week," said the written statement that he handed them, "together with my associate, Herbert Bayard Swope, who accompanied me at the President's request, and our knowledge of the recent developments in London is less than yours here. Concerning my stay in London, where I was for just a week, I shall report with Mr. Swope at once to the state department and, of course, to the President.

"I don't want to be unproductive, but I'll have to limit myself to that," he said and, except for a denial that he talked with M. Litvinoff concerning recognition of Russia and soviet credits.

Mr. Sprague, however, pleaded the case for adjournment with some volubility.

"Clearly at the moment the situation is not ripe for the conference," he said, "but if the conference can recess, perhaps for three months, something may emerge.

FINDS THE WORLD PARLEY WORKS LIKE CONGRESS

Same Politicians Meet in Same Caucuses.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—The world economic conference is like a session of our own American congress.

There are the same politicians with the same average ability, the same caucus procedures of factions and leaders behind the scenes, the same pointing with pride and the same viewing with alarm.

Through the throng in the conference refreshment lounge, with its 50 foot bar serving the alcoholic stimulants of all countries, the bigwigs of this parliament of man thread their way.

Here's Chamberlain.

Here comes Great Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, his long tailed coat flapping about his tall spare frame. His close cropped hair and mustache are iron gray. His prominent nose is a beak. His eye pierces you while his lips smile. He reminds you of nothing so much as a benevolent hawk.

Accompanying Chamberlain from the committee room where they have been at work is the pale faced, baldish, youngish Georges Bonnet, chief of the French delegation, whose nose outbeaks Chamberlain's as a cockatoo's does a hawk's.

Chamberlain and two or three British experts draw aside with Bonnet and two or three French experts in a corner of the room removed from the aggregation of serious and dilettante tipplers and proceed to confer. For a half hour the French cockatoo with much gesticulation and the English hawk with none bob their heads at each other in animated but good natured disputation while the experts on each side listen and occasionally interrupt.

Parley Breaks.

At last the benevolent hawk shakes his head with definitive finality, the smiling cokatoo shrugs and the conference breaks up. All return to the committee room where the ensuing vote discloses that Chamberlain has rejected Bonnet's proposals.

Chamberlain is the second son of the famous Joe, whose monocled countenance and futile fight for adoption of a protective tariff by his country were familiar to the elder generation. Joe's dream has at last come true with Joe's son managing the finances and protective tariff of Britain.

Neville, now 64, is a hard headed business man who started his career in the Bahamas managing his father's ill-fated hemp manufacturing venture which dissipated a part of the Chamberlain family fortune. He retrieved it by astute management of the Chamberlain screw manufacturing works at Birmingham, then late in life claimed the Chamberlain family right to political preferment, which his half brother, Sir Austen, already had been accorded as foreign minister in a previous government [1924-'29].

Wins Respect.

Lacking wholly his father's flair for the spectacular and almost wholly his magnetism and popular appeal, Neville has won unbounded respect and confidence by his handling of national finances. He possesses an extraordinary capacity for expounding abstract financial questions so clearly as to be understood by the man in the street. He has succeeded in dramatizing the budget. His budget speeches, which he delivers virtually devoid of notes, have become capacity drawing attractions in the house of commons.

Though reputed as wholly lacking a sense of humor, Chamberlain occasionally illuminates the prosaic debate with a witty flash as when he said the very rich evidently "had entered into a conspiracy to cling to life until their estates regain their normal contributory value."

Evidence of the supreme confidence reposed in Britain's benevolent hawk is the commitment to Chamberlain of sole administration of the $1,750,000,000 exchange equalization fund which is employed to stabilize the pound sterling. Of the disposition of this huge fund Chamberlain is obliged to account to no one. To insinuations that enormous profits have been made and that enormous losses have been suffered in the operations of this fund in the exchange market, the benevolent hawk returns only a toothy noncommittal smile.

Stirs Hornet's Nest.

Not long ago Chamberlain stirred up a hornet's nest in America by his blunt ejaculation that Britain would enter into no "swapping deal" with the United States with regard to war debt revision. His notion was that Britain was to get the debt reduced, if not canceled, but to make no trade or other concessions in consideration thereof. The reaction in America was so unfriendly that the British government is reported to have muzzled Chamberlain. With President Roosevelt consenting to reopen the debt settlement, however, and the London conference failing to yield anything of value to the United States, it would appear that the Chamberlain program will come pretty close to realization.

Every morning Chamberlain may be seen walking through St. James's park to his office accompanied by his wife. They walk arm in arm observing the flowers and bird life about which he writes letters to the London Times. Of his wife the chancellor of the exchequer tells you:

"She has shared all my plans. She has been privy to all my secrets and she has never divulged one. She has rejoiced in my successes, she has encouraged me in my disappointments, she has guided me with her counsel, she has warned me off dangerous courses, and she has never allowed me to forget that humanity underlies all politics. No politician could owe more to his helpmate than I do."

DOLLARS TO DO EXTRA DUTY IN STATE ST. TODAY

Some Fair Visitors May Save Cost of Trip.

The dollar, despite the disrespect being shown it on foreign exchanges, will be mighty today on State street. It comes into its own with all the big State street merchants staging one of the greatest Dollar Days of recent history.

It will be the last dollar day for some time, the merchants warned. With the rise of wholesale commodity prices throughout America, bargain prices such as will prevail today will be rare hereafter, it was pointed out. Much of the goods on sale was purchased from manufacturers when prices were lower than they are now.

May Save Cost of Seeing Fair.

Dollar articles will feature the sales but they will by no means be the only values offered, the merchants said. The thousands of visitors to A Century of Progress will be given an opportunity to save on almost any merchandise they may wish to purchase.

"A World's Fair visitor may well save enough on a few well-chosen purchases to more than make up his expenses of visiting the Fair," one merchant declared.

Expect Record Sales.

During the last hour of business yesterday clerks were busy marking articles down to the $1 mark and several smart shoppers beat the starting gun by asking if they might take advantage of the cut. This was granted in a number of instances.

"We anticipate a great rush of business," said one merchant. "The buyers are aware that this is offering goods for the dollar of the past. Moreover, the marked improvement in business conditions, employment, and public confidence will undoubtedly help to make the day one of the biggest selling days in State street history.

"The public now has more money to spend than for a long time past and is also in that confident state of mind which makes people anxious to turn dollars into needed goods of which they have long been depriving themselves. There will, of course, be no wild spending. The public has learned the value of economy and thrift, and that is the real reason why we expect a record crowd."

One hundred and twenty-four stores and shops along State street from Lake street to Congress street are cooperating in the dollar day. The street has been gayly decorated with red, white, and blue decorations, but the big decorations will be inside the stores, where acres of counters will offer a mammoth display of dollar bargains.

BRIDE TO BE

REMOVE STIGMA FROM RECORDS OF ADOPTIONS

When Gov. Horner last week signed senate bill No. 142, revising the adoption law, the stigma of the word "illegitimate" was removed from all future adoption records. Henry P. Chandler, Chicago attorney and leader of a campaign among social workers to revise the law, said yesterday that efforts will be made to gain even a fuller protection of children to be placed out for adoption.

The new law was introduced by Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet. It provides that "the word 'illegitimate' shall not be used in a petition for adoption or in the decree, and copies of the decree shall be sent to the department of public welfare and department of public health."

The bill also provides that the father of an illegitimate child may adopt the child, gives the County court exclusive jurisdiction over adoptions, and provides that a child must live with the petitioner for a period of six months before the petition is granted.

EDUCATOR URGES HALT ON WASTE IN STATE COLLEGES

Dean Works Pleads for Consolidations.

Reorganization and consolidation of state supported institutions of higher learning in the interests of economy was advocated yesterday by George A. Works, dean of students and examiner of the University of Chicago. Dean Works spoke at the second day's session of the administrative officers of higher institutions, sponsored by the University of Chicago.

"We must reorganize without regard to state boundaries or artificial distinctions between publicly and privately supported colleges and universities," he said. "Many states have too many educational institutions that were developed in the days of slow transportation and since have been kept alive by interests moved not by the needs of the state, but by local pressure and personal ambitions."

Civic Competition a Factor.

He attacked legislative "log rolling," involving the bids of rival communities which take over private institutions at the end of their resources, not considering the needs of the state as a whole.

Dean Works said, however, that it would be unfair to imply that legislatures, local communities, and commercial interests were the only forces responsible for all ill advised ventures.

"Educational executives and faculties frequently have been responsible for expansion of institutions without due regard to a state's needs and resources," he pointed out.

"The more or less haphazard methods that have prevailed in the development of state supported higher education are costing the country hundreds of thousands of dollars annually and will continue to call for unnecessary expenditures unless more effective methods are found by which a state may meet its needs for higher education," Dean Works added.

Would Restrict Entrance.

Dean Charles H. Judd of the department of education of the University of Chicago urged a sharp line of demarcation between the functions of secondary schools and institutions of higher learning. He said that the secondary schools must cultivate intellectual independency in pupils, and that colleges and universities should cease admitting unprepared students.

Aaron J. Brumbaugh, dean of students in the college of the University of Chicago, said that colleges using comprehensive examination systems should not dismiss students on the sole basis of poor grades. Dismissal should only be imposed for gross misconduct, he said.

Leaders of Teachers' Unions Fight Economy Program

BOGAN PREPARES TO CUT 1,400 OFF TEACHING STAFF

Teachers Plan to Fight Economy.

schools. Conversion of junior high schools into senior highs will be a long step toward ending the congestion in the senior high schools.

The entire city will be redistricted within the next few weeks in order to determine where the children in the higher grades will go to school next fall.

In the high schools teachers will handle seven periods instead of five, as in the past, in order to allow a reduction of the teaching force. High school deans, with their positions abolished, will go back to teaching jobs.

President James B. McCahey of the school board declared that the trustees would stick by their program no matter how big the storm of opposition might become.

"These are permanent cuts," said Mr. McCahey. "If readjustments are needed we can take care of them when the time comes. In my opinion the schools will really serve their purposes better as a result of this program. The school system will serve its original and true purpose."

Opposition to the retrenchments developed rapidly when the drastic steps became known to school employés. Aaron Kline, president of the Principals' club, urged teachers at a meeting of the Chicago division of the State Teachers' association last night to take legal action. He suggested an injunction to restrain the school board from carrying out the program.

Calls Program Impossible.

An injunction action also was suggested by Miss Agnes Clohesy, chairman of the joint board of teachers' unions, at a meeting of that body in the offices of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Miss Clohesy charged that the pension and tenure rights of the teachers had been jeopardized and that it was a physical impossibility for the school board to make the changes contemplated in the program.

The joint board voted to have C. L. Vestal, president of the Men Teachers' union, introduce a resolution at the Chicago Federation of Labor meeting on Sunday, condemning the action of Charles W. Fry, labor member of the school board, in voting for the economies. The group sent a message to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, calling his attention to the action of the school board.

The Teachers' union representatives decided to send a communication to President Roosevelt concerning the situation and to call a mass meeting.

Urges Teachers to Fight.

John Fewkes, generalissimo of the teachers in their parades and demonstrations recently, spoke before an afternoon crowd of 1,000 teachers at the City club.

"The teachers have been saved from violence and committing suicide through their sense of humor," asserted Fewkes. "We have smiled in our parades of the past. In the future we will wipe those smiles off our faces."

He told the teachers to go back to their neighborhoods and gain support for their fight against the board from civic clubs and churches. Fewkes suggested that on Sunday morning every teacher obtain three minutes from the pastor of his or her church in order to tell the congregation about "the cause of education."

The economy measures were attacked by the delegates to the meeting of the Institute for Administrative Officers of Higher Institutions at the University of Chicago. The educators adopted a resolution, introduced by Dean Charles H. Judd of the University of Chicago college of education, condemning the program as a step backward in education.

Much clamor over the abolition of Crane Junior college was met by the comment that the taxpayers' duty in providing free schools is met generally over the country by providing grade and high school facilities; that from the end of the high school courses further higher education is provided in colleges and universities at some, though often a nominal, cost to the pupil; that it is not a function of the public school system.

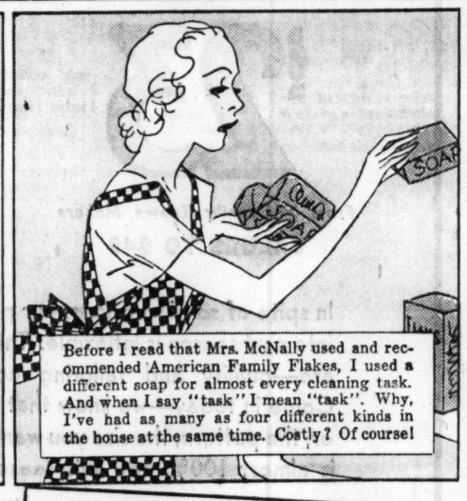
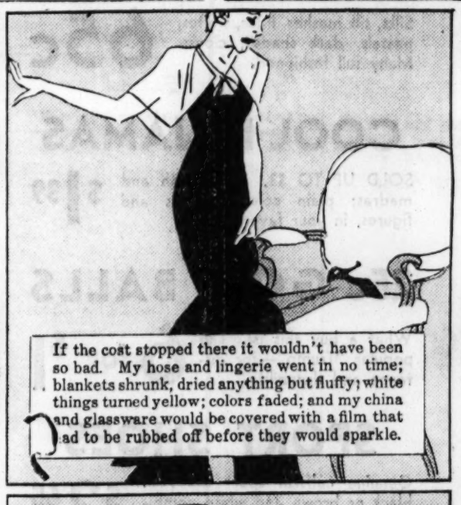
YOU DID ME A GREAT FAVOR, Mrs. McNally



Before I read that Mrs. McNally used and recommended American Family Flakes, I used a different soap for almost every cleaning task. And when I say "task" I mean "task". Why, I've had as many as four different kinds in the house at the same time. Costly? Of course!



If the cost stopped there it wouldn't have been so bad. My hose and lingerie went in no time; blankets shrunk, dried anything but fluffy; white things turned yellow; colors faded; and my china and glassware would be covered with a film that had to be rubbed off before they would sparkle.

Mrs. Andrew McNally

Her husband is secretary of Rand McNally & Co. Three sons and one daughter make the McNally home a place of gayety and entertainment. Besides her interest in the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago, Mrs. McNally is a collector of antique furniture and china. Her favorite sport is horseback riding...particularly at her summer home at Alexandria Bay, Thousand Islands.

WHEN YOU SAID:

I have washed just everything that soap and water won't harm in American Family Flakes—from misty chiffons to heavy blankets, from delicate hand-painted china to bathroom tiles and porcelain. It's marvelous . . . so pure and so mild. I've never had an experience where colors faded or fabrics wore thin from laundering . . . a saving of many dollars in replaced garments. The maid says, too, that there isn't a soap better than American Family for general household cleaning. She vows she'd never get her work done if it weren't for the fact that American Family makes just twice as much suds as ordinary soaps.

Mrs. Andrew McNally

Now I use it for everything. It's the sudsiest soap I've ever tried. I never have to rub. It just floats out the dirt. I'm through in half the time and my clothes are really clean . . . colors true, woolens fluffy and unshrunk, white things dazzling white, china and crystal gleaming.

Chicago women buy more American Family than all other laundry soaps combined. Made especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region, it gives double the suds. And it's the Double-Suds that makes the difference. It's cheaper to buy good soap than new clothes.

American Family Flakes

It's the Double-Suds That Makes the Difference

Extra Session, Increased Sales Levy Sought.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Admitting that it had reached "the end of its resources" on the problem of relief, New York City appealed today to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for a special session of the legislature, proposing 1 per cent increases in the sales and stock transfer taxes to provide for an estimated $41,000,000.

The formal request, which declared that the city has only $371,334 on hand with which to meet a work relief pay roll of $1,500,000 Monday, contained a brief preamble which charged that New York City had been discriminated against in the state's present tax system, and that the state's new taxes tended only to "enlarge the inequality of the tax system in its relation to New York City."

Almost simultaneously with its adoption of a resolution calling upon the governor for this aid, the board of estimate turned to the nation for further assistance, drawing up a schedule of proposed public works totaling $94,058,023 for submission to the national industrial recovery board.

Projects Are Listed.

The board also drew up a supplemental list of public projects totaling $75,000,000, which may be submitted to the government in case it proves amenable after looking over the first list. Outstanding in the original schedule is some $19,000,000 for subway construction. The largest item in the second list is $40,000,000 for a transit tunnel from Staten Island to Bay Ridge.

The city wants the sales tax increased from 1 to 2 per cent, with the proviso that the proceeds be divided among the communities of the state on a basis of population.

Controller Charles W. Berry, who evidently prepared his report before sailing for Europe last night, estimated that the city's share of the sales tax increase, if allocated as he suggests, would be $13,000,000, and the city's share of the stock transfer tax increase $25,000,000.

Report on Financial Plight.

The board's action was taken after an executive session in the mayor's office and a subsequent open session in the board room. The resolution, put to a vote after the board had considered a report on the city's financial condition, was unanimously adopted.

STRAUS & SCHRAM WILL OPEN STORE IN LOOP MONDAY

Expressing confidence in the return of better times, the firm of Straus & Schram, dealers in home furnishings, will open Monday their seventh store at 115-117 South Wabash avenue. The new store will occupy five floors which have been remodeled and redecorated.

"This will be the third store opened during the so-called depression," said J. A. Schram of the firm. "The firm started in 1882 with a small 25 foot store and has grown steadily in fifty-one years, passing through six major depressions. We have been growing steadily and believe this is the ripe time to enter the loop."

The opening of the new store will be celebrated with an exhibition of the new 1933 styles in home furnishings, according to an announcement.

Warren Nichols, Attorney, Is Sued for Divorce

Warren Nichols, a member of the law firm of Goodrich, Vincent & Bradley, was sued for divorce in the Circuit court yesterday by Mrs. Frances G. Nichols of 1224 Judson avenue, Evanston. She charges desertion. The Nichols were married in 1903 and separated in April of 1932. They have a daughter, Blix Nichols, a graduate of Northwestern university.

BOY AIDS HOLDUP MEN.

Three men and a boy about 13 years old yesterday held up drug stores at 2957 North Kedzie avenue and 3324 North Halsted street and took a total of $92.

ALIMONY DEFENDANT SHOUTS AT JUDGE; GETS TERM IN JAIL

Robert Archibald, 732 Bittersweet place, an interior decorator, was charged yesterday with driving downtown in an expensive automobile and changing his well tailored suit for a ragged one in the car before appearing in the Superior court with the plea that he was unable to pay allmony. Judge Francis B. Allegretti sent him to the county jail for contempt of court.

The charge was made by Attorney Norman Becker, counsel for Mrs. Marie Archibald, 3010 Washington boulevard. Archibald admitted that he was $280 in arrears in the payments he was ordered to make under Mrs. Archibald's divorce decree for support of their daughter, Roberta, 6 years old. He denied changing clothes to impress the court with his poverty, and said that the automobile belongs to his second wife.

"Have $40 in here tomorrow morning," ordered Judge Allegretti.

"I can't do it,' said Archibald. "You might as well send me to jail today."

"No, bring in the money tomorrow," said the judge.

"I'll be here all right, but I won't have any money," Archibald fairly shouted.

"We'll see who's the toughest fellow here," said Judge Allegretti. He ordered Archibald taken in custody and told Attorney Becker to draft an order committing him to the county jail.

NAMES RECEIVER FOR BUILDING OF TAX STRIKE CHIEF

James E. Bistor Says He Will Appeal.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday totaled $368,287. A total of $26,840,961 has been collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act was started last April 28. The day's collection of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years are shown in the following table:

	1928.	1929.
July 13....	$ 10,297	$ 34,000
Uncollected .	18,867,781	49,663,567
	1930.	1931.
July 13.....	$ 53,686	$ 270,301
Uncollected .	80,016,649	106,626,084

The day's collection of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $4,237.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday ordered the appointment of a receiver under the Kerner-Skarda act for an apartment building at 7100 Constance avenue, which is owned by James E. Bistor. Bistor is a director of the Real Estate Taxpayers' association and was active as a leader in the so-called "tax strike."

Bistor announced he will appeal the decision. He had stubbornly contested the order since a petition for the appointment of a tax receiver was filed against the property several weeks ago.

Required to File Two Answers.

Bistor announced at the first hearing before the judge that he would exert every legal effort to prevent the receivership. He was asked to file an explanation for delinquency on 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes of $7,915.

The first answer he presented was deemed insufficient and another ordered. The second, which was presented Tuesday, was attacked by Assistant State's Attorney William T. Crilly as evasive. Yesterday Crilly's demand for the appointment of a receiver met with the approval of Judge Jarecki.

Pawners Attack Assessment.

An attack on the 1931 personal property tax assessment was filed in the Circuit court in behalf of the State Pawners' association. The association is seeking an injunction to restrain collection of a tax of $57,705 on a valuation of $785,093. The petition alleges the assessment is excessive.

The judge also ordered the appointment of a receiver for the Ampico building, 234 South Wabash avenue, which owes $20,536 in taxes.

County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough filed petitions for the appointment of receivers for 100 delinquent properties. These owe $560,722 in taxes.

LISTEX-CONVICTS WITH THE POLICE, IMPORTERS TOLD

Prosecutor to Appeal to Two Organizations.

Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Spiro announced yesterday that he will demand that the Volunteers of America, the Central Howard association, and other organizations sponsoring paroled convicts shipped here from neighboring states furnish the chief of detectives with lists of the men now under their supervision, with data concerning their crimes, their present addresses and occupations, if any.

The July grand jury ordered an investigation of this practice when it was learned that Maj. F. C. Thomas of the Volunteers of America had signed the papers through which Ross King, murderer of a policeman, was sent here on parole from a Michigan penitentiary last September. Maj. Thomas was subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury this morning and then it was decided to investigate the Central Howard association, which at present is sponsor for 250 former convicts released from prisons outside Illinois.

Tells of Twenty Years' Operation.

Dr. F. Emory Lyon, superintendent of the Central Howard association, undertook yesterday to defend the activities of the agency founded by him more than twenty years ago as an ex-convicts' shelter. Many of the criminals turned over to him by state prisons and federal prisons throughout the country were former residents of Chicago, he said, although many more never saw Chicago until they came here on parole, according to police.

Dr. Lyon said he made a full report yesterday of the activities of his association to its president, George W. Dixon, prominent lay churchman and civic worker. Both he and Mr. Dixon will gladly give the grand jury all information desired, Dr. Lyon said.

The jury's interest, according to Foreman Eric Kullberger, is in the staffs Dr. Lyon and Maj. Thomas have for supervising the ex-convicts from outside states.

Cite Requirement to Report.

In Illinois, it was pointed out, a paroled convict must report regularly to the parole authorities, who make frequent visits to his home and who keep him under surveillance and send him back to prison when they find he has violated his parole. Also, the jurors wanted to know whether any fee is paid to these private parole agencies and how they and the prisoner first establish contact.

Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, listed as a director of the Central Howard association, said yesterday he would withdraw from it if he found it was encouraging convicts of other states to come to Chicago. He said its activities were supposed to be in welfare work for ex-convicts, but not in effecting their paroles or bringing them to Chicago.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said he never receives any notice that a convict is to be sent here from outside Illinois. He learns of their presence here when they are arrested after such crimes as the killing of Policeman Harry Redlich last Saturday by King in a holdup. He said he believes he should at least have a list of the criminals—even though he has no voice in saying whether they are welcome here—and Prosecutor Sipro said he would ask for all such lists.

KANSAS SUPREME COURT PUTS BEER FATE UP TO JURY

Topeka, Kas., July 13.—(AP)—The Kansas Supreme court ruled late today the question whether 3.2 per cent beer is intoxicating and consequently in violation of the state's prohibition laws is one of fact for the judge or jury to decide.

The court's decision was handed down in the first 3.2 beer case to come before it since congress legalized the brew, and it reversed Judge J. G. Somers of Reno County District court, who had enjoined two Hutchinson men from selling the brew.

Roland Boynton, state's attorney general, had contended 3.2 beer came directly within the provisions of a Kansas law declaring unlawful the manufacture, sale and possession of "any spirituous, malt, vinous, fermented or other intoxicating liquors," and that it was improper for a trial court to permit introduction of evidence showing whether malt liquor is for the trial court."

Texas Will Vote Dry Repeal August 26, Ferguson Declares

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Former Governor of Texas "Pa" Ferguson, husband of present Governor of Texas "Ma" Ferguson, called today on President Roosevelt to assure him the Lone Star state will toss prohibition overboard when it votes on repeal Aug. 26.

Will Fight Sheppard.

"President Roosevelt told me," he declared on leaving the White House, "that he was hopeful Texas would vote in favor of repeal."

"I told him," he added, "that we'd put repeal over for him."

Mr. Ferguson said he is also leading a fight to defeat Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], one of the authors of the 18th amendment and a stanch dry. Senator Sheppard, he declared, is active in the movement to defeat repeal in Texas.

Discuss Easy Money for Texas.

The real purpose of his visit to the President, however, was to discuss Texas' share of the 3 billion 300 million dollars of public works easy money the government is preparing to spend, former Gov. Ferguson declared. In general, he said, it was just a call at the White House to express his respects to the President and to thank him for all he has done for Texas, although he did not elaborate on Mr. Roosevelt's kindnesses to his state.

With his respects to Mr. Roosevelt went those of "Ma" Ferguson, said "Pa" Ferguson. The present governor, he said, was too busy in her own state to make the trip to the capital.

Florida Votes on Repeal Oct. 10.

Tallahassee, Fla., July 13.—(AP)—Gov. Dave Sholtz today announced he would issue a proclamation setting Oct. 10 as the date for a special election on repeal of national prohibition. Sixty-seven delegates from the state at large will be elected at the Oct. 10 election. They will meet in Tallahassee for a state convention Nov. 14.

TAXI FARES CUT TO 10 CTS. A MILE IN CAB RATE WAR

Yellow Company Slash Opens Fight.

been a fair test of the rates provided by the new city ordinance. The judge did not deny the motion, however, but merely continued it yesterday until Aug. 29.

"This case has been argued by counsel and the city as if it were a public utility case," he said, "and viewed in that aspect the showing is not sufficient to sustain a temporary injunction. There are so many uncertain elements in the situation that the court should not strike down the ordinance without giving it an actual test. No one can forecast with any degree of accuracy the extent to which the reduction in rates to one-half mile for 20 cents will increase the short haul business of the company.

"The motion may be continued until Aug. 29 to give an opportunity for such tests. It may then be renewed, or if the plaintiff desires an immediate appeal the motion will be overruled. I leave open for further consideration the power of the court to interfere with any ordinance fixing taxicab fares."

No Appeal Now, He Says.

Attorney Ellis indicated that there would be no appeal at present.

"I am not promising the court to test the rates," Attorney Ellis said, "because if there is a rate war we may want to be in it."

Attorney Ellis asked for an earlier hearing than that set by the judge. Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman, representing the city, said sixty days should be allowed for the tests. Judge Wilkerson said that the date he had set would stand. It was after this that the Yellow Cab company announced the cut in rates.

Cab Company Employés Freed.

Judge Howard Hayes in the Felony court yesterday dismissed charges of conspiracy to commit malicious mischief against Archie Waldron, 28 years old, 2310 Prairie avenue, a Yellow Cab driver, and Henry Jacobson, 44 years old, 231 East Superior street, a road superintendent for the company.

Waldron was charged with deliberately driving his cab into a Checker cab at the instigation of Jacobson. Attorneys for both cab companies agreed to dismiss the charges, and Assistant State's Attorney Gordon Nash assented when he was assured that the drivers of the rival companies would not molest each other in the future. Waldron and Jacobson yesterday filed the praecipes of two suits against Nate Burman, the Checker driver who caused their arrest.

Tries Suicide to Escape Second Term in Prison

About to be taken back to Joliet prison to serve a second term for burglary, Gilbert Gabinski yesterday slashed his wrists with a broken mirror as he sat in a cell in the county jail. His wounds were treated and he was later taken with seventeen other prisoners to the penitentiary. He said a dread of the second imprisonment caused him to attempt suicide.

HUNT OIL STATION BANDIT.

LOWER COURT REJECTS RENO DIVORCE CASE OF THE HUNNEWELLS

Reno, Nev., July 13.—[Special.]—Judge Emmett Walsh in the district court here today granted a motion for dismissal of the divorce action of Harry H. Hunnewell, wealthy Boston and Wellesley, Mass., playboy, against Helen Cirese Hunnewell, Chicago attorney. The judge recommended that the case be taken to the State Supreme court to define what constitutes legal residence for those seeking divorce.

Mrs. Hunnewell, personally and through several witnesses, offered testimony of her husband's alleged misconduct, naming several young women of Los Angeles. The judge did not attempt to weight that testimony.

Mrs. Hunnewell's counsel will appeal the case at once.

"I believe the record is one that should be presented to the Supreme court for a ruling as to whether physical presence constitutes residence, or whether intent must be considered as an important factor," Judge Walsh said.

Hunnewell filed his suit on March 1, 1932, and alleged residence of six weeks. He appeared in court on a motion for suit money and temporary maintenance. He was ordered to pay specific sums. He left Nevada, however, on May 18, or thereabout, and never has returned.

Mrs. Hunnewell had filed a cross complaint asking separate maintenance and charging cruelty. She subsequently filed an amended cross complaint in which she asked a divorce on grounds of adultery.

The case went to trial this week on its merits, but Hunnewell was not present. His counsel took the position that he had abandoned his residence, leaving it for Mrs. Hunnewell to establish such residence.

Through a hotel act his actual presence in Reno from Jan. 18 to March 1 was established, but Hunnewell's counsel maintained that intent to make Nevada his permanent home had not been established.

Shot When He Tries to Rob Policeman, Woman

Adam Podrazik, alias Walter Reja, 19 years old, 4400 South Whipple street, was shot in the hand yesterday by Policeman Edward Burns of the Chicago Lawn station when he tried to hold up the policeman, who was off duty, and his companion, Mrs. Helen Jennison, 27 years old, 3742 West 58th street, at Crawford avenue and 58th street. Podrazik later confessed to 40 robberies.

16 Eagle Boy Scouts Leave for Jamboree in Hungary

Sixteen Eagle Boy Scouts from the Chicago district departed yesterday for the international scout jamboree at Godollo, Hungary. They left for New York on a Greyhound bus, and will sail on Saturday on the Berengaria. They will tour two months in Europe.

ENJOY THIS WELCH WAY TO REDUCE

Noted food authorities have now worked out the ideal way to reduce—and the beautiful thing about their plan is that all the time you are losing weight you are actually gaining new-found health and energy.

This delightful new method takes advantage of the amazing health-properties in Welch's Certified-Pure, Pasteurized Grape Juice, a product long recommended by physicians the world over. They insist that Welch's belongs on every weight-control and reducing diet, because it satisfies that craving for sweets and rich, fattening foods.

Welch's has many other advantages, too. It contains minerals vital to one's health. It helps make red blood. It contains more Vitamin B than orange juice. It cleanses the entire system. Reports come from people everywhere that after following the Welch way to weight reduction they feel more vigorous and alert than they had felt in years.

Start right in today. Get a bottle of Welch's from your dealer, drink a glass before breakfast, once or twice during the day, and before retiring. Because of its purity, Welch's may be diluted with one-third water, and many prefer it so. Continue—and in a few days you will experience the wonderful difference.

Then in the meantime send for booklet, "Keeping Your Weight Down," which you may obtain ABSOLUTELY FREE, simply by writing to The Welch Grape Juice Co., Dept. 285, Westfield, N. Y. It contains full directions for easy and delightful weight reducing the Welch way.

IMPORTANT: Be sure to insist on Welch's, because it is the Welch Process that retains in the bottled juice the healthful properties of ripe fruits so essential to the system. Only Welch's is Certified-Pure and Pasteurized. It contains no adulterants, no synthetic flavors, no artificial coloring, no preservatives, no water, and above all, no tartaric acid. It is selling at the lowest price in 35 years, and is even cheaper by the case. Send for free booklet TODAY.

"Why I Shop at Walgreen's"

"I particularly appreciate the convenience of Walgreen stores. Much of my time is devoted to our club work for the tuberculous poor of Chicago, so I like to shop where I can save time as well as money. Incidentally, I especially like the 2369 North Clark Street store because of the pleasant girls employed there."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE SCHOOL BUDGET.

The five million dollars of additional economies achieved by the school board have reduced the expected expenditures to 62 million dollars. This figure is within hailing distance of the expectable revenues and, accordingly, the school budget of Chicago is approximately balanced. The problem of financing the school system has been measurably advanced toward solution. The 40 million dollars in bonds for the working cash fund, voted at the recent session of the legislature, ought now to be salable. If private investors will not take them, no effort should be spared by public officials and representative citizens to induce the federal government to do so.

The progress made by the school board is another evidence that Chicago, which was the first of the large cities of the country to discover its insolvency, will be the first to emerge. The struggle to reduce the costs of government in this community to a figure which the citizens can afford has not yet been won at all points, but we are measurably nearer the goal. Chicago is furnishing the nation an example of sound public finance. When other governments, and particularly when the federal government, have also put their houses in order, confidence in the economic future of the nation will have been immeasurably promoted.

A small minority of the teachers attended the budget meeting and expressed dissatisfaction with the board's action. It is difficult to believe that they voiced the judgment of teachers generally. As a consequence of the balancing of the budget, some teachers of special subjects may be dropped, but those teachers who remain, constituting the great majority, are far more likely to be paid in cash and on time. More than that, the teachers who take a professional attitude toward their work have every reason to rejoice at the greater independence which the removal of a hampering bureaucracy has given them. Meddlesome supervision has been minimized. Time wasting interruptions and distractions will be removed from the curriculum. The teacher will again be free, as she has not been in years, to regard her classroom as her own and to assume full responsibility for the progress of her pupils. Likewise, the principal can again regard his school as his responsibility. Any one who has observed the loyalty shown by the great majority of principals and teachers in recent years will not doubt that the school system will be the better for economies which will give added responsibility to these men and women.

SOME REAL SPANISH PRISONERS.

Claude Bowers, American ambassador to Spain, is taking steps, at this writing ineffectual, to procure the release of five Americans from the dungeon keep in Palma, Mallorca, Belearic islands. These Americans, four men and a woman, have been locked up in the island jail, which happens to be in the ruins of a medieval monastery, for five weeks.

The Americans are artists. They became involved in a quarrel with a porter and when one of the civil guards appeared on the scene, to make matters worse instead of better, somebody popped him in the eye. As Jay Allen has explained to the TRIBUNE readers, the civil guard is so tough that it is almost afraid of itself and the respect which must be paid it amounts to an awesome reverence. The Americans are being taught that no one busts a member of this police force and gets away with much short of his life.

The jail apparently is a combination of romance, rats and general rottenness, and the American woman, separated from her husband, is confined with a crazy native woman who certainly does not add to the charm of the experience. This has been going on for five weeks. The conduct of the Americans may or may not have been reprehensible, but there is nothing to show that it merited any such treatment as has been given them. They are entitled to the protection of their country and it may be assumed that Mr. Bowers would personally like to extend it to them. He should be urged to energetic measures and backed up in any vigor of protest which he uses. Mr. Bowers, a notable American historian, is a great admirer of Andrew Jackson, and what this occasion needs is a great deal of Andrew Jackson's vehemence of language and decisiveness of action.

Unless a citizen of the United States is given the protection of his country when he is abroad, he is helpless in the hands of local authorities whose prejudices against him may be very active. As a country permits its citizens to be abused, it permits itself to be despised. Self-respecting nations do not tolerate this. The United States cannot proceed upon the theory that Spain is Michigan under its old dry régime and that these five Americans are so many Fred Palms. The state department should insist that they be released from their intolerable conditions, that the offense with which they are charged be proved, and that the penalty be proportionate to the disorder which can be properly charged to their account.

EVILS OF PAROLE.

The revelation that Chicago is the dumping ground of paroled convicts from other states throws a sardonic light on the ways of sentimental philanthropy toward criminals. We have frequent occasions to note the contemptuous remarks of the press, in this region as well as in communities more remote, upon crime in Chicago, but now we discover that our rather self-righteous neighbors are relieving themselves of their responsibilities by passing them on to us.

We are glad that the grand jury proposes to inquire into this vagary of local philanthropy, and we suggest that while interrogating the directorship of the Central Howard association and the Volunteers of America, the proposal be made to them that they make provision for the widow and family of Policeman Redlich, murdered by a paroled convict imported from Michigan to the care of the Volunteers, and for other victims of their enthusiasm for criminal reform. The former organization is said to have accepted supervision of some 200 convicts paroled from institutions outside of Illinois, and the Volunteers about 35. This would be no small addition to local talent even if Chicago deserved the reputation amiably fostered by her critics. It is at any rate an importation we ought promptly to stop.

As for the parole system generally, hardly a week passes in which some flagrant failure is not recorded in the press. It is turning criminals loose prematurely, by favor or false sentiment, to commit most of the crime of the country. It should be radically reconsidered and reformed in the full light of its actual operation and results. One amendment is clearly needed. No person convicted of a crime of violence should be subject to parole or commutation of sentence.

THE GREENLAND ROUTE.

The Italian air expedition has already contributed to the progress of aviation, we think, by demonstrating the impracticability of the Greenland route for commercial flying. Commercial planes cannot afford to wait days and days upon weather. Passengers and express will take to planes solely to save time, and until vehicle and equipment are able to meet the expectable conditions of this route so as to insure regular delivery patronage cannot be expected.

The expedition under Gen. Balbo represents the highest degree of preparation and employs planes and personnel of the first quality, yet has been repeatedly delayed. The commercial possibilities of this route are not in present conditions, and premature efforts by enthusiasts to force their development should be discouraged. Available capital and initiative should be devoted to more practical lines of development. The Greenland route, indeed, may never be as good for commerce as alternative routes, but in any case its disadvantages at this stage of aviation justify postponement of commercial adventure in that region until more promising lines of development have been thoroughly exploited.

BETTER PICTURES FOR NEWSPAPERS.

However much the English newspapers lack in literary content compared to our own, they excel ours in pictorial reproductions. Because of a lower rate of literacy in England, English newspapers began printing halftone photographs sooner than American newspapers. Having printed them longer, they print them better. Their photography is better, their engraving superior, and their newsprint ahead of the quality used in America.

It is just because of their excellent pictorial effect that English newspapers have stood the competition of the newer forms of communication so well. There have been great improvements in technique in the industries that compete with newspapers. To meet the competition thus presented, American newspapers should improve their own technical processes.

Editorial of the Day

"THE WAY TO LOWER TAXES."

[New Orleans Times-Picayune.]

Maryland is one of the few states that has managed to maintain a balanced budget and reduce its tax rate through the "bad times." In an address delivered last Tuesday, Gov. Ritchie explained how the near-miracle was wrought. Far from considering it miraculous, however, the Maryland executive declares that his state's program can be applied with like good results to the management of any other state, and to the conduct of municipalities.

First in the order of importance in undertaking worthwhile governmental economy, he suggests, is the reorganization or realignment of departments "to centralize responsibility for their administration, coördinate functions which are related, eliminate waste and overlapping and generally promote efficiency." There is, of course, nothing novel about this. Wherever tried out intelligently and in good faith it has materially reduced governmental costs and improved efficiency. The next item of the Maryland program is perhaps less familiar. In Maryland, it appears, the executive not only presents a balanced budget to the legislature, but the lawmakers are deprived by statute of any power to inflate it. They may reduce, but they cannot increase, the gubernatorial budget. Third comes a central purchasing agency, full powered and "equipped to secure the benefits of discounts and wholesale rates and to take advantage of favorable trade conditions." Fourth is a "central personnel department," which prescribes standards and qualifications for the various branches of state service and sees to it that the state employés are fit and competent for the tasks assigned them.

These devices—all excellent in theory—depend for their success in practice upon the spirit, quality and honesty of their administration. The functions of personnel bureaus and central purchasing agencies can be maladministered for political profit. Maryland, we gather, has not suffered from that or other political maladministration under Gov. Ritchie, now serving his fourth term. Under his administration since 1920 the Maryland state government entered the depression efficient, and that preparation probably helped it to maintain that fortunate condition.

With respect to tax relief, Gov. Ritchie gives it as his opinion that "the only way really to lower taxes is to spend less money . . . It does no good to lower one kind of taxation and increase another kind or add a new kind . . . An increase now in any existing forms of taxation nearly always means diminishing returns, and economically it is hard to justify any new forms of taxation at all." Hence his conclusion that the sole method of tax relief and reduction consists in the spending of less money for government. Intelligent taxpayers know that to be true, but taxeaters in most states refuse, unhappily for their victims, to admit it, and continue their avid search for new tax sources.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

I THOUGHT THE GOVERNMENT was saving lots of money by dropping bureaucrats here and there all over the place, but now it seems that the new commissions being formed every few minutes down in Washington can absorb all the boys who have lost their jobs besides taking in a lot more. Anyhow, it looks as though finally everybody would have a government job, and so everything will be jake. But if we all have government jobs writing reports and trade codes and checking up on manufacturing, traffic, cotton leasing, industrial development, construction projects, farm control, and so on (and so on and on), who is going to be left to clerk in the stores and work in the factories and on the farms and run the gas stations and dig coal and marcel hair and drive beer trucks? If we all work for the government, where is the money coming from to pay us? It's hard to figure out. Help! Help! Oh, Prof. Moley—information and assistance here, please!

NIGHT POEM.

So still the river lies tonight
Beside the barley field;
So still the willow bends above
The river's sleep to shield;

So still the orchard by the bank,
No petal dares to fall;
So still the world you needs must think
That Death has kissed it all.

Save that in the moon's white path
The wild swan floats alone,
His sleepy head beneath his wing
And all the world his own.

CAMPASPE.

THE FARMERS are digging trenches and strewing creosote to stop the chinch bug, but nobody has yet invented anything to turn back the army of kidnapers. A chinch bug is an awful pest, but anyhow he doesn't stick tape over your eyes and mouth and throw you down in the bottom of an automobile and wipe his feet on you, and then hold you for fifty or a hundred thousand dollar ransom. While I deplore deeply the ravages of the chinch bug and consider him an illiterate, coarse, loathsome creature utterly devoid of high moral principles, I would much rather be a chinch bug than a kidnaper.

INCOMPLETENESS.

Give me incompleteness, if I'd sing a splendid song;
Do not satiate me, if you'd keep me keen and strong.

The female bird has but a chirp, the male bird sings all day
Until he's mated, then his song, forgotten, fades away.

Too much of satisfaction may withhold a song most sweet;
Give me a certain emptiness if I would be complete.

A man who is too satisfied may sing but for a day;
Give me fertile loneliness if I would sing for aye.

EILEEN QUINLAN.

FRANKLIN DELANO insists on all postmasters, from the first class kind down to the fellow at the cross roads postoffice in the back of the grocery store who reads the post cards, being put under civil service. A fine plan, but with all those jobs gone it's going to take a lot of pep out of the presidential campaigns.

AND MAYBE we had better hurry up and recognize Russia very soon. If the dinged old dollar keeps going down, the Reds may get snooty and not speak to us even when we do recognize 'em when we see 'em.

AND ANYHOW it's a new alibi. You don't have to explain when you're late at the office by saying you were bridged getting down town and you don't have to tell the wife that you were kept at the office by a lot of extra work. You just yawn and say "kidnaped again," and the boss or the wife, as the case may be, will likewise yawn and say listlessly, "Oh, were you?"

BEAU GESTE.

(For Mary Gleason Hogan.)

The Irish never falter,
The Irish seldom lie—
A maxim dearly cherished,
Though some be such as I;
The timorous and faltering kind
Of gawky, fumbling guy.

So what? Well, once a lady
Was sweet and kind to me,
Though I, a soldier-bumpkin,
Was scarce of high degree,
And she, to make me merry,
Shunned nabob and grandee.

She warmed me in her presence
And told me of her sons,
And I gave prayer in silent thanks
That France was still of guns
Ere ever manhood knighted them
And pain was every one's.

The Irish never falter,
The Irish seldom lie—
A maxim dearly cherished,
Though some be such as I;
The timorous and faltering kind

SPARROW PURDY'S ASSISTANT.

AND THIS DAY, July 14, fell the Bastille. But on this July 14 the French are not so interested in the fall of the Bastille as they are in the fall of the dollar. And, oh, are we? And is our face red?

IS TANNING HELPFUL?

EVIDENCE accumulates that lying on the beach acquiring a fine coat of tan is likely to be paid for in premature old age and hardening of the arteries. Life is something besides circus day and pink lemonade. We must pay for whatever we enjoy.

There is no question as to the advantage of exposure to sunlight in the case of growing children. Especially is this true of children in the second and third years of life. A great many children of this age are near the rickets line. Since life began they have grown rapidly and this has kept their reservoirs of lime and phosphorus nearly empty. Their stock of fat-soluble vitamins is always near depletion. Many of them live in climates where the weather forces them to stay indoors most of the time for several months in the year. During these months sunshine is deficient in quantity and poor in quality in the cities in which they live.

Childhood is a condition of immaturity that is regarded as normal only because of youthfulness. Occasionally an older person has the same type of physical, mental, and emotional immaturity that is normal in childhood. In the case of an adult it is accepted as proof of disease of body or peculiarity of mind.

In the case of a child the business of ageing is normal and exposure to sunlight promotes it. The same process becomes disagreeable and unwanted when the case is that of a person beyond the meridian of life. In the second instance we call it the process of growing old. Exposure to sunlight promotes that, too, for reasons that any one should be able to see.

It is thought, though the proof is not good, that adults can protect themselves against pneumonia in the late winter by exposing the skin to sunlight. Some wish to expose themselves to sunlight until they tan because of the pleasure they get out of lying on the beach or playing, scantily clad, in the open air. Others expose themselves because they think it improves their appearance—makes them more attractive physically.

We will agree that there are advantages from sunning and tanning—some that relate to health, vigor, growth, maturing; some to resistance to disease, some to personal pulchritude, or to vanity. What we must remember is that we must pay for our cake. The evidence is increasing that a part of what we pay is in the moving up of the old age period, say five or ten years, and a raise in blood pressure a few points beyond the level that is proper for a given age.

Let me add that, when a deeply tanned skin bleaches after the season is over, it does not return to the class A complexion class.

MIDGETS AND CHILDREN.

Mrs. J. H. S. writes:

1. In the Midget Village at the World's Fair I saw midgets who had normal children. Is this possible? Pygmies have pygmy children.

2. At what age do midgets usually stop growing?

3. What kind of disturbance causes this phenomenon?

REPLY.

1 and 3. It is. The term midget is not scientific. It is loosely used, and includes pygmies and several other kinds of dwarfs. Books on genetics, eugenics, inheritance, and similar subjects are apt to have sections devoted to the inheritance laws of dwarfing. Many dwarfs are such because of congenital defects or defects acquired in early youth—defects of some one or more so-called ductless glands. The two glands most often responsible are the pituitary body and the thyroid. Where the dwarfing is the result of disease in these glands—either or both—there is a good chance that the dwarf will be fertile. There is some chance that the children he begets will be of normal size. There are other causes.

2. The age at which growth stops depends considerably on the type of dwarfing. Acquired peculiarities are seldom inherited. The pygmy has been small for so many centuries that his qualities have become inheritable as well as fixed.

WORTH IS PROVED.

E. S. writes: What do you think of the thoroplastic operation which they are using on tubercular persons? Is this operation still in the experimental stage? I would like to have your opinion on it.

REPLY.

The operation, in one form or another, has been given a fair trial for thirty-five years. It has proved its worth in cases for which it is suited.

PAVING PROJECTS.

Chicago, July 10.—[Friend of the People.]—1. When will the paving of Higgins road be completed from Austin avenue to Canfield road? 2. When will the paving of Bryn Mawr avenue, between Avondale and Higgins road, be completed? 3. When will the paving of Avondale from Bryn Mawr avenue to Foster avenue be completed? H. R.

1. The paving of Higgins road between Austin avenue and Canfield avenue should be completed by Sept. 1.

2. Bids for the paving of Bryn Mawr avenue between Avondale and Talcott have been requested, and the date of completion for this improvement has been set for Nov. 1, 1933.

3. Bids for the paving of Avondale avenue between Bryn Mawr and Foster will be received next week and the date of completion of this work has been set for Oct. 1, 1933.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, July 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A makes a will leaving his estate to his nephew B, on condition that he marry C, an elderly lady. 1. In what state may this occur? 2. If B cannot contest the will without losing his inheritance can C adopt him? 3. In what state may an adult adopt an adult? 4. Would such an adoption make it illegal for B to marry C? 5. Would that void the will without contesting it? 6. If the will was made in one state and the adoption in another, how would that affect the case? 7. Would the adoption be necessary before the will was probated or would they have until the time limit for the marriage? 8. How much time is allowed after death for the probation of a will? 9. How long does an adoption take? E. W.

1. We know of no state in which it could not be done.

2. You give us no wording indicating that he would necessarily lose his inheritance by contesting.

3. Adoption of adults is not permitted under Illinois statute. We do not see how the adoption would have any material effect on your facts.

4. In our opinion, a situation deliberately created in this way would not increase B's rights under the will.

5. See 4.

6 and 7. See preceding answers.

8. In some cases, probate can be entirely dispensed with.

9. Depends on whether publication is necessary. We doubt if the adoption would be either practicable or effective on your facts. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 14, 1917.

LONDON.—A dispatch to the Morning Post from Amsterdam says that rumors are current there that Emperor William has abdicated in favor of Prince Joachim, his sixth son. These rumors must be taken with all reserve as they have not been confirmed.

COPENHAGEN. — Serious news came from Berlin yesterday. The reichstag has gone on strike and the members have decided to suspend the labors, both of the full house and the main committee, until the political situation is cleared up. This leaves the war credit bill in abeyance. Emperor William has summoned Field Marshal von Hindenburg, chief of the general staff, and Gen. Ludendorff, chief quartermaster general, for a conference. This news should be interpreted in connection with intimations that the German government has decided to refuse to parliamentarize the cabinet and the difficulties reported in connection with the adoption of a peace resolution.

WASHINGTON.—Information reaching the state department shows that the German political crisis, while centering around internal reforms, will result in a definition of Germany's aims which will place the imperial government on record as willing to accept peace without the claims for annexations and indemnities for which Emperor William and Chancellor Hollweg have been contending.

LONDON.—The British battleship Vanguard blew up and sank on July 9, says an official statement by the British admiralty. An internal explosion while the ship was at anchor caused the disaster. Only three men of those on board survived, and one of them has since died. It is probable that the loss of life will total more than 800. Before the war the Vanguard had a complement of 870 men.

WAR SUMMARY. — Petrograd reports that the advance in Galicia continues, with additional villages captured as well as some crossings of the Lomnica river. Berlin reports spirited fighting on the Dvina river, near Smorgon, and on the Shara river, and the recapture of trenches on hill 304, in the Verdun sector, taken by the French on July 8. Paris claims the German attack in this sector failed.

HERMANAS, N. M.—The 1,286 Industrial Workers of the World deported from Bisbee, Ariz., were taken under the protecting arm of the United States government last night. Uncle Sam will feed them and care for them at Columbus, N. M. They will not be treated as prisoners. Brig. Gen. George Bell Jr., commander of this army district, received orders from Washington last night to provide rations for the exiles.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Are there any free toilets for ladies at the Fair? If so, where?

ANSWER—Free toilets for women controlled by concessionaires are in the following locations: Muller-Pabst restaurant, Old Heidelberg restaurant, North Midway, Midget village, Victor Vienna restaurant, Home Planning hall, south of Travel and Transport building, Dance pavilion on the beach, east of South Agricultural building, Miller's High Life café, Schlitz Garden cafe, seven locations on Enchanted island, Hollywood Algiers building, Fort Dearborn, gates numbers 23 and 24. In addition to the above there are 45 locations throughout the grounds in buildings put up by private firms. These toilets are not operated by concessionaires and therefore are not under the control of A Century of Progress.

ANSWER—No.

QUESTION—Will you furnish me with information concerning the World's Fair Club of Chicago, 1258 South Michigan avenue, as I am holding some of their tickets. I would like to know if it is safe for me to sell these tickets to my friends and if they would get value received.

ANSWER—The club in question has no connection with A Century of Progress Exposition. The Fair understands that the club is selling a membership for $2.50, and that the membership card contains a coupon which, according to the text, is to be exchanged for one admission ticket to the Fair grounds. A membership in the club does not of itself entitle a member to privileges of any kind at the Exposition. If the club will purchase Exposition tickets at the regular rates such tickets will be good for admission. Up to the present time no general admission tickets have been sold to the club.

QUESTION—Are the little automobiles driven by children near the beach to be sold after the Fair is over? Where can I get more information about them?

ANSWER—Write Winston & Shackleton, Joliet, Ill., for information about the cars.

A JUDGE ON RELIEF ADMINISTRATION.

Chicago, July 10.—If the officials of the Emergency Relief commission were to have representatives in the police courts they would be amazed at the revelations there unfolded each day. When under oath they are made to reveal the true state of their conditions, some recipients of relief are shown to have automobiles, others have income from the government, while others are beating their wives and children. Then, too, invariably, when they meet their neighbors in the market or grocery and are twitted for their extravagant buying of porterhouse steaks, and the like, a fist fight ensues, and then pell-mell to the police station for warrants. More than one-half of police court cases are from the emergency relief recipients. It is an exasperating situation. This litigation is very expensive, taking much more money from the taxpayers than the relief dealt out.

Likely the handling of the emergency relief is a huge, colossal undertaking; nevertheless it is an outrage that more than half of the police court battlers are being kept in apparent ease by the struggling taxpayers.

I impute no blame to any one, but let the relief commissioner check up in the police courts; he will get an earful. Let him come with me.

MYTHS ABOUT THE FAIR.

Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., July 8.—Being very proud of our Fair and all things connected, I wondered if you would be interested to know that many people around here are under the impression that entrance fees are charged at all exhibits, and that due to a storm felt in Elgin and St. Charles last Sunday "half of the Fair is in the lake."

The broadcast came in about 10:30 last Sunday evening that a "terrible storm had swept many buildings into the lake and several people were hurt."

I called up my family at once, only to discover they knew of no such storm, and since then I have been busy trying to impress the good news on the few friends I know who were planning on going out. MAY HOLMAN.

ENEMIES OF PROHIBITION.

Gary, Ind., July 9.—The 18th amendment has been in the constitution for many years and the people of this country ought to know enough to cast an intelligent vote on the question of its repeal without any further blah-blah from politicians. Instead we find that by-product of the prize ring, the Hon. Jim Farley, and his boy wonder protégé attempting to tell the people to vote as they dictate.

The drys are fighting their own battles. Why can't the booze industry do likewise? What are they afraid of? Why do they hide in the background and supply the cash for politicians to front for them?

Can there be truth in the old adage that "those who pander to human weakness are not to be trusted"?

RENASCENT POLAND.

Chicago, July 6.—It was with great interest that I read the editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on July 3, entitled "Renascent Poland."

I take this opportunity to congratulate you upon the impartial picture of Poland of today. This article has made the very best impression on the Polish people in Chicago and I have received many letters and telephone calls with words of appreciation for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Therefore, I wish to express to you my sincere thanks and to assure you that this consulate general is always ready to coöperate with you in order to create a still better understanding between our two countries. T. ZBISZEWSKI,

REGARDING "SMITTY."

Chicago, July 7.—May I suggest future cartoons for the so-called comic strip of "Smitty": Have Herbie run over and killed in the street, Smitty drown in the lake, the mother struck by lightning, and the artist drop from the sky ride into the lagoon. LARRY WISE.

RHETORIC.

Ballyclough, Ia., July 9. — "It was a contest, daring in conception, carried to a fulfillment by the united interest of all concerned, perfect in its details, giving not only . . . ." Is this John Clark Ridpath writing of the Third Crusade when Saladin the Saracen turned back Richard Coeur de Lion from the Holy Land? It is not! Is it Pierre de Lisle describing the debate of Arius the Libyan with the early church fathers during the schism that threatened to split the basic doctrine of the new faith? It is not! Is it Theodor Mommsen telling the dreams of Genghis Khan to consolidate his lines between Balkhash and Baikal? It is not! Is it Edmund Burke speaking in the house of lords on the plan of Napoleon to take Austerlitz? It is not! Is it Casanova confessing his intrigue to seize the boudoirs of Vienna? Heavens, no! Then what in hell is it? It is from Harvey T. Woodruff's story of the American-National league all-star game! Fan me, Scheherazade; fan me with the scented door you ripped off the fertilizing station. ANDREW BATTERY.

A SMALL PARK.

Chicago, July 7.—At the corner of Bellevue place and State street is a small, triangular park. The grass and flowers in it are carefully tended and look fresh and green. But the building there is in a filthy condition. The drunkard and the tramp have visited there frequently and left unsightly evidences of their presence. Apparently the floor has not been swept and scrubbed this season. The seats are still clean, but how long will they remain so?

This summer house is only two blocks from one of the finest hotels in the city, only one block from one of Chicago's most beautiful residences, and it is located on what was once known as "the prettiest street in town." Some of our visitors, coming from all parts of the world, cannot fail to see it in its shamefully neglected condition, and unfavorable comment from them is sure to result.

Chicago is feeding hundreds of thousands of people free every day. Is there not among them one man sufficiently imbued with civic pride and a sense of gratitude for what he is freely given to take a broom and pail and make this little summer house look as clean and inviting as when, in years gone by, it was a favorite resting place for the casual passerby? C. S. H.

A WISCONSIN REGIMENT.

Chicago, July 4.—I am wondering if readers of, and contributors to, this column can be of assistance to me in a search for some historical information. This has to do with a certain unit of the Union army during the civil war. As I recall it, there was either a battalion or regiment known as the Wisconsin Iron Hats or the Wisconsin Black Hats that was highly regarded by the secesh for its ferocity and good rifle aim.

I am anxious to secure the names of books and authors that may contain information about this subject.

RISKY FLYING.

Chicago, July 5.—"Investigation ordered after blimp hits sky ride" is suggested as a headline which will be needed some of these fine mornings.

Also the fool stunt of last night might easily have resulted in a greater tragedy had the man fallen in the grand stand, on one of the boats in the lagoon, or on the stage.

Further, an airplane flying over a 75,000 crowd does not add to their peace of mind. G. T. V. E.

ONE OF THE BEST PAINTINGS.

Chicago, July 11.—It may surprise Mr. Allyn Luther Prothero to know that the "brazen and voluptuous nude" that he complained about in the Irish Free State exhibit at A Century of Progress is rated as one of the best paintings produced by a modern European painter.

I talked with Prof. Hugh J. Smith, one of the curators at the exhibit, and he told me that dozens of clergymen who visited the Irish show have expressed no disapproval with the location of the picture.

DIVIDE U. S. INTO REGIONS TO PUSH WORKS PROGRAM

Each of Ten Districts Will Have Supervisor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—To facilitate prosecution of the government's 3 billion 300 million dollar public works program, Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes today divided the country into 10 regions, each of which will be supervised by a regional administrator to be named by the President within the next week.

Illinois, Mr. Ickes placed in the third region, together with Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio. Each state, under the program announced today, is to have an advisory committee of three citizens, to be chosen by the President, who will assist the regional director in handling applications for the easy money to be distributed by the government.

How They Are Divided.

1, New England; 2, New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey; 3, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Ohio; 4, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, and Wyoming; 5, Montana, Idaho, Washington, and Oregon; 6, California, Nevada, Utah, and Arizona; 7, Texas, New Mexico, and Louisiana; 8, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, and Arkansas; 9, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, and Florida; 10, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, and North Carolina.

Mr. Ickes stated that the organization for each region is to be nonpolitical in character and will be chosen from men experienced in engineering and construction work, particularly.

Cut to 100 Millions.

Announcement of the allocation of public works funds by President Roosevelt for federal projects was withheld by the interior secretary today, although it was learned that the 300 to 400 million dollars originally sought by the various federal departments and some three score independent offices had been cut to about one-fourth of that amount.

The cabinet advisory board for public works today considered a rivers and harbors program to be undertaken with a part of the government's 3 billion 300 million dollar easy money fund, Secretary Ickes said, and expects to submit a list of these projects to Mr. Roosevelt shortly. He declined to name the amount involved.

A list of nonfederal projects, principally water and sewer developments, is expected to be announced by Secretary Ickes tomorrow in conjunction with his announcement of the federal program.

40 Million for Boulder Dam.

The list of federal projects, it is understood, will include another huge slice of government money for Boulder dam. The allotment for continuation of work on the 160 million dollar Colorado project is understood to total 40 million dollars.

Of the total 3 billion 300 million dollars appropriated by congress, $638,000,000 has already been allotted—400 million for road construction in the various states and 238 million for the construction of 32 navy ships.

In connection with the navy's 238 million dollar construction program Admiral William Standley, chief of naval operations, stated after a visit to the President today that bids for 16 new ships to be built under the public works program will be opened on July 26. Construction will be started as soon as possible, he said.

42D DIVISION VETERANS OPEN MEETING HERE

Several hundred veterans of the Rainbow [42d] division, A. E. F., which was made up of units from 26 states and the District of Columbia, met in their fifteenth annual reunion in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. Tonight the climax of their three day convention will be reached in a dinner in the Bal Tabarin.

Col. Noble B. Judah, president of the Rainbow Division Veterans, will preside. The banquet will commemorate the fifteenth anniversary of the battle of the Champagne sector on Bastille day, 1918. It will be opened with "The Star Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise," sung by Sara Ann McCabe. "Champagne hour," one of recollections of the battle, will begin at 11:45 p. m. Among those expected to attend is Gen. Henry J. Reilly, commander of Reilly's Bucks, the Chicago contingent.

Col. Judah, Col. William N. Hughes, former chief of staff, and Col. Barre Blumenthal, all of Chicago, made addresses of welcome yesterday afternoon. Col. Ruby M. Garrett, Kansas City, who commanded the 119th field signal corps in France, responded. The veterans then adjourned to A Century of Progress, where they were met by the First Battalion Sixth infantry of the United States army, stationed at Camp Whistler.

BOLT FROM SKY SIGN TO NEGRO TO PLOW UP COTTON

Anderson, S. C., July 13.—(AP)—It took a "sign from heaven" to convince a Negro preacher he should plow up his cotton in accordance with the government acreage reduction campaign.

R. W. Hamilton, Clemson college extension worker, said the parson, who operates a small farm in addition to preaching, declined to destroy his cotton because "it would be a sin to plow it up after it had started growing."

"A few days later," Hamilton said, "the parson sent word he was ready to sign up. The committee went out and soon discovered why the sudden change of mind.

U. S. SEED LOANS FOR CHICAGO AREA STORM VICTIMS AUTHORIZED

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Special seed loans for Illinois farmers whose crops were damaged by recent wind and hailstorms in and near Chicago were authorized today by Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the federal farm credit administration.

The loans, Mr. Morgenthau said, are not to exceed $10 for each family, and are to be used for buying amber cane, millet and similar seed that may be sown now for hay and forage crops. Applications for the special loans may be made by farmers up to July 31 at the farm credit administration's regional offices and county crop loan committees.

"Reports indicate that the most severe damage caused by recent storms was in Illinois and Wisconsin," Mr. Morgenthau stated. "Boone, Cook, Du Page, De Kalb, McHenry, and Kane counties in northern Illinois were hit by a damaging windstorm. In Wisconsin hail and wind uprooted fields of corn and small grains, leaving many farmers short of live stock feed in Vernon, Crawford, Richland, and Lafayette counties."

The loans were also authorized to farmers in North Dakota and Minnesota.

HARRIMAN MIND IN 'FOG,' AUDITOR INFORMS COURT

Bares Banker's Answer About False Entries.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Joseph W. Harriman, indicted founder of the Harriman National Bank and Trust company, believes he could have saved that institution "if he had been let alone," Fred Scholz, an accountant, testified today before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey.

Testifying at a hearing to determine Mr. Harriman's mental ability to comprehend the charges that he made false entries in the books of his bank to conceal illegal transactions, Mr. Scholz declared that the former bank president's mind was "in a fog."

Mr. Harriman, the accountant said, clung tenaciously to the idea that the depreciated stock of his bank still was worth its peak price of $1,500 a share, and he insisted that he was in a sound financial position in the winter of 1931, when actually he was being "hounded for more margin."

Had he been engaged to determine Mr. Harriman's solvency at the end of 1931, Mr. Scholz declared, he would have been forced to report "he was broke." The banker insisted, the witness declared, that the first he knew of the false entries he is accused of making, or causing to be made, was in June or July of 1932. That was when they were discovered by the clearing house and federal bank examiners.

Throughout his testimony Mr. Scholz referred to the "irrelevant" or "unresponsive" answers of Mr. Harriman, and in examining the accountant's memorandum United States Attorney George Z. Medalie came across notes on questions and answers which did not relate to banking.

VISITING ENGINEER ROBBED.

John H. Stratton, a mining engineer of Marinette, Wis., complained to the police yesterday that $238, a watch, and 1,300 shares of mining stock had been stolen from his room in the Morrison hotel, where he is staying while visiting the Fair.

KELLY AND ICKES TALK ON U. S. AID FOR CHICAGOANS

Outer Drive and Airport Are Discussed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Chicago's requests for easy federal money for public works construction are to be tempered with regard for the taxpayers who must pay it back.

A central airport and the outer drive, linking the south and Lincoln park systems, and an elevated highway the mayor considers the chief projects. Under existing laws federal aid would be one-third of the total by direct contribution and a loan for 70 per cent.

This was the statement of Mayor Edward J. Kelly, following a series of conferences here today with Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes and other officials in charge of the administration's public works program.

Chicago will, of course, seek federal assistance for the construction of a number of projects, the mayor said. But there will be no headlong rush for federal funds without consideration given to the problem of paying the money back.

Wants to Provide Jobs.

"We are anxious to put as many men to work as possible on construction projects in Chicago," Mayor Kelly declared, "but we must also remember that our paper, bearing interest, has to be put up as collateral down here. It will have to be repaid, and we are not going to burden our taxpayers with a heavier load than they can stand."

The mayor arrived in Washington accompanied by Patrick Nash, Illinois Democratic national committeeman; Senator William Dieterich and Representative Adolph J. Sabath.

Following a conference with Secretary Ickes, Mayor Kelly and the other Chicagoans called on Postmaster General Farley for the purpose of suggesting that the federal government undertake the construction of the downtown airport in Chicago. The mayor saw Mr. Farley because of the facilities he felt the airport would afford for the mails.

Would Aid School Teachers.

At the same time, Mayor Kelly plans to call on Attorney General Cummings to discuss the possibility of obtaining federal assistance for Chicago's unpaid school teachers. Section 16 of the Glass banking bill, he pointed out, provides for the purchase of state and municipal obligations by national banks. He wants to ask the attorney general for an interpretation of this section particularly, he said, with a view to determining whether Chicago securities or tax anticipation warrants could be offered to banks all over the country.

The mayor said he did not discuss patronage matters with Mr. Farley, because of the absence from the conference of Senator James Hamilton Lewis, senior senator from Illinois. The Illinois patronage situation, Mayor Kelly stated, however, is satisfactory to party leaders in the state.

COAL AND OIL CODES OFFERED TO GOVERNMENT

prevent further reductions in coal mine employment."

It was suggested that for administering the code there be appointed a board of five persons, two to be representatives of the operators and to be named by the industrial advisory board of the administration; two to represent labor and to be named by the administration's labor advisory board, and one to be appointed by the administrator of the recovery act. Under the code the industry is to be segregated into five divisions: Northwestern, Appalachian, central, southwestern, western.

Work for More Men.

Neither side would give an estimate of the number of men which adoption of the code would send back to work. Mr. Lewis pointed out that under the union plan of work hours, the number reëmployed would be higher. Mr Essington said that a "very considerable number" would be given employment under the operators' program.

As a differential between north and south, it is provided that wages in districts south of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river and in the Morgantown and Fairmont districts of West Virginia, the minimum rates may be five per cent below the base. "Special conditions" in Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Texas are given as cause for a stipulation that differentials for those states may be worked out by agreement between operators and workers. And existing higher differentials in western states due to higher living costs, are not to be disturbed. These will make the base $5.25 in Colorado, $5.42 in Wyoming and Utah, from $5.36 to $5.80 in Montana, and $5.40 in the state of Washington.

Provision is made to achieve uniformity and do away with cut rate operations.

It is expected that the cost of coal to consumers will be higher.

CODE PROPOSED FOR OIL

The code proposed by the American Petroleum Institute for the oil industry recommended a 40 hour week with minimum wage scales ranging from 40 to 47 cents an hour, as follows: 47 cents an hour, or $18.80 per week in the middle Atlantic division, including New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and in the Pacific division, including Washington, Oregon and California; 45 cents an hour or $18 per week in the mountain division, including Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, and Utah; 42 cents an hour or $16.80 a week in the west north central division, including Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas; 40 cents an hour of $16 a week in the south Atlantic, east south central, and west south central divisions, including Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

Some are Exempted.

Executives, clerical workers, pumpers on stripper wells, and workers on "isolated properties," would be exempted from the 40 hour work week maximum. To provide for emergency needs, excess time would be allowed, but not to an extent which would bring a worker's hours over a six months' period above an average of 40 hours per week.

Under the code, production would be controlled by a system of allotment among the producers, each receiving a share of a total equalling "current domestic consumption, plus demand for export." Any excess production would be considered unfair practice and a violation of the code. Restriction of refining also would be authorized as a means of balancing supply and demand.

The letter of the Petroleum Institute transmitting the code, pointed out that despite long argument no agreement had been reached on many sections, and that a final decision in these matters would be left for determination by the administration following the hearings.

Power in President's Hands.

Provisions are included for the fixing of minimum prices for the protection of producers and maximum prices for the protection of consumers, both figures to be set by presidential order.

The Petroleum Institute urged a price level which would permit stripper wells, that is older wells from which the oil must be pumped, to produce at a profit. Many such wells are now operating at a loss, it was said.

CONGRESSMAN GOING TO SOVIET RUSSIA ON RECOGNITION MISSION

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Representative William I. Sirovich [Dem., N. Y.], doctor, playwright and congressman, and Sam G. Lamport, textile expert working with former Senator Smith Brookhart, who is now the department of agriculture's Russian specialist, are going to Russia on an unofficial visit, looking toward recognition.

Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] was scheduled to accompany the unofficial mission, Sirovich said at the White House today, but has wired that he cannot leave immediately and may join the other two later.

Calling at the White House to see President Roosevelt, Sirovich and Lamport stressed the unofficial character of their journey. They were unable to see the President today and may return later.

Already convinced themselves that Russia should be recognized immediately, they said today that they were sure their "study" would win over the President.

yet their continuance in production was urged as a conservation measure.

"Wildcatting" was defended as an aid to discovery, but the oil code would provide for presidential permits to govern the exploitation of discovered pools.

OTHER CODES HURRIED IN

The coal and oil codes were only two of numerous codes which flooded the administration today following the recent threat of Gen. Johnson to impose rules of conduct on those who hung back.

The rayon, wool, and Indiana limestone industrials, the coat and suit division of the apparel industry, and the general contractors all hurried codes to the administrator. And there were others of minor importance.

Under the coat and suit trade code, hearings on which will begin July 20, child labor would be prohibited, maintenance of an unemployment insurance fund would be provided for, the work week would be limited to 40 hours, and graduated rates of pay from 50 cents to $1 an hour would be fixed, except for a small section of workers who would receive 45 cents. Overtime would be prohibited. The code was produced by collective bargaining between employers and workers, it was stated, and it was claimed that the code had the support of firms and workers producing 75 per cent of the New York output, which, in turn, constitutes 80 per cent of the country's total coat and suit production.

Submit Contractors' Code.

The contractors' code was transmitted to the administration by the Associated General Contractors of America. The contractors proposed as a minimum scale of wages the scales established locally by agreement between employers and employés, such scales to be approved by the President. Where such scales do not exist the scale would be that fixed by state authority under provision of the public works act.

Piece work would be discouraged. A maximum of 150 hours of work a month would be set, with exemptions for those in executive, administrative and supervisory positions and except where the public works act's limitation of a 30 hour week would apply. The practice of drawing back a rebate on wages would be prohibited.

STEEL CODE IS REVISED

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—The amended code of the steel industry is said to have been completed. That was drafted after the administration had rejected the first agreement under the recovery act on the ground that wage rates were not acceptable.

Leaders of the industry were balloting, today at the offices of the American Iron and Steel institute, in the Empire State building, on the code. It was said definite word on its acceptance or rejection would be forthcoming tomorrow morning.

Shortly after the first code was rejected Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, had a personal conference with President Roosevelt, when the wishes of the administration were outlined to him. Taylor is understood to have submitted those views to the industry.

Inquest Jury Fails to Fix Cause of Heth's Fatal Fall

A verdict of death from undetermined causes was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the case of James B. Heth Jr., 1509 Hinman avenue, Evanston, who fell to his death Wednesday from a window on the 23d floor of the Bell building, 307 North Michigan avenue. Heth, an advertising salesman, was the son of a grain broker. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock today in the Second Presbyterian church in Evanston.

PRINT TRADES DEBATE RULES FOR THEIR CODE

Town and City Shops Strike a Rift.

Members of the National Editorial association, which has 12,000 members, including a majority of the small town printer-publishers in the United States, yesterday withdrew from the national conference at the Midland club which was called to draft an industrial code for presentation to the industrial board at Washington.

This action was taken after the publishers who are members of the association had been denied representation, by a vote of 678 to 132, in the working out of the code. A number of members of the association stated that the vote meant that "the city printers centering in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, and other centers are determined to impose administrative restrictions regarding wages, hours of work, and other conditions on the country publisher and printer that will make it impossible for him to continue in business."

Seek to Draft Own Code.

The small town printers met last night in the Hotel Sherman and decided that they would draft their own code for presentation to the administration in Washington.

The code of the United Typothetæ of America, as tentatively drafted, will provide a maximum forty hour week and a classified minimum wage scale. The small town printers declared that they cannot afford to operate under a forty hour week, especially in the six day a week publishing field and they cannot, especially in shops with a small personnel, operate under a minimum wage scale.

Clarence J. Brown, former secretary of the state of Ohio, representing 1,000 printer-publishers, addressed the Editorial association members last night and asserted that "adoption of the typothetæ code will wreck the businesses of the country town printers."

Oswald Makes a Reply.

In reply John C. Oswald, secretary of the Employers' Printing Association of New York, told the members that the typothetæ was not attempting to "railroad" the code through or seize control of the industry through administration of the code.

"We have been working on the code and keeping abreast with the times," he said. "The printer-publishers have not been awake."

Drafting of a code by the printing unions got under way when the board of governors of the International Allied Printing Trades association went into session at the Hotel Sherman. It was indicated that the unions may recommend a 30 hour week.

All the groups interested in the drafting of the printing code will meet again today.

Number of Italian Idle Drops 116,000 During June

ROME, July 13.—(AP)—Official figures released today showed that the number of unemployed in Italy was reduced 116,000 during June. The total now stands at 884,000.

BANDITS ROB U. S. OIL MAN OF $10,000 IN CANADIAN PARK

CALGARY, Alta., July 13.—(AP)—Claiming he was attacked and robbed of $10,000 by two men and a woman, Rhea Mosom, reported to be a wealthy Lagina, Cal., oil man, was found in Mewata park here last night and rushed to the hospital with a lacerated right arm.

Mosom's condition was reported as favorable early today, although he suffered greatly from loss of blood.

Police are investigating the accident. Mosom said he was assaulted last night by the trio in the park and his money stolen.

Bakers Warned They Must Pay Tax on Flour Stocks

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering yesterday notified bakers, hotel proprietors and restaurant owners that flour held as retail stocks as of July 9 is subject to taxation under the agricultural adjustment act, even if the flour is disposed of within thirty days thereafter. The exemption in the act, he said, applies to retail stocks intended for sale at retail, while flour held for use in articles or products to be sold or served to patrons is taxable.

West Side Garage Fire Burns 15 Cars; Loss $5,000

Fire yesterday in the Capitol garage at 4730 Harrison street caused damage estimated at $5,000 to the two story building and 15 automobiles. Firemen were imperiled by gasoline explosions in the burning automobiles. Employés drove 25 other automobiles to safety. The blaze was believed to have started in oily waste.

FORMERLY 30¢ Now only 25¢ A QUART PLUS TAX

EXPECT TO USE LESS OIL WITH NEW ANTI-SLUDGE ISO-VIS "D"

Car owners who changed to new Iso-Vis "D" to protect their motors from harmful, gummy sludge are now finding that in addition it lasts longer. They are adding fewer quarts between drains. Naturally—for sludge clogs piston rings and valves—fouls filter screens—wastes oil. The less oil used up to form sludge, the less oil you have to add. Iso-Vis "D"—the Anti-Sludge motor oil—is the longest lasting oil you can buy. Drive into any Standard Station and try one crankcaseful. Then judge it by the way the oil level stays up.

Have you been paying a high price to get motor protection? Don't—Iso-Vis "D", with its freedom from gummy, sticky sludge, is the finest lubrication you can buy regardless of price. Have you been using low priced oils for economy? Then change to Iso-Vis "D". At 25¢ a quart it is the most economical fine lubrication you can buy.

MILK PRODUCERS UNDER FARM ACT, NOT TRADE LAW

Chicagoland Men Winners in Capital Battle.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Representatives of milk producers in the Chicago area emerged with a victory today from their five week controversy with federal officials over the method of enforcing the marketing agreement submitted by producers and dealers in the Chicago milk shed.

The marketing agreement for Chicago, as well as for all areas in the country, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace announced, is to be enforced through the licensing system provided in the agricultural adjustment act to processors and distributors of milk, rather than under the industrial recovery act.

The secretary's decision, announced with the approval of President Roosevelt and Attorney General Homer Cummings, settled the dispute which for weeks has held up approval of the marketing agreement submitted by the Chicago milk producers and distributors. As the Chicago agreement was the first to be proposed under the farm adjustment act, settlement of the issue of enforcement was regarded as setting a precedent for future administration of the act.

Johnson Wanted Code.

The drastic licensing system, under the procedure determined today, is to be imposed on all distributors of agricultural products who submit a marketing agreement. In this way, recalcitrant minorities will be forced to the will of the majority in an industry, since, without a license from the agricultural adjustment administration, they will be outlawed.

Although officials have remained secretive as to the nature of the controversy, it was learned that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial control administrator, insisted that marketing agreements be drawn so as to constitute a code of fair competition under the industrial recovery act, and that they be enforced under that act by injunctive proceedings against violators.

The basis of Gen. Johnson's insistence, it is understood, was his belief that marketing agreements under the industrial control act would be less vulnerable to attack on constitutional grounds.

The Chicago milk producers' representatives contended in opposition that to enforce the marketing agreements under Gen. Johnson administration would operate against the interests of the farmer. They insisted that the licensing system provided in the agricultural act be applied, rather than the injunction system advocated by Johnson.

"Milestone" for Agriculture.

Don N. Geyer, secretary of the Chicago Pure Milk association, declared today that the decision represented a "milestone" for agriculture.

Under the plan announced by Secretary Wallace and Farm Adjustment Administrator George Peek, the licensing system is to be imposed on milk distributors and dealers in each milk shed for which a trade agreement becomes effective.

Most of the larger cities have submitted tentative agreements, it was said, and their approval is expected to proceed immediately, since the dispute holding them up has been settled.

Secretary Wallace stated that every distributor of milk is to be subject to the licensing system. Grocers and other incidental retailers of milk, he said, will be included.

Johnson Raises Objection.

It was Gen. Johnson, it was learned today, who prevented approval of the Chicago agreement weeks ago, when he raised the objection that such agreements should come under the industry control act.

Secretary Wallace and the farm administration, it was revealed, were prepared to go ahead with approval of the agreement under the farm act when Johnson's protest was heard.

Secretary Wallace explained that the marketing agreements under the farm adjustment act do not provide for the fixing of hours of work and wages, as provided in the industry control act.

LINGERIE SHOP ROBBED.

Two armed men and a woman held up a lingerie shop at 4859 Irving Park boulevard yesterday and robbed Miss Olive Wallin, the owner, of $50 and a quantity of lingerie.

DAIRYMEN DEMAND INCREASE IN PRICE OF MILK FOR CREAM

Milk producers of McHenry county, meeting last night at Woodstock, voted to demand a change in the basic system of pricing their product in the Chicago area. They held that milk purchased for its cream should be paid for by distributors at the same rate as that to be sold to consumers as fluid milk.

Representatives of the McHenry county farmers are to meet with those of thirty other counties in the city's milk shed in Chicago on Tuesday, and demand that all milk be priced at $1.75 a hundred pounds, the price now being paid for fluid milk supplies. The farmers now receive for milk finally sold as cream only $1 to $1.10 a hundred pounds.

It was indicated that this change in the base price, and possibly a higher rate than $1.75, would be demanded Tuesday as part of the proposed marketing agreement that was brought a step nearer by federal officials in Washington yesterday.

Speakers pointed out that pastures now are dried up and feed high, and consequently the cost of producing milk has risen. It was even suggested that an additional cent a quart might have to be levied on the city consumer to get the price up to a profitable point for farmers.

News from Washington to the effect that procedure has been agreed on for a marketing agreement caused a cessation of threats of a milk strike.

CHEESEMAKERS ASSEMBLE HERE TO DRAFT CODE

Plan New Weekly Price Fixing System.

Fifty cheesemakers assembled yesterday at the Drake hotel to work out a trade code governing competition. The code, when adopted, is to be submitted to the federal administration in Washington for approval. Representatives of several other industries were similarly employed during the day.

Three groups were formed at the cheese parley to facilitate progress. The cheesemakers, producers, and assemblers each agreed to work out codes and to submit their recommendations by Aug. 1 to the National Cheese institute.

See New Price Fixing Plan.

The chief object of the various groups will be to organize a fair price committee which will fix cheese prices weekly. This work is now done by the Plymouth, Wis., boards, which would be abolished together with the Cheese exchange and the farmers' call board.

The producers' group includes a special committee of six appointed Wednesday by Gov. A. G. Schmedeman of Wisconsin, in order that the milk producers might be properly represented. Wisconsin produces 66 per cent of the American cheese and 90 per cent of the Swiss cheese in this country. W. F. Hubert of Sheboygan, Wis., president of the National Cheese institute, presided.

Stone and Gravel Men Meet.

Committees from the National Crushed Stone association, the National Sand and Gravel association, and the National Slag association again were striving to agree on a uniform code. The Better Bedding alliance at the Palmer house also was considering the subject of hours and wages.

The Retail Furniture Association of Chicago, representing 175 merchants, will meet today in the American Furniture Mart to formulate a code under the industrial recovery act.

Leaders in the sporting goods industry from throughout the United States will arrive in Chicago today to draw up a code. There will be daily sessions of the National Sporting Goods Credit association from tomorrow until next Thursday.

Paper Boxmakers Elect.

William P. Datz Jr. of Philadelphia was elected president of the National Paper Box Manufacturers' association here yesterday. Plans were made at the meeting for the formation of a new group to be known as the National Folding Box Manufacturers' association. It will be a division of the parent association.

A committee from the new group will meet tomorrow to discuss adoption of a code fixing hours of work and rates of pay similar to the code adopted by the National Paper Box manufacturers.

Society Hastens Preparations for Many Parties for Flyers

BY JUDITH CASS.

LIKE many of those who have been saying for weeks, "When the Italian flyers come," and who have decided that they have lost some of their first enthusiasm because it has been weeks since we started expecting them, we thought, too, that we weren't as excited about their arrival as we had been. But we discovered yesterday when we were told by the Italian vice consul, Dr. Antonio Ferme, that Gen. Italo Balbo and his trans-Atlantic air fleet would land here tomorrow or Sunday that we were just as thrilled at the prospect of seeing those 24 planes on our lake front as we would have been had they arrived a month ago.

The telephones of those who have in charge arrangements for the entertainment of these Italian aces during their four day visit were busy yesterday, for all concerned had to be notified by the Italian consulate that the airmen were expected within a day or two, and those in charge had to notify others. Luncheon on the S. S. Wilmette and the official welcome at Soldiers' field will be the first things on the program, and then on the same evening will come the reception that the Dante Alighieri society is giving at the Drake hotel from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Ambassador in Receiving Party.

In the official receiving party will be Italian Ambassador Augusto Rosso, who will arrive tomorrow from Washington; Consul General Giuseppe Castruccio and Signora Castruccio, Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker, Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius, President Rufus C. Dawes of A Century of Progress and Mrs. Dawes, Harry S. New, the United States commissioner to A Century of Progress, and Mrs. New; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Washburn Child [he is a former U. S. ambassador to Italy], Dr. Italo F. Volini, president of the Dante Alighieri society, and Mrs. Volini, and Mrs. Marco Adrogna, vice president of the society, and Mr. Adrogna. At this reception Signor Castruccio will decorate and make Grand Officials of the Crown of Italy Gov. Horner and Bishop Griffin of Springfield.

At night at 8:30 the young airmen will be driven north to the Saddle and Cycle club to dine and dance with about one hundred and fifty of the younger members of society.

It is to be a jolly party, with the prettiest of our society girls there to dance with the young Italians and plenty of good entertainment furnished by professionals.

Luncheon at Fair Will Be Sunday.

Sunday, providing of course that the armada reaches Chicago tomorrow, A Century of Progress is giving a luncheon at 1 o'clock in the Trustees' Lounge of a Hall of Science, and that night the Italians of the city are giving a banquet at the Stevens hotel. Monday after a luncheon at the Chicago airport the Italian visitors will be taken to Lake Geneva for a reception to be given by that city. They will return to Chicago that night, however, in time for a banquet Mr. New will give for them at the Congress hotel.

Later Monday night will come the big reception and ball the Italy-America society and Prince Potenziani are combining to give at the Casino. When we talked to Miss Clara Lake, who is in charge of arrangements, yesterday she said so many of the Chicago social leaders who were to receive had left the city that she would have to revise her list.

Admiral Cluverius has planned a stag luncheon for the fourth day, Tuesday, if all goes as expected, at the Stevens hotel, and that afternoon the Italians will be driven to Fort Sheridan to see a polo game and to have tea with Gen. Parker. That night the Tavern will entertain the flyers at a dinner dance, planned with the coöperation of Signor Castruccio, and the next day the air fleet will be on its way.

East-West Polo Matches in August.

One whole floor of the Drake hotel has been reserved by the polo playing easterners and their guests for the week of Aug. 13. When we heard this interesting news yesterday and the fact that stands are to be constructed for 15,000, we were convinced of the importance and brilliancy of the east-west polo matches that are to be played next month at the Onwentsia.

Louis E. Stoddard, who is chairman of the U. S. Polo association, has wired for the hotel reservations announcing that all of the smart folk in New York polo playing circles will be out here for the games. And most of them will be in this party at the Drake.

The teams won't be picked until the junior championships now being played on Long Island are finished. But the very fact that "Tommy" Hitchcock is to make up the eastern team and Carleton F. Burke, the western squad, insures that they will include the very best material in the country. And this means that Winston Guest and "Mike" Phipps will undoubtedly be playing.

These two young polo players are cousins, you probably know, for Mr. Phipps' father, John Shaffer Phipps is the brother of Mrs. Frederick E. Guest. Their grandfather was the late Henry Phipps who married Anne C. Shaffer [this relates them to that other polo player who will probably be out here again this summer, Harvey Shaffer Jr.]. The senior Mr. Phipps started as an office boy for Dillworth and Bidwell, spike manufacturers, in 1856, and later worked himself into iron and steel manufacture with Andrew Carnegie. This was the basis of the Phipps' fortune.

It is expected that several members of the Phipps, the Guest, and the Shaffer families will be among the easterners here for the games. The first is to be played Aug. 9, and the second Aug. 13. If a third game is necessary it will be Aug. 16. Tickets are to go on sale Monday or Tuesday of next week.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wardwell will open their summer home at Lawrence tomorrow evening for a musical, at which Mme. Eva Gauthier will offer a program of folk songs.

Mrs. Charles Wilmot Tracy will sail for Europe on Saturday on the Berengaria.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Cram had among their guests for luncheon yesterday at the roof garden of the Hotel Pierre Mr. and Mrs. Owen B. Huntsman, Col. G. Creighton Webb, and Anthony J. Drexel III.

Curtis B. Dall entertained at a stag dinner last evening at the Waldorf-Astoria for L. W. Robert Jr., assistant secretary of the treasury, and Peter A. H. Voorhis.

Morton Schwartz Arrives in Town.

Morton L. Schwartz of New York arrived in town yesterday morning to join his wife and the rest of their party, which includes Mrs. J. Henry Alexandre Jr. of Glen Head, Long Island, and Howard W. Maxwell Jr., who have been at the Drake hotel since Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hitts are going out to Lake Forest today to spend the week-end with the Laurance Armours. Mr. and Mrs. Armour are giving a dinner for them tonight and a luncheon tomorrow at the Post and Paddock club at Arlington. Among their other guests at the luncheon will be Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy and Eugene V. Thayer.

That popular New York society man, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, attracted the attention of all debutante eyes yesterday afternoon at the Arlington Park race track. Garbed in a dark blue business suit, he sat by himself most of the time, exchanging words every now and then with some of the other New Yorkers who were out for another day of Arlington racing.

There was Samuel W. Riddle, the Renard Gimbels, Mrs. Frank C. Millis, who used to be a Chicagoan, and last, but not least, the Gene Tunneys. Costumed in blue and white, Mrs. Tunney looked more like a delicious confection than anything else as she sat in the box of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hertz.

Others we glimpsed here and there about the Post and Paddock were the Charles McCullochs, the Warren Wrights, Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Francis R. Blossom, Mrs. Henry C. Bartholomay, the Otto Lehmans, and John R. Thompson Jr.

Channon-Guinness Wedding Today.

Today brings the fashionable London wedding of Lady Honor Guinness, daughter of the earl and countess of Iveagh, and Henry Channon, son of Harry Channon and Mrs. Westover Channon of Chicago. At 2:15 o'clock they will be married in St. Margaret's church, Westminster, and afterwards the guests will move on to the home of the bride's parents at 11 St. James's square for the reception.

Lady Patricia and Lady Brigid, the two sisters of Lady Honr, are to attend her as bridesmaids. The earl of Birkenhead, with whom Mr. Channon has been sharing his London dwelling, will serve him as best man. And instead of ushers, there will be eight little pages, all of them aristocrats. They are to include Prince Ivan Obelensky, Lord Windsor, the Hon. Robin Plunkett, Master Robin Warrender, Master John Julius Cooper, Master Gay Kindersley, Master Jonathan Guinness and Prince Bismarck. Two tiny flower girls will be Lady Caroline Blackwood and the Hon. Caroline Thynne.

After a honeymoon at a medieval "schloss" in Austria, Mr. Channon and his bride are to live in London.

Mary Horr Will Be Bride Today.

A wedding of interest to many Chicagoans is to be solemnized at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in Duluth when Miss Mary Horr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin A. Horr of that city, becomes the bride of the Rt. Rev. Granville Gaylord Bennett, the auxiliary bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Rhode Island. The Rev. Mr. Bennett is the brother of Miss Helen Bennett and her sister, Esteline, of Chicago.

The ceremony is to be read at the bride's home at 2131 Jefferson street, Duluth, and immediately following the young couple will leave for the east, stopping en route in Chicago. Miss Horr is the granddaughter of former Gov. Horr of Michigan.

The Thorne Donnelleys are naming their son, born Wednesday afternoon at "Beechwold," their Bardstown, Ky., residence, Thorne Barnes Donnelley. "Mother and son doing nicely" was the report from Bardstown yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum has sent out invitations to a few friends in the neighborhood of her home, "Longcroft," in South Haven, Mich., where she is spending the summer, to meet her house guests Sunday afternoon. Her guests will be the three members of the Japanese commission to A Century of Progress, Mmes. Kusenose, Sasaki, and Shimadzu, who are making their headquarters while in Chi-

Narcissa Swift Enjoys Races at Arlington

Free Ice Fund Gifts Increase; More Needed

Little by little the Free Ice Fund is gaining ground as loyal friends send their gifts. Yesterday nine contributions, totaling $50.75, reached the fund, making a grand total of $881.43. If this encouraging support continues the fund should strike the $1,000 mark by Sunday, and the first of a series of hurdles will be made.

The task will not be accomplished, however, until the thousands of ice tickets that have been distributed to the neediest families in the city have been paid for. These tickets were sent early in the season to grateful mothers. Babies in those homes are kept in good health because ice is delivered regularly to keep their milk fresh and sweet.

Yesterday contributors to the ice fund were:

FREE ICE FUND.

$5—Frank J. Loesch, Julia Hofeller.
$3.75—The Bookhouse for Children.
$3—In memory of Abe Hodes [the boys].
$2—Dorothy Cowen, Grace Courtney.
Total	$ 50.75
Previously acknowledged	830.68
Grand total	$881.43

Only two gifts were sent the Camp Algonquin Fund. One, $8.40, the amount to send a person to the camp for a two weeks' vacation, was from Louise C. Stanton, and $2.00 came from Grace Courtney. This gives the fund a grand total of $1,321.49. Contributions to both funds should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE Tribune tower.

History Drama Opens Centennial Exercises of Naperville Church

The centennial celebration of the First Congregational church of Naperville opened last night with a drama portraying the church's history. A large audience attended. The centennial services will be held next Sunday. Morning worship will be observed at 10:30 and the centennial sermon will be preached by the pastor, the Rev. Earl F. Collins. Friendly hour will be at 4 p. m., when there will be brief talks by former pastors. At 7:30 o'clock a community service will be held. The sermon will be preached by Dr. T. C. Hume, pastor of the New England Congregational church of Chicago.

The Naperville church was organized on July 13, 1833, by the Rev. Jeremiah Porter of Chicago to serve six settlements of the district which were without organized churches.

Father M. A. Mulcaire, Acting Head of N. D., Takes Year's Leave

Notre Dame, Ind., July 13.—[Special.]—The Rev. M. A. Mulcaire, C. S. C., vice president of the University of Notre Dame, will take a year's leave of absence starting this summer and will be replaced by the Rev. John O'Hara, C. S. C., prefect of religion. It was announced here tonight when the "Letters of Obedience" of the congregation of Holy Cross were read.

It was disclosed that the Holy Cross congregation will not have charge of St. Thomas college, St. Paul, Minn., next year. The Rev. Matthew A. Schumacher, C. S. C., president of St. Thomas, will return to Notre Dame to teach. The school is to revert to the archdiocese of St. Paul.

Father Mulcaire, who has been acting president of Notre Dame since late in March when the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president, became ill, is also chairman of the athletic board. He will leave soon for Ireland to visit his aged mother.

Father O'Hara was dean of the college of commerce from 1917 to 1924 and has been prefect of religion since.

Spectacle Bear Specimen Presented Field Museum

A specimen of the rare spectacle bear of northern South America has been presented to the Field museum by W. A. Olen and F. D. Hurley of Clintonville, Wis., it was announced yesterday. The animal will be mounted and added to the museum's exhibition of mammals. The spectacle bear is so called because of the white rings around its eyes.

Novelist Asks Sane Advance of Feminism

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

On the note that "this is your era and your hour" Novelist Margaret Culkin Banning of Duluth sounded the tocsin last night for the advance of feminism on a saner basis than has prevailed since women struggled for the ballot back in 1912. Rapt and intent, 3,000 women, jamming all available space in the grand ballroom and gallery of the Stevens hotel for the main event of the biennial convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, gave her attention and applause in generous measure.

Ranged down the long speakers' table, on either side of the microphone, sat one of the most distinguished assemblages of women ever gathered together in Chicago. National officers and local celebrities sat with them, the "famous firsts" to whom the occasion was dedicated. Judge Mary Bartelme, first woman jurist of the Juvenile court of Cook county, introduced them to the federation members.

One was "the lady from Montana" of other years, Jeanette Rankin, first woman to enter the halls of congress; Judge Florence E. Allen of Ohio, first and only woman Supreme court justice; Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer, first to enter the Illinois legislature; Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, first in the state house of representatives; Mary Bailey, first feminine U. S. district attorney east of the Rockies; Judge Camille Kelley of Memphis, first on the Juvenile court bench; Jean Wittich of Minnesota, first state budget commissioner; Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke, first collector of internal revenue; Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff of Pennsylvania, first county commissioner, and Annabel Matthews, first on the U. S. board of tax appeals.

Today, Mrs. Banning told her audience, she is unable to find any girl quite so fine as the type she remembers in 1912, just about to enter on a business career when the war broke out and disrupted her life and her destiny. From suffrage meetings she turned to war work, and "she never was quite the same girl again, for war leaves those subtle stains on everything it touches."

War made this 1912 girl's relationships with men "somewhat hysterical," she said. She had dreamed of making her own way, of equality with men, only to discover that the vote she was going to use for constructive purposes didn't count in the way she thought it would—that she herself didn't count as much as she had anticipated, and that instead of equality she had gained only raw emotions that left her the loser with her men friends. But in general in the last five years women have been finding their pace and their potentialities.

"Women who entered politics in those early days were not the ones who belonged there in many instances," Mrs. Banning related. "That 1912 girl discovered there is no field in which women have entered where the competition is quite so keen, the weapons so unfair, as politics. But now she knows the game. Women are entering politics now in a different way, and now they can get in by the front door. For the first time since feminism emerged in this country this is her hour for action if she has character and intellect.

"A few will distinguish themselves in politics. Women will never be the financial successes that men are, I

Roving Stage Troupe Basis of Film Plot

"The Constant Woman" Has Claire Windsor.

"THE CONSTANT WOMAN."
Produced by World Wide.
Directed by Victor Schertzinger.
Presented at Orchestra hall.

THE CAST.

Walt	Conrad Nagel
Lou	Leila Hyams
Jimmy	Tommy Conlon
Morlene	Claire Windsor
Beef	Stanley Fields
Radio Magnet	Alexander Carr
Bouncer	Fred Kohler

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"The Constant Woman" was adapted from a play—"Recklessness"—by Eugene O'Neill. So says a title. I never heard of the play myself and imagine it to have been a product of Mr. O'Neill's early days.

The film tells a moderately interesting story about a troupe of traveling actors called "The Underwood Players." They pitch a tent where the spirit moves them to pitch it and put on performances of well known plays. In one scene you'll recognize "Smilin' Through." In another—"Rain."

Walt Underwood is owner and manager and his wife is leading lady. The Underwoods have a son, Jimmy, some 12 years old. Both Walt and Jimmy worship the lovely mother.

One night Mrs. Underwood receives a telegram. It offers her a chance on Broadway, playing opposite an old admirer. She pleads to be allowed to go. Underwood gives in. She is replaced in the cast by Lou, a member of the company and a devoted friend of the three Underwoods. Yes, Lou is the "constant woman."

You see, Morlene Underwood's trip to New York is not as open and above board as it had seemed. Walt and Jim, appearing to visit her, run into sordid tragedy. The father protects the boy from knowledge that would have shattered his faith in a mother who has died disgracefully—but goes to pieces himself. . . .

Lou to the rescue. Lou and the devoted "prop" men.

Things break badly for all concerned for a long, long time, and the "constant woman" has hard sledding with Jimmy, who, misunderstanding a certain situation, hates her wholeheartedly for about four reels.

However—M. E.! The finale is melodramatic—full of sawdust, fire, water, and wild animals. [Three guesses!]

It was nice to see Claire Windsor again—even in such an unsympathetic rôle as that of Mrs. Underwood. She is, as ever, exquisite to look at. Her voice carries well, too. Can't see why she isn't in more movies.

Leila Hyams, badly made up, gives a sincere portrayal in the title rôle. Your hearts will go out to Tommy Conlon, as Jimmy, and you'll get a kick out of Stanley Fields as Beef, roughneck "prop" man. Other rôles are ably enough handled. Dialogue is in no way extraordinary and photography is poor. The picture has some suspense, one good free for all, and of laughs—maybe two.

See you tomorrow!

Places 'Album' with Best of Rinehart Tales

Many Mysteries Awaiting Vacationists.

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

IF YOUR idea of a pleasant holiday is a murder a day or rather a murder story a day which trebles [at least] the dose, here you are. All the boys and girls have been writing them lately and the supply is inexhaustible.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART.

We begin with that veteran, Mary Roberts Rinehart, who in "The Album" [Farrar & Rinehart] has produced one of her usual absorbing stories. It has a faint tinge of that real murder of so many years ago when Lizzie Borden did or did not wield her ax to such good purpose, but, like a slow swinging, weighted string, it twists into intricate kinks and then untwists to an adequate conclusion. It is Mrs. Rinehart's best for a long time.

Most entertaining both as a stunt and as a story is "Ask a Policeman" [Morrow & Co.], by a group of distinguished English writers of detective stories, each one of whom has a favorite detective of his or her own and each one of whom in this particular book employs the services of some one else's protagonist. It's extremely amusing spoofing and a very good yarn. John Rhode sets the scene, Dorothy Sayers, Anthony Berkeley, Helen Simpson, Gladys Mitchell and Milward Kennedy carry on, each doing his darnedest with the other's creations and literary style. If you know and like Lord Peter Winfey, Roger Sheringham et al. you have a very pleasant evening before you.

That prolific young Frenchman, Georges Simenon, has completed his 401st book and still seems unjaded. Why the numerous things that happen in "The Strange Case of Peter the Lett" [Covici, Friede] are allowed to happen is not the least mysterious thing about it and you get to worrying about good old Inspector Maigret and his methods of detection. In Paris Simenon is highly considered as a writer and perhaps translation vitiates a little his native grace. Of the four books that have come to us in English this seems the best, but his vaunted elegance and literary quality shine through the alien words but dimly. Phenomenal must be any man of 30 who has 400 books to his credit, but not necessarily distinguished. I'll read one in French and then let you know.

"Pascal's Mill" [Dutton] is one of Ben Ames Williams' grave stories that is mysterious and a little mystical. Mr. Williams is one of those writers who prove that mystery stories have their place in literature. Indeed in this day a taste for crime and detection may be indulged to the utmost without apology for discrimination or preference. A dozen writers of such books as this establish the claim.

One of them is Francis Beeding, whose "Emerald Clasp" [Little-Brown] is rather a sensational novel than a detective story. It is rather touching, too, as Francis Iles' and some of Mrs. Belloc Lowndes' stories are touching. It is recommended for its many qualities, not the least of which is skillful writing.

And, just to be abreast of the times, we must mention "Murder at the World's Fair" [Harper's], by Mary Fitch.

"Cries in the Night" [Dutton], by J. H. Wallis, is a thriller. You read it far into the night, wondering how a thesis so fantastic can be so realistically and agreeably unfurled. With all its horrid detail there is something rather charming about it and it is highly recommended.

Now for a list of good ones that will just about complete your fourteen day book shelf. "The Loose Rib" [H. C. Kinsey & Co., Inc.], by Austin Allen, is one of those super-crook stories that is well worth reading and introduces some very neat murders. "Death Whispers" [Viking Press], by Joseph B. Carr, is another one of those snooping trained nurse stories, but she's a nice nurse and the other people involved are queer but interesting and our murderer is highly placed. "Sleepers East" [Little-Brown], by Frederick Nebel, is hard boiled and unusual. You drive through it as the train which is its theater drives through the howling storm outside. As a story it's grand and as a movie it's bound to succeed.

"Baxter's Second Death" [Kinsey], by Ian Greig, is ingenious. It's rather a new twist in murder stories and very plausible. You are sure to like it. Another train story is "Death on the Limited" [William Morrow & Co.], by Roger Denbie. We in Chicago have always known that Manhattan Transfer is dangerous and this proves it. As in "Sleepers East," politics and journalism are all mixed up. Read it the next time you take the Pennsylvania to New York. You'll enjoy the local color.

To top off comes Eden Phillpotts' "Witches' Cauldron" [Macmillan], which is a sequel to "Bred in the Bone," that story of a ruthless woman who stopped at nothing to get what she wanted. This is a story of Avis Brydon's son Peter and as dour and intense as its forerunner.

for your trip to and from CHICAGO stop here. Swing out of traffic congestion. Avoid night driving over dangerous railroad crossings. Enjoy the comforts of this new, up-to-the-minute hotel. For the Fair stay out of the overcrowded roads—use the convenient restful electric direct to the World's Fair gates.

Grabel's Band Pleases Large Fair Audience

Another Concert Hampered by Poor Location.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Two concerts given at almost the same hour at A Century of Progress last evening demonstrated the vast difference between a prepared and an unprepared place where music is to be heard.

Victor Grabel and his Chicago concert band appeared on the Floating theater. Here is a theater where some thought has been given to its purpose. Although the seats for the audience extend to a great width, they are fairly well cut off from outside noises, and the theater is equipped with amplifiers. As a result the music sounded well, and this though the amplifying system had an attack of temperament and went a bit hoarse.

Mr. Grabel conducted operatic numbers, a Strauss waltz and many cheerful encores of Sousa marches and the like to the great apparent pleasure of a large audience, one of them, "Hail to the Spirit of Liberty," getting a setting of fireworks all its own from the other side of the lagoon.

In the court of the Hall of Science a vocal quartet made up of Eunice Steen, soprano; Ada Paggi, contralto; Charles Sears, tenor, and Edward Davies, baritone, gave an operatic concert. Here, however, they were in a vast space with plenty of outside noises and no amplification. Consequently a highly talented and able set of singers through no fault of their own sounded thin and ineffective, and the audience, large at the beginning of the program, grew steadily less as it went on. It would not be a bad idea if A Century of Progress desires to continue with such music to make some sort of a fitting place for it.

Dorothy Crost and Berenice Jacobson, who play music for two pianos in a highly agreeable fashion, did so again yesterday morning at the Punch and Judy theater. They are an alert, accurate, and persuasive pair of artists, and their talents shine with equal glamour whether they are playing as well known a tune as the "Blue Danube" waltz or something more abstruse.

Having paid their respects to classics by playing Bach's "Sicilienne" and a fantasia and fugue by the same composer, they moved to music of a lighter character, two pleasing bits of Debussy, a Ravel excerpt, a waltz by Edward Collins, Lee Pattison's setting of the "Arkansas Traveler," and the aforementioned "Blue Danube" among others. In selection and performance it was a program altogether pleasing to the sense of hearing.

Gabriel Grovlez, conductor during two different seasons of the French répertoire at the Chicago opera and now one of the leading operatic conductors in Paris, is in Chicago for a few days at the behest of the French government. A reception will be tendered him at the Cordon club this afternoon.

A Negro chorus of a thousand voices will sing at 8 o'clock tonight under the direction of James A. Mundy in the court of the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress. Preliminary to the concert a parade will start from 59th street and South Park way at 5 p. m., moving north to 37th street, thence to Michigan avenue and to Garfield boulevard.

Son Is Born to Wife of Dr. John Timothy Stone

Word was received from Estes Park, Colo., yesterday that an eight pound baby boy had been born in the Presbyterian hospital there to Mrs. John Timothy Stone, wife of the president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary and pastor emeritus of the Fourth Presbyterian church. The Rev. Dr. Stone was married in June, 1932, to Miss Marie Briggs, an active worker in the church. They have been spending the summer in Colorado.

Dress Designed with Scarf That Stays in Place

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Many women find it difficult to arrange a scarf on their dresses, so this one should be a favorite—for it is made to "stay put." It's stitched into and is part of this smart dress. Silk crêpes, voiles, linen, and many other materials are suitable.

The pattern, No. 2608, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Functions being arranged for officers of the Italian air armada headed by Gen. Balbo during their visit here next week, include a reception in the White House by the President; a dinner at the Italian embassy on the night of their arrival; and a dinner at which Secretary of War Dern and Secretary of the Navy Swanson will be joint hosts on the second day of their visit. They will spend a day in New York after their stay in Chicago and will come here from New York by train.

Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings entertained a company of twelve at dinner tonight at the Congressional Country club for Mr. and Mrs. Spruille Braden of New York, who are guests of Benjamin Cohen, chargé d'affaires of Chile, at the embassy.

New Lipstick Is Just Right for Redheads

Rusty, Glowing Shade Wins Flaming Shopper.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Several sultry sonnets have been penned to red-heads in poetic appreciation of their flaming locks that flare like welcome beacons in every crowd, but the last thing in titian tributes is the red-head lipstick!

A lipstick designed expressly for red haired sirens . . . a rusty, red, glowing shade that is as different and interesting as the red headed gals who will buy it as fast as it can be wrapped for a place in the handbag.

This new lipstick comes in a distinctive maroon colored enamel container with a trick twisting device that allows you to use the flattering stuff to the last layer. If you are not lucky enough to be able to brag about a flaming crown of glory, these lipsticks will make grand gifts.

Other lipsticks that come in sets of six are something else to rave about . . . pamper yourself in a low moment and own them. Even though a single lipstick is almost a tradition, its really silly not to have this new ensemble of six. For instance, these new lipsticks do double duty, for there are six shades to be worn with smart new colors.

You can use these indelible lipsticks with all the various colored frocks of your wardrobe . . . a rich, flame tint with costumes of green, wood brown and red of the same shed. The same color is perfect with white or red hair. Another shade is especially good with smart all black clothes, equally becoming to either brunette or blonde. There is another of deep raspberry tint, almost wine, that achieves a dashing, daring makeup. Yet another with a hint of violet that is made for blue frocks and hats, and the last shade of deep red that brunettes will wear with all dark colors.

It's a luxurious idea this ensemble of six, but a most practical and sane stunt after you have recovered from the shock of owning six lipsticks at once. And it's a good idea as a guest room luxury, too!

Sally's Guests Have Big Day as Cubs Win

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

"Have some more popcorn, Johnny?"

"O, no, Miss Brown—I can't—I gotta watch!" And when a freckle faced youngster of ten refuses popcorn you know he's really interested in something else. Most of us managed to keep our eyes glued on the Cubs at the same time we were enjoying the popcorn, but Johnny couldn't—his hero, Lon Warneke, was pitching.

And the tall, lanky player really tossed that ball around yesterday. He pitched the team to its eighth straight victory and won his eleventh game of the season, 4 to 1.

And you should have heard the kids go for Hack Wilson. He's now with Brooklyn but did he get a hand!

My guests enjoyed every bit of the game, but the perfect touch to the day was when the players noticed our presence, and the much admired "Gabby" Hartnett waved. Not one of my guests could have asked for more—and if Mr. Veeck could have seen the delighted faces on 100 youngsters, I know he'd feel well repaid for his generosity. We all say, loudly and gratefully—"Thank you, sir!"

Evening Frock of Rosy Tulle for Debutante

BY SUZETTE BARILLET.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The debutante has no need of rose colored spectacles to help her take an optimistic view of her future this summer. Not only is the style horoscope literally, and liberally, sprinkled with rose-pinks of all shades—palest tea rose petal, blotting paper pink, bright shrimp rose, azalea pink, etc., being the leading color for frocks and accesories—but also the new bouffant styles, with almost crinoline skirts made of yards and yards of crisp fabric, like tulle, net, organza, and taffeta, that are crowding out the slinky silhouette, are surely "made to order" for the debutante. The older woman may get away with them but the young girl is certain to look her superlative best in them.

The new evening frock in our drawing, from Lucien Lelong, is a veritable debutante's dream. It's in rose-pink tulle with the voluminous skirt accordion plaited all round, below the hip yoke, except for a practical, plain flaring back panel (to sit down on sans crushing). There's another tricky point about this frock, too: The edges of the plaits are embroidered in over-and-over stitched lines of rose silk thread, absolutely preventing them from getting "out of plait"—up to now the great drawback of accordions.

The bodice is plain and easy fitted with a plain tulle band belt and there's a little embroidered accordion plaited tulle cape, mounted on a round plain tulle yoke, to give the new angelic sloping shoulder line. The flattering shoulder flowers are made of rose pink and white coq feathers. The skirt, as you see, just touches the floor all round and it's worn over a rustly taffeta slip in the same rosy tone.

Franco-American Card Game Ends in Dispute

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—A dispute over the dealing of a hand terminated the Franco-American Plafond match here last night six hands short of the arranged schedule. The American team, captained by Ely Culbertson, was leading by 142 points at the end of the 102d hand when an error in the previous hand was discovered.

Self-Persuaded Blondes Tell Why They're So

They All Had Reasons for Bleaching Hair.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Our intrepid Inquiring Reporter held up six beautiful blondes one day recently to inquire why they bleached their hair. You may want to know, too.

Said one: "Because I didn't like the color as it was wished on me." Reason enough, we claim, for the change. You don't have to go through life now with nondescript hair of no poetic tribute. A wash, a rinse, a bleach, or a tint—and if it makes you feel happier, why not?

One said her hair was such a vivid red it attracted too much attention and so she bleached. Now, that's a vagary not so understandable. We had the notion that the bleaching was done primarily to attract attention. It just goes to show you don't always know what goes on under the lady's hat. Probably one of the sensitive Reds who couldn't take the "Bricktop, White Horse" joke.

One said she heard so much about gentlemen preferring the blonde princesses she just must taste the preference. And so her head went into the bleaching pot, with all round satisfactory results to date. That kind of reasoning, now, we do understand perfectly.

Neither blonde nor brunette, but a mud shade for which no nice name has been invented drove another Miss to the peroxide, or white henna. A fifth with motion picture ambitions thought the sizzling lights were kinder to a blonde, as many of our motion picture directors agree with her.

One blonde—yet not as bright a blonde as she would be—took to platinumizing the better to distinguish her as one of the preferred sisters. This reason was seconded by another young woman, content with bleaching the negative tones, not platinumizing, and thereby earning the admiration hoped for.

We hear tell that red tresses are due to displace this blonde preference. Yet, we wonder! With the perfect reasons established for choosing blonde locks, what can the Reds have to offer?

cago in Mrs. Baum's house on North State parkway.

The commissioners are motoring out from Chicago to South Haven tomorrow afternoon to spend that night at "Longcroft," together with several other guests from the city.

Mrs. Paul J. Healy and Mrs. Carleton Holdrege, both former Chicagoans who now live in Paris, arrived in the city yesterday and are at the Lake Shore Drive hotel for a fortnight's stay. A sad mission brought them here—the death of Mrs. Healy's mother—so they are not doing much but seeing relatives and close friends. Mrs. Healy is a sister of Mrs. John E. Baker of Lake Forest.

Arden Shore Picnic to Be Held July 21.

Every one interested in Arden Shore is asking to "ring" July 21 and save the day for the association's annual picnic and midsummer entertainment at the Lake Bluff fresh air camp. There's to be a board meeting in the morning, with Mrs. Kingman Douglass presiding; a box luncheon at noon under the gorgeous big shade trees, and then the usual frolic arranged by the children of the camp, under the direction of their councilors.

Last Monday a number of Winnetkans motored out to the camp and had a picnic at the beach house, which is their gift to the association. Mrs. Arthur L. Mitchell is chairman of the Winnetka Arden Shore town committee.

The camp opened two weeks ago, with 480 boys and girls and mothers in attendance. Although this is 100 fewer than in seasons gone by [owing to the curtailed budget], the scale of educational and health activity is being carried on just the same.

An attractive visitor in town is Miss Helen Ray Potter, who has come from Providence, R. I., to see the Fair. She is staying with one of last winter's most popular debutantes, Miss Helen Marie Castle, daughter of the Frederick L. McNallys. As Miss Potter attended Miss Wheeler's school she has a good many former schoolmates here.

Visit of Hills Now Uncertain.

A wire from Mr. and Mrs. Patrick C. Hill has left the junior John R. Winterbothams a bit up in the air, for they were expecting the Hills over this week-end and the wire carried the news of the uncertainty of the Hills' departure from Fort Worth. At any rate, the former Ginny Carpenter and her husband may still arrive for a visit of two days or so before Mrs. Winterbotham takes her son, John III., and niece, Katharine Buchanan, to her summer home at Franconia, N. H., as she plans to do next Wednesday or Thursday, to be gone until fall.

The arrival of Miss Janet Busby's younger brother, Jack, home from school definitely put a crimp in Puddles' style—Puddles is a white rabbit to which Miss Busby and her mother, Mrs. Leonard A. Busby, have become much attached. Puddles has been given away because young Mr. Busby refused to sleep with it. However, the animal would have had to be disposed of in a few days, for the Busbys are leaving soon for Nantucket for the rest of the summer.

Leeds Mitchell Jr. to Sail Rhine.

Leeds Mitchell Jr., who sailed Tuesday on the Bremen, will enjoy a fascinating two months of travel in Germany, which includes sailing down the Rhine with two former schoolmates of his, Thomas and Robert Greenough, both young Englishmen. Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, his mother; Miss Margaret Mitchell, his sister, are in Nantucket until October. Mr. Mitchell expects to join his wife and daughter there for a few weeks as soon as he can get away for business.

Mr. and Mrs. Vail R. Bucklin have gone east, as is their custom, to their lovely old farm at Charlotte, Vt. Their son, Rhodes, will be in an eastern camp. Their daughter, Miss Gene Bucklin, is staying with her fiancé, Frederick Hurd, and his parents, the Ellis R. Hurds, in Hinsdale for the next ten days, and then she will join her family in Vermont. Miss Bucklin's cousin and aunt and uncle, Miss Helen La Chance and Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. La Chance, are all at the Belmont hotel and plan to be in Chicago for the summer instead of going west to their California ranch.

Felix Howland, son of Prof. and Mrs. George C. Howland of the University of Chicago, has sailed for Persia, where he will spend the next year studying languages. Prof. and Mrs. Howland are in Maine.

Two Girls Drive to Harbor Point.

Miss Marion Gordon and Miss Caryl Bloomingston left yesterday for the Gordons' summer home at Harbor Point, Mich. Miss Bloomingston is going up for a week or so, but Miss Gordon will be away for the rest of the summer. Miss Martha Lee, daughter of the T. George Lees, drove to the Point with William Fellowes Wednesday to spend a long week-end with Miss Jean Hyman and her parents, the Robert W. Hymans.

Mr. and Mrs. Haldeman Finnie and their four children, Janet, David, Donald, and Robert, have arrived in Lake Forest to visit Mrs. Finnie's brother and his wife, the C. McPherson Holts. Mr. Finnie was here for just a week, but Mrs. Finnie and the children will remain until Aug. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Haines of New York, formerly of Chicago, have closed their penthouse in New York and have taken a cottage at Annisquam, Mass., for the summer. They expect to visit Mrs. Haines' sister, Mrs. William P. Martin, some time in the fall.

Mrs. Frank R. Meadowcraft has left for the east to spend the rest of the summer at her home in Wiscasset.

Mrs. Ralph H. Hobart is returning to her Winnetka home this morning with her daughter, Miss Barbara Hobart. Mrs. Hobart went abroad a month ago to accompany her daughter from the school in Switzerland.

As soon as John B. Hammond returned from the hospital a fortnight ago after an appendectomy Mrs. Hammond (the former Betty Williamson) come down with the same illness. She submitted to an operation and is now well on the way to recovery. The Hammonds have given up their home on Monaghan road in Peterboro, Ont., and are here (we hope for good) with Mrs. Hammond's mother, Mrs. Charles S. Williamson.

Fashionables from the world over are at Chicago's hotels. Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid of New York have taken rooms at the Blackstone. Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Washington and her nieces, Miss Jane Aley and Miss Mary Louise Durham of Louisville; Miss Alice Rockeweller of Cleveland, and Mrs. John I. Clark of Norfolk, Va., are all at the Drake hotel.

Mural Artists of Fair to Be Guests at Tea

Reception to Be Held in Trustees' Lounge.

Cards were received yesterday by President and Mrs. Dawes of A Century of Progress and the art and artists' committee on entertainment of the Exposition for a tea next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Trustees' Lounge for the artists who painted the murals there. Not all the artists will be there, however, for we know at least three who are away—Miss Eleanor Holden, who is at Black Point, Conn., at her family's summer place; Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr., who has gone to their farm in Vermont for the summer, and John Storrs, who sailed last Saturday for France.

But there still will be enough special guests to make a showing, for, as far as we know, Mrs. Helen Walker Szukalska, Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins, Miss Frances Badger and Mrs. J. Stewart Harvey are in the city or near enough to attend the party.

Frances Parkinson Keyes of Washington and New Hampshire is to be the distinguished guest at the fortnightly luncheon of the writers' group of the social functions committee of the Fair in the Trustees' Lounge today.

There were 400 persons, mostly women, lunching in the Trustees' Lounge yesterday, four hundred who were there to attend the authors' breakfast of the National League of American Pen Women.

The toastmistress at the luncheon was Mrs. Clara Keck Heflebower, president of the organization, and presiding was Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Chicago congress chairman. After luncheon a musical program of compositions by Louise Harrison Snodgrass of Cincinnati was given with Mrs. Snodgrass at the piano.

Some of those at the luncheon were Mr. Logan, representing the Art Institute; ex-Gov. and Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio, Dr. and Mrs. Allen D. Albert, and Dr. and Mrs. Fay Cooper Cole of A Century of Progress; Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, Miss Harriet Monroe, and Chauncey McCormick.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the members of the league attended a musical in the Illinois Host building arranged by Mrs. Louis E. Yager for the American Artists' Salon under the auspices of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs. Today there is to be a poetry luncheon at noon in the south ballroom of the Stevens hotel and tonight there will be a musical and reception, composers' evening, at 8:30 o'clock in the north ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

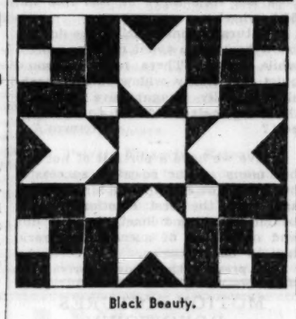
"Black Beauty" Often Seen at Quilt Exhibits



Black Beauty.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Black Beauty" is an old pattern, often exhibited in antique collections, but the history of the design seems to have been lost, or is at least hidden in obscurity. Perhaps one of our readers who is a quilt lover can supply its history.

For a quilt pattern of this design send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

Wise Parent Prepares for Behavior Woes

Studies Child's Growth by Phases.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Please send me your 'Don't Touch' leaflet," writes a loving aunt. "My sister's child is 10 months old and I've already found that what works one day won't work the next. I think we'll need this soon."

Preparedness is a good motto for mothers. If you are having your first baby it is a great help to know a little of what lies ahead and how you are going to meet it. To know, for instance, that the baby will be eager to touch everything, and that he should be eager to touch everything, and to know what to do about it six months ahead of time is wisdom. This knowledge you may gain intuitively or through reading. As this aunt says, a way of managing which works one week may not work at all the next when the baby has developed so that he is going through a different phase.

It helps, too, to be prepared ahead of time for the age when the small boy or girl feels his own power enough to disobey. It helps greatly to become acquainted several years ahead of time with the possibilities of change that adolescence brings, and not to be caught unwise and unaware of how to be of most help to the child who passes with stress and turmoil through these often difficult years.

It helps to be prepared, either by thinking or reading, to answer simply and frankly the questions young children ask about where babies come from, about their own bodies, and to settle your own attitude once and for all on the subject of sex education.

Our booklets and reading references for some of these phases include "Don't Touch," "Obedience," "Patience," "Adolescent Reading References," and "Sex Education." A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring any one of these to you.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

AN EASY IDENTIFICATION.

Three men were picked up yesterday in a floating seaplane by the guard boat Reliance. They had radioed shore two days previously, stating they had been forced down, but apparently did not know their position, so attempts at rescue had been unsuccessful until Capt. Cowan, commander of the Reliance, had spotted the plane off the Virginia coast.

He found two of the men unconscious and the third in a delirium. Brought back to shore as quickly as possible, the two unconscious men died. The third was still unable to talk coherently when Prof. Fordney was asked to help in their identification. He learned they were Charles Diamond, Harold Sellstrom, and Christian Vollmer. But who was who?

Among their papers was an unsigned agreement of sale of the plane from the owner to Harold Sellstrom.

The professor's investigations of the mystery led to the discovery that the three were soldiers of fortune attempting a secret flight from America to Madrid. He also learned the following:

Diamond was recently divorced.

The surviving member thereon threatened to quit the trip, but as he was the only experienced pilot, Diamond prevailed upon him to come along.

Diamond also said that if the owner continued his tirade the pilot was liable to throw him out of the plane when they got over the ocean.

With only the above information, Fordney quickly identified the living man.

WHO WAS HE?

think, but it is woman's job to show the world that there are other values besides the monetary one. We are wiser about men than we were—we have learned to let them show off.

"Every woman ought to read a newspaper every day, and not only one, but many, if women in general are to advance. And I want to add that I believe what women are doing to enhance their charm and personality is as valuable as anything they are doing in an economic way."

Miss Jessamine Hoagland of Chicago presided at the dinner, at which Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Thomas Marshall, widow of the former vice president of the United States, and other widely known women were present.

Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman of Richmond, Va., was virtually assured a second term as president of the federation, as she was renominated for that office and no opponent appeared in the field. Election will take place this morning, with Miss Charl Williams of Washington, D. C., legislative secretary of the National Education association, slated for the office of first vice president.

Other national officers whose nomination is deemed equivalent to election are Dr. Florence May Morse of Los Angeles, professor of merchandising at the University of Southern California, as second vice president; Judge Allen as third vice president; Miss Earline White of Jackson, Miss., first woman postmaster in the Capitol building at Washington, recording secretary; Miss Marjorie Shuler of New York, staff member of the Christian Science Monitor, as corresponding secretary, and Mrs. E. Pearl Warwick of Chicago, executive of the Household Finance corpororation, as treasurer.

*SCIENTISTS NOW EXPLAIN

"This soap contains natural elements skin needs to stay youthful"

SOFT... exquisitely smooth... youthful skin! The heart's desire of every woman! For years the lovely screen stars have used this beauty soap because it keeps their skin so lovely... so young-looking.

Now scientists explain WHY it is such a wonderful aid in keeping skin youthful.

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Young skin is rich in certain precious elements, put there by Nature herself; but, as years go by, these elements are gradually lost. Then skin ages, grows dull, unattractive.

But scientists now tell you, Lux Toilet Soap checks the loss of these precious elements from the skin. For, they find, it actually contains such elements... is completely free from harshness, readily soluble. No wonder this soap is so remarkable an aid in keeping skin soft, young-looking, they declare.

To guard their priceless complexions, 9 out of 10 screen stars depend on this fragrant, white soap. Start today to keep your skin young-looking with this scientific care.

"Now I know why screen stars use this soap!" says Helen Simis, of Phoenix, Arizona. "I took their advice and tried Lux Toilet Soap—it keeps my skin so smooth and youthful-looking that I wouldn't think of using any other."

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Swell Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training rather than tailoring skill. Maitland, a crooked gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough, unknowingly being used as decoy. Maitland plots to trick Rhoda out of a fortune. Garrick exposes to Rhoda, before Maitland and his gang, their crooked card tricks. Garrick is overpowered by Schewan, Maitland's chief, but defeats Schewan's purpose of burning him alive in his car. Maitland has Rhoda adjudged insane. Garrick knows she has been administered a drug which will produce temporary madness. Having no proof of guilt, he determines to settle the matter in his own way. Garrick learns from his solicitor that if Rhoda can gain and maintain her liberty for twenty-eight days she will be considered legally sane. Garrick undertakes a bold rescue. He escapes to London with Rhoda. At night they burgle their way into a private boat house on the Thames. Alf, a farmhand, out of work, finds their hideout. Garrick hires him as a helper and buys his silence. Next day Garrick returns to his home, where his life is threatened by the gang, who have broken into the house. One of the gang is shot before the rest make their getaway and Garrick is suspected by the police. On his way that night to join Rhoda at the boat house, Garrick aids a young woman in distress. A policeman recognizes him and thinks the young woman is Miss Fairclough. She is released at the police station, but Garrick is held. He manages to break away. Garrick with Rhoda and Alf are on a boat on the Thames when a police launch stops them. Garrick locks the policemen in the cabin of his boat and Alf and Rhoda escape in the police launch.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

RISKING TROUBLE.

"Open the door!"

The door shook under the combined weight of the two policemen.

Garrick swung the head round—for, a mile up the river was Teddington lock, which would stop him. He gave her full throttle and ran at good speed under Richmond bridge, heading for London.

"Sergeant! Sergeant—listen to me a minute, please!" shouted Garrick. "If you batter on that door any more I shall jump overboard and leave the engine running and then you'll crash and be drowned. Keep quiet and nothing unpleasant will happen—for you. We're just going for a little run while Miss Fairclough gets safely away."

The threat was effective for the battering of the door ceased.

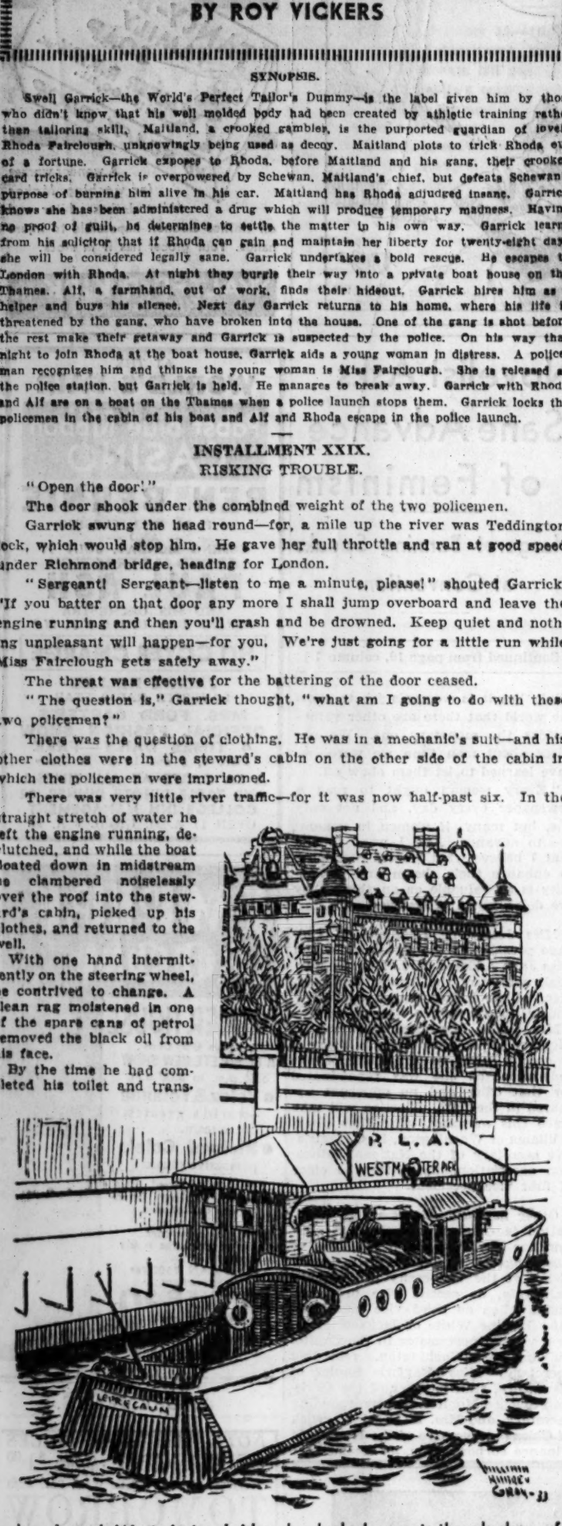
"The question is," Garrick thought, "what am I going to do with these two policemen?"

There was the question of clothing. He was in a mechanic's suit—and his other clothes were in the steward's cabin on the other side of the cabin in which the policemen were imprisoned.

There was very little river traffic—for it was now half-past six. In the straight stretch of water he left the engine running, declutched, and while the boat floated down in midstream he clambered noiselessly over the roof into the steward's cabin, picked up his clothes, and returned to the well.

With one hand intermittently on the steering wheel, he contrived to change. A clean rag moistened in one of the spare cans of petrol removed the black oil from his face.

By the time he had completed his toilet and transferred his "portable treasure," still consisting of more than three thousand pounds, he cleared Westminster bridge and looked up at the shadow of Scotland Yard and grinned.



As he cleared Westminster bridge he looked up at the shadow of Scotland Yard and grinned.

Already he had seen that there was only one thing to be done with his very embarrassing captives. He drove straight at Temple steps, half a mile below Westminster bridge, and tied up.

Having secured the boat, he sprang lightly on to the steps, elbowed his way through the idlers and leaped on a passing tram. At the first stop he got off and lost himself in the crowds.

Presently he stepped into a telephone box, rang Scotland Yard and asked for Detective Inspector Lanport.

"Garrick speaking. Good evening, Mr. Lanport! I'm sorry to have to complain again, but a couple of policemen have been trying to arrest me. You realize why, of course. It's that faked murder charge of yours."

"I can't discuss that again, Mr. Garrick," answered Lanport. "You've no right to ring me up like this. But as you have done so, you might just as well tell me which police station you're speaking from, for I shall have to come and fetch you, you know."

"Police station!" echoed Garrick. "I'm speaking from a public telephone."

"I thought you said——"

O, no! I said they tried to arrest me. The attempt was a failure, Mr. Lanport. But about these two policemen——"

"Unless they're from the department, they're nothing to do with me. And, besides, they were doing their duty!"

"Exactly! And for that very reason, Mr. Lanport, you will not, I hope, leave them in the lurch. It went to my heart to lock them up. But, believe me, there was no alternative. You must blame yourself for their sufferings. That false charge——"

"You locked them up!" gasped Lanport.

Garrick walked on to Piccadilly circus. In the subway he rang up his own number and asked to speak to Richards, his chauffeur.

"Hullo, Richards—they haven't hanged me yet! I want you to meet me tonight. But I'm not going to tell you where, because this telephone is probably tapped. And when you come you must shake off any one who appears to be following you. You know how to do that?"

"Trust me, sir! But if you don't tell me where I'm to meet you——"

"Listen, Richards! On one occasion when you were driving me the police stopped you for careless driving and very nearly took your name."

"Yes, sir!" said Richards indignantly. "And it wasn't carelessness at all. You said so yourself at the time, sir."

"Ah! You remember it, I see. You remember just where it happened?"

"Shan't never forget it, sir! If that taxi hadn't swung out from——"

"Shut up, Richards! Meet me at the spot where the taxi swung out in front of you and caused all the trouble—in an hour from now. Come on your motor bike—and wear your goggles."

"Right you are sir!" sniggered Richards. "I didn't see what you was driving at at first. I'll shake 'em off, sir."

The memorable slur on Richards' professional pride had occurred half way up the Strand—and it was here that they met an hour later. Richards pushed the motor cycle into a side street, then Garrick gave his orders.

"I can't go to any public place except a postoffice—and I've been into a postoffice and written a check, dated a week ago—so you can say I gave it to you before the trouble started. It's made out for three hundred.

"Cash the check as soon as the banks open tomorrow, then go to the second hand market in Tottenham Court road and buy me a covered van with license running. Get a nearly new one if you can and try it well out. Then run it into a garage—not ours. Then go to the stores and fit out the inside as a sort of bed-sitting room. Get all the necessary equipment and—er—a looking glass and so on. Get decent stuff, Richards."

"I quite understand, sir! I'll get my young lady to help with that part."

"Your young lady!" echoed Garrick thoughtfully. "Does she trust you as much as I do, Richards?"

"She trusts me all right, sir! And she isn't the kind that asks questions."

"Splendid! If you're sure of that, Richards, ask your young lady to imagine that she is going to live in that van for three weeks—and that she steps into the van with only those clothes she's standing up in. Ask her to buy everything in the way of clothes that she thinks she would need—remembering she's going camping, of course—and ask her further to imagine that she's exactly 5 feet 7 inches high and of medium build. Put it all in the van and—bring the van here to this spot at this time tomorrow night."

"All correct, sir—at my end!" said Richards, and hesitated. "The only thing is—you've never camped out on the road like that before, have you?"

"No."

"Well, I have. That's how I spent my last holiday—with a couple of friends. And you don't half have a lot of trouble over where you're going to park for the night. You have to fix it with a farmer first—and he has a good look at you and your party to see if he likes you. Then ten to one the police come along—ask you if you've got the farmer's permission and give you another look over. And if—if there's a lady in the party, sir, there's bound to be trouble."

"I know there is. But I shall have to risk it. There's trouble for me pretty well everywhere just now. And now, if you don't mind, I'll borrow your motor bike—and your goggles."

Child Actress Works Despite Broken Arm

Cora Sue Collins Is Plucky Youngster.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 13.—[Special.]—Little Cora Sue Collins is a brave youngster. The day before she started her scenes in "Woman in the Chair" she broke her arm in two places, while roller skating. Few knew until the film was completed that the splints were taken off her arm each day before she went on the set, and replaced as soon as her work was done.

Scenes in Warner Brothers' "I Loved a Woman," costarring Eddie Robinson and Kay Francis, show a luncheon of meat packers at the Chicago City club, in 1901, at which business operations affecting prices of beef were being ironed out. At the moment comes news of President McKinley's assassination at the Buffalo Pan-American exposition. Included in the group of actors around the table, representing the powers in the packing industry, are Robinson and four prominent directors of former years—all now subordinate actors: John E. Ince, Ed J. Lesaint, Howard Hickman, and William Worthington.

Charlie Chaplin's studio representatives are seeking heavy reductions in tax assessments on his studio. In addressing the county authorities in Los Angeles they asked that the electrical equipment be assessed at $800 instead of the $20,000 and that the taxable value of Charlie's sets be sliced from $2,000 to $500.

Constance Cummings, who was brought to Hollywood by Producer Sam Goldwyn, to play with Ronald Colman on the United Artists lot, but who was let out by Goldwyn without getting the part is going to give Sam a demonstration of what a mistake he made, every day in the near future. Not long after Sam let Constance go, Harold Lloyd brought her back to United Artists, where Lloyd, like Goldwyn, makes his pictures, and Conny's film with Harold, titled "Movie Crazy," made a big hit.

Now, the new Twentieth Century corporation, which also produces at United Artists, is bringing Miss Cummings all the way back from England under a long term starring contract, and Goldwyn will see a lot of profit walking right by his door every time Constance appears.

Paramount started the screen version of "Design for Living" early this week with Fredric March doing the rôle which Alfred Lunt had on the New York stage and Gary Cooper in the Noel Coward rôle. But when actual shooting began this morning, the casting was reversed, Cooper doing the Lunt rôle, Mirian Hopkins, of course, stays in the Lynn Fontanne rôle.

Jay Whidden's night club orchestra has been hired for Joan Crawford's "Dancing Lady" at MGM. Arthur Jarrett, who soon is to wed Eleanor Holm, Olympic games swimming beauty who has just signed a movie contract, plays a singing musical comedy juvenile in the same film.

Lonely Working Woman Wishes to Make Friends

Finds Herself Dissatisfied as Middle Age Nears.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"A business woman craves your advice. She is between 35 and 40, normal and healthy, and considered good looking. So much of her life has been spent in and for business that she has not taken time to play and now finds herself somewhat lonely.

"She is a midwest product, has spent all her time in the big city, going from her apartment to business and from business to her apartment. Naturally all those of opposite sex around her age that she has met are married. She has many invitations out with married folk, but when she goes she feels more or less like the fifth wheel.

"Naturally conservative, she doesn't know how to go about meeting worthwhile males. There must be some quiet and lonely widowers and bachelors equally unaggressive suffering the same malady. What do you suggest? HOPEFUL."

Above we have a portrait of not one but many of our so-called successful business women, approaching middle age, with the best emotional years behind them, and lonely for the one and only kind of success the world has to offer women.

We present the above portrait as a warning to younger women in business rather than as a problem easy of solution for the older one. There is no easy solution for the latter. It's a matter of luck, now, whether she'll meet a man of the intelligence and position her own success demands. It might happen on a cruise, say, or on a vacation far from her present environment. Or she might even have the luck to meet a lone male at one of the married folk affairs to which she is invited.

But the element of luck plays the major part when one gets on in years. When you're younger luck is on your side oftener in these emotional interests. So we argue with you younger business women to promise yourselves that you'll never get that habit of going from apartment to business, business to apartment, relying entirely on your work to supply you your emotional life.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

SUSIE: IT'S THE DRY HAIRED people who suffer inconveniences after a permanent, but the danger is now alleviated with hair reconditioning treatments which a great many of the hairdressers give. A permanent would solve your oily hair problem beautifully.

ALICIA: ANY RESPECTABLE young lady is now permitted to wear all shades of nail polish, but it's best to use the ox blood shade for dressier types of clothes. The rose shades are better for sports clothes.

D. D.: WITH YOUR FAIR COLORing you can use a soft shade of gray as a contrast to the shades of blue you like best. White also is good for you.

NEW NAZI DECREE BARS JEWS FROM 'LABOR FRONT'

Members Must Prove They Are Aryans.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 13.—The Association of German Employés, a branch of the national "labor front," decreed today that only Aryans would hereafter be accepted as members. All present members must also sign an affidavit certifying that they are "of Aryan origin." Unless they can show that their parents and grandparents were non-Jewish they will be expelled.

All other branches of the labor front are preparing to enact similar measures. As membership in the front is virtually necessary to obtain a job the new decree cuts drastically into the remaining rights of Jews in Germany.

Matter Is Complicated.

The matter is complicated by the fact that the Jews have been paying dues to various labor organizations to obtain pensions and other insurance benefits. Financial readjustment of their claims is expected to be difficult. According to one source, the authorities are contemplating refunds only to Jews "who can prove they are needy."

Later, it was said, Jewish employés may be permitted to form their own relief organizations.

The Association of National German Jews issued a statement today asking all Jews who feel more Jewish than German to leave the country.

Nazi Church Group in Setback.

Meanwhile the Nazi German Christians suffered a setback today in their struggle to gain control of the Protestant church in Germany. General church elections were ordered for July 23, at which time Protestants will decide for themselves who shall guide them. It is also understood that all federal and state commissars who have recently been appointed to govern the church by the Nazis will be dismissed tomorrow.

Calling of the elections constitutes a victory for the non-Nazi Protestants, led by the Rev. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, who was recently elected reich bishop only to be ousted for the Rev. Ludwig Mueller, the Nazi choice. The Nazis have been opposing elections.

The elections will settle the fate of the new Protestant constitution and will name delegates to the national synod and members of the local church boards. It is seen as a compliance with President von Hindenburg's recent injunction to Chancellor Hitler to bring about peace between the Nazi and non-Nazi Protestant factions.

Hitler Speaks.

Hitler today delivered an address in which he declared that the aim of the Nazi government is to strengthen the private spirit of enterprise and efficiency to its highest potentialities.

Kurt Schmitt, who recently replaced Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist leader, as minister of economics, chimed in with an address to a group of industrialists in which he stressed the desire to bolster private initiative.

"Reviving the labor market should be an affair of private business," he said, "but as things are new, a start is needed. The government is giving this start with its labor program.

"Big business, down to each single household, must be made to feel it is again worth while to take risks and show initiative. My ministry will not dictate what is to be done, but it will make sure that only schemes useful to the whole nation are carried out."

August Abel Arrested.

August Abel, former member of the Young German order, was arrested by state secret police in Berlin today. Abel attracted world attention in 1913 when he escaped from the French foreign legion in Morocco and was sentenced to death by the French when he was caught 100 yards from the German consulate at Casablanca. This, however, was rated as German soil and the French had to release him. Abel was the first German to address a public meeting in France protesting against the Versailles treaty.

It is surmised he was arrested because of suspected relations with Catholic bodies which the state police charge are plotting against the government.

Berlin Greets Prof. Dodd, New U. S. Ambassador

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 13.—Prof. William E. Dodd of Chicago, new American ambassador to Germany, arrived here today with his wife and daughter. He was welcomed by the staff of the embassy and consulate and the German chief of protocol, Count Bassewiz, who presented a bouquet of orchids to Mrs. Dodd.

New Corporation Act Allowed to Become Law by Gov. Horner

Springfield, Ill., July 13.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner announced today he would permit senate bill number 225, rewriting the state's corporation act, to become a law without his signature. He issued a statement in explanation of his action, in which he cited objections to the measure, such as its removal of restrictions on corporation ownership of real estate, but added:

"To veto this bill because all its provisions do not accord with my views, would defeat those needed improvements in the statute relating to corporations which the bill in my opinion does contain. There are many changes provided by this bill which are improvements over our present statute."

Yellow Dog Contract Act.

The governor also permitted to become a law without his signature the "yellow dog" contract act, which was urged by organized labor. "The action of the assembly in passing this bill," he said, "is a declaration on its part that it deemed it beneficial and conducive to the well being of industry. I am not willing to dissent from their view. No test of its validity can be had by our own Supreme court unless it is permitted to become a law. I am, therefore, permitting this bill to become a law without my signature."

Fails to Sign Idle Relief Measure.

The governor permitted a bill introduced by Representative Frank Stewart of Girard to become effective without his signature. This measure provides that townships be permitted to levy additional taxes for poor relief. There is doubt as to the validity of this measure, but it is in line with other downstate legislation for emergency relief.

Other vetoes were: S. B. 373, authorizing leases along the Illinois and Michigan canal. H. B. 254, requiring the registration of assumed names. H. B. 154, changing the date for municipal primaries. H. B. 536 governing the publication of insurance company statements. H. B. 1009, authorizing county clerks to recompute taxes. H. B. 623, making additional provisions for the state housing board. H. B. 624, relating to housing securities.

Other Bills Become Laws.

Bills which the governor permitted to become law without his signature:

H. B. 407—Adamowski—Amends real estate lien law. H. B. 699—Sullivan—Provides for redemption of property. H. B. 232—Burns—Reduces salaries of chief clerk and assistant chief clerk of election commissions and cuts the salaries of Chicago election commissioners.

H. B. 818—Revenue committee—Boots penalty on forfeited taxes from 10 to 12 per cent. H. B. 977—Powers—Authorizes state to build $200,000 water terminal on waterway to be paid for by railroads. H. B. 905—Anderson—$10,500,000 per year for state distributive school fund. H. B. 199—Woodward—Removes Chicago municipal judges from under primary act. H. B. 245—William Carroll—Requires shippers, importers, and producers of milk imported for sale in its natural state to obtain a state license.

H. B. 1005—Connors—Authorizes commission to investigate cost of making and distributing beer. H. B. 1006—Shannon—Prohibits Cook county board of appeals from revising assessments in wholesale lots.

PRESENT DATA GIRLS NOT BORN TO WOMEN OF 55

Philadelphia, Pa., July 13.—[Special.]—Statistics showing that out of 900,000 girls born in the United States not one was born to a woman of 55 or over, were brought into the federal court here today but failed to block payment of an $11,560 inheritance tax in an unusual case.

The case revolved about the estate of Theodore C. Birnbaum, who died in 1924 and provided in his will that each grandniece surviving her parents should receive $5,000 and the residuary estate should go to charity. There were at that time five grandnieces, four of them daughters of Mrs. Emma Heligson, then 57, and one the child of Alwill Norberg, then 51.

The executors had fixed the residuary estate at $327,661 and claimed it exempt from federal taxes because it was reserved for charitable bequests. The government has insisted, however, that there might be more grandnieces and that the amount for charity is unascertainable.

Counsel for the executors produced data today purporting to show that middle aged persons rarely have daughters born to them. Besides the statistics on the 55 year old women, they claimed the odds are 32 to 1 against a man over 45 becoming the father of a daughter.

The judge, however, directed payment of the tax on grounds that it may not be postponed until expiration of the trusts.

WELFARE FUND CHIEF REVEALS RELIEF PROGRAM

Would Deny Tax Aid for Private Agencies.

With the passing of the acute crisis in the idle relief emergency, R. Douglas Stuart, president of the Emergency Welfare fund, yesterday issued a statement of policy which has been adopted by the fund's executive committee. The statement clarifies the relationship between public and private charities and the funds which support them.

The statement was prepared by a committee of heads of the five private welfare organizations: Frank D. Loomis, secretary of the Chicago Community trust, chairman; Samuel A. Goldsmith, director of the Jewish Charities; Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities; Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, and Miss Elizabeth Webster, acting director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies.

Private Financing Essential.

No subsidies of tax funds should be used for private family relief and service agencies, such as the United Charities, the Salvation Army, the American Red Cross, and the family relief division of the Jewish and Catholic charities, the statement declared, adding that the entire programs of the private agencies should be financed through private funds.

However, it was pointed out that this rule should not prevent recommendation of an individual from a private agency to a public institution or agency for special service which the private agency is not equipped to render.

"Pending the establishment of adequate free hospital and clinic service under public auspices," the statement said, "we believe that the Illinois Emergency Relief commission should pay the actual cost of hospital and clinic care, including all medical supplies and equipment, for such patients as are sent by the Cook county bureau of public welfare and other public welfare agencies to the private hospitals and private clinics. Any deficits of these private hospitals and clinics due to additional free service should be covered by private funds."

Urges Children's Bureau.

The statement asserts that "there should be established under the Cook county bureau of public welfare a department for the care of dependent children in private homes, the cost to be borne by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

Mr. Stuart, in commenting on the statement, said all activities of the Cook county bureau of public welfare must be financed from public or tax created funds. For the present, he said, these should include the burden of idle relief. The commission must continue to finance a large share of the activities of the county bureau, he pointed out, because of the inadequacy of county tax funds for this purpose.

Proposes Joint Financing.

Mr. Stuart added that income of most of the private charities from their regular sources is far below normal and must be supplemented by some special means.

"Some permanent organization for joint financing seems inevitable and highly desirable," he added. "This would help to eliminate duplications and bring about a more economical management."

Operating costs for Automatic★ Gas Water Heaters were drastically reduced on July 1st

THERE is scarcely a home owner using an Automatic Gas Water Heater who does not consider it a priceless convenience to have an abundance of hot water always ready—night or day—at the turn of a faucet. An Automatic Gas Water Heater has always been a glorious investment.

And, now, we have removed the only possible reason for denying yourself—and every member of your family, or your guests—the comforts which an automatic supply of hot water will bring into your home.

The rates for the gas used by an Automatic Water Heater have been reduced to the point where the cost to operate it will be but a few pennies a day. Discard all old notions—or any figures you have heard quoted by acquaintances—on the cost of gas for an Automatic Water Heater. The new rate gives reductions as great as 50%.

Make it a point to see the newest insulated Automatic Water Heaters now. They are being displayed by your local plumber, department stores, and at our 12 salesrooms. Let us explain the new low gas rates and estimate the monthly operating cost in your home. The heater you select may be paid for on convenient terms.

★ An Automatic Water Heater is defined as one that is operated by a thermostat and requires no manual control.

NOTICE to present residential users of Automatic Gas Water Heaters
The new low rates are available to you only upon written application and providing you are complying with certain conditions. Write or call for full details.

MILWAUKEE ASKS RADIO BOARD FOR WMAQ CHANNEL

Conflict May Involve All Chicago Stations.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—(AP)—The federal radio commission has announced that it granted the following Illinois stations a renewal of licenses for the regular period: WCAZ, Carthage; WDZ, Tuscola; WENR and auxiliary, Chicago; WLS and auxiliary, Chicago; WMAQ, Chicago; WMBI, Chicago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Presaging another Wisconsin-Chicago radio conflict before the federal radio commission, which has as its objective the removal of more stations from Chicago and into the adjacent state, station WTMJ of Milwaukee today filed with the commission an application for the facilities of station WMAQ, which, if granted, would mean the demise of the Chicago Daily News-National Broadcasting company station.

Radio War Looms.

The application follows by a fortnight the request of station WIBA, at Madison, Wis., for one-half time on the exclusive wave length of station W-G-N, owned by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It now appears that all Chicago stations and possibly all stations in Illinois will be drawn into the conflict to be aired before the commission, probably next fall, in a "survival of the fittest" contest.

The fact that Illinois is over quota in radio facilities, while Wisconsin is slightly under quota, according to competent legal observers, points to the possible elimination of additional Illinois stations, but a court battle is virtually certain.

Lost Two Channels.

Chicago recently lost two stations through the transfer of the choice facilities of stations WIBO and WPCC to station WJKS [now WIND], to Gary, Ind.

Operated by the Milwaukee Journal, station WTMJ now is assigned to a regional channel with power of 1,000 watts at night. It seeks the 670 kilocycle clear channel occupied by WMAQ with 5,000 watts power. WMAQ is owned jointly by the Chicago Daily News and NBC, with the latter governing its operation and policy.

M'DIVANI PRINCES WILL NOT FIGHT MARITAL SUITS

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—Prince Serge M'Divani said today that neither he nor his brother, Prince David, intends to contest suits for separation brought by their wives, Mary McCormic, the opera singer, and Mae Murray, film actress. Both husbands, he added, retain for the wives "friendliness and a feeling of admiration."

The princes, members of Georgian nobility, will leave for the United States on the liner Europa Saturday to resume their oil business.

Mae Murray, film actress, is suing Prince David for divorce, and Mary McCormic, the opera singer, seeks separate maintenance from her husband, Prince Serge. The two women as stockholders met recently at Los Angeles to oust the princes as directors and officers of the oil companies.

2 PEDESTRIANS HIT BY TRUCKS, DIE OF INJURIES

Two pedestrians were fatally injured by motor trucks in Chicago yesterday. Francis Forrestal, 20 years old, 6457 South Bishop street, died in Southtown hospital after being struck by a truck on alighting from a street car at Ashland avenue and 56th street. The driver, Raymond Arndt, 3655 South Halsted street, was not held.

A truck driven by John Kocula, 2025 North Damen avenue, struck Peter Pallas, 29 years old, 1952 West North avenue, in an alley near Damen and North avenues. Pallas died in St. Elizabeth's hospital. Kocula was not held.

These deaths and one other raised the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 523. The other victim:

James Cullen, 65 years old, 7225 Woodlawn avenue, a street car conductor. Died in Jackson Park hospital of injuries suffered earlier in the day when struck by an automobile at 73d street and South Chicago avenue. The driver, Carlos Roberts of Mexico City, was not held.

Policeman Ambrose Mahoney, 38 years old, 6135 Fletcher street, was severely injured yesterday afternoon when a squad car in which he was riding collided at Wells and Eugenie streets with a limousine driven by Fred Reinholdt, a chauffeur, of Lake Villa. Mahoney was taken to Alexian Brothers hospital.

Girl, 7, Awarded $50,000 Damages for Auto Injuries

A jury before Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday awarded $50,000 damages to Josephine Gloria Wierzbowski, 7 years old, for injuries incurred when she was struck in 1929 by an automobile driven by Joseph Konczal, 5624 North McVickers avenue.

Chicagoan Is Drowned When Canoe Capsizes

Two Chicagoans were drowned yesterday. Emmett Regan, 29 years old, 4363 Kenmore avenue, was drowned at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., when a canoe in which he was riding capsized. John Christiansen, 35 years old, 513 North Clark street, a carpenter out of work, was drowned while swimming in the lake at the foot of Chestnut street.

Funeral of James B. Watt, Ex-Chicagoan, in Ohio

Funreal services for James B. Watt, formerly a clothing merchant on Adams street in the loop, will be held today at Xenia, O., where he had resided for the last seven years. Mr. Watt, who was about 80 years old, died Wednesday. He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Denson, and a son, Kenneth M. Watt.

SET POLICEMAN'S TRIAL IN BEATING OF MOTORIST

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday filed charges with the civil service commission against Patrolman Anthony J. Bradtke of the West North avenue station. Bradtke, who is under suspension, will be tried by the board on Wednesday on charges of conduct unbecoming a policeman and of wilfully maltreating a prisoner.

On May 26, as Joseph J. Merkel, 11712 Lowe avenue, a rent collector for the Chicago Title and Trust company, was driving in Western avenue, Bradtke, in civilian clothes, drove alongside and ordered Merkel to pull to the curb, waving a revolver as he did so. Merkel, who had been robbed twice shortly before, did not stop until he came to a stop light, because, he explained later, he feared another holdup.

He charged that when he stopped he asked Bradtke to show him his star, and that Bradtke refused and beat him. Merkel was charged with disorderly conduct. Municipal Judge Leon Edelman dismissed Merkel and recommended that Bradtke be taken before the trial board.

U. C. EDUCATOR'S DAUGHTER DIES ON MICHIGAN TRIP

Miss Frances Nelson, 24 years old, daughter of Bertram G. Nelson, associate professor of public speaking at the University of Chicago, was found dead yesterday in her room at Battle Creek sanitarium, Battle Creek, Mich.

At the home at 5714 Dorchester avenue, Prof. and Mrs. Nelson said their daughter had been in good health except for what physicians disgnosed as a tendency toward anemia. She had gone to the health resort on her vacation and was registered there as a guest and not as a patient.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at Oakwoods cemetery.

WM. H. WALTER'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Funeral services for William H. Walter, retired head of the stockyards commission firm of Walter Brothers, who died Wednesday night, will be held tomorrow in the home at 4526 South Wabash avenue. Burial will be in Mount Hope cemetery.

Mr. Walter was born in Connorsville, Ind., on Sept. 5, 1857. He went to work in the stockyards in 1882, and founded the commission firm in 1888. He retired in 1923. Mr. Walter is survived by his widow, Mary; four sons, Harry, Frank, Ralph, Byron, and two daughters, Lydia and Laura Walter. The Walter home, one of the oldest in the city, was built in 1836.

Dr. Myron A. Martin's Funeral to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Dr. Myron A. Martin, veteran retired south side physician, will be held at 415 West 63d street at 3 o'clock today. Dr. Martin, who was 64 years old, resided at 456 Englewood avenue. He was killed by carbon monoxide fumes in his garage on Wednesday. Several years ago Dr. Martin ceased active practice.

HENRY M. DEAL, ONCE ALDERMAN, IS DEAD AT 83

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in St. Giles church, Oak Park, for Henry M. Deal, 83 years old, a lifelong resident of Chicago and a former alderman. Mr. Deal died yesterday in his home at 633 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, after a short illness.

Mr. Deal was born in 1850 at Madison and La Salle streets. He was a drummer boy in the civil war and met Abraham Lincoln. He was alderman of the old 10th ward many years ago.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Thomas Connor of Evanston, Mrs. Daniel Sullivan of Oak Park, Mrs. Frank G. Lewis, and Miss Mary Deal. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

Tan as N. Y. Show Girls Do!
Make the Sun's Rays Beautifying!
All New York show girls sport a nice tan during the summer. But they can't go on the stage with a lobster-red skin any more than they can dance with a bad sunburn. How do they do it? Here's their secret:
Before exposure, and during exposure, they apply Norwich Sun Tan Oil to all unprotected parts of the body. The oil screens out a part of the sun's rays and thus helps prevent sunburn with all the pain, redness, blistering and peeling. Instead of burning and turning a lobster-red, the girls develop a tan that is "smooth," even and bronze.
The best tan is acquired slowly. Be sure to guard against over-exposure the first few days.
Thousands of men and women who used to suffer sunburn now escape it with Norwich Sun Tan Oil. It must be good—made by the makers of Unguentine For Burns. Get Norwich Sun Tan Oil at any druggist, 35c and 60c. The genuine has the name Norwich on the label.

STATE ORDERS 3 LIGHT COMPANIES TO REDUCE RATES

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday ordered reductions in electricity rates of the Peoples Power company, the McHenry Light and Power company, and the Western United Gas and Electric company, northern division.

This means an annual saving of $204,000, the commission estimated, for consumers in Rock Island, Moline, East Moline, Silvis, Milan, Carbon Cliff, Hempton, Rapid City, Port Byron, Aurora, St. Charles, Elgin, Geneva, Naperville, Glen Ellyn, Wheaton, Oswego, Hebron, Richmond, and other smaller communities in the territories served by the companies.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, in informal hearings recently, recommended reductions of 14 to 18 per cent. Yesterday the companies notified Chief Engineer J. A. Matthews that they would not oppose the schedule suggested and the new rates went into effect.

The companies were directed to assume immediately the federal tax of 3 per cent, which, under a new federal law, they must do Sept. 1. With this saving it was estimated the new rates will mean a 14 per cent reduction for residences, 18 per cent for commercial light, and 17 per cent for industrial power.

N. ANGELICA DIES; RESTAURATEUR IN CITY FIFTY YEARS

Funeral services for Natalino Angelica, 446 East 29th street, for fifty years a café owner in Chicago, will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning at St. James Catholic church, 29th street and Wabash avenue. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery. He died in the Henrotin hospital Tuesday.

Mr. Angelica was the father of Mme. Galli of the Italian restaurant bearing her name at 18 East Illinois street. He was 76 years old, a native of Lucca, Italy. In 1883 he opened his first café near Michigan avenue and Roosevelt road.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN
The Favor of Other Men
Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.
But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.
Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25¢ at drug stores.
Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. ©1933, C.M.Co.

FOOD SHOPPERS TO FIND NEARLY ALL PRICES UP

Growing Demand, Taxes Bring About Rises.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chicagoland food shoppers, who only three months ago were jubilant over how much food could be bought with a couple of dollars, today will find themselves on the other end of a teeter totter that is carrying food prices upward while the value of their food dollar drops. Housewives will find it more advantageous than ever to scrutinize the markets for bargains under such conditions.

With the exception of those items selected by grocers as "leaders" or "specials" and a few commodities such as salt, the entire range of more than 1,000 food items carried in a well stocked food store has been scaled upward in price, most of the increases coming in the last two weeks.

Potatoes Up 2 to 4 Cents.

Potatoes, for instance, were selling at 2 and 3 cents a pound early this spring. Now they are tagged at 4 to 7 cents a pound, depending upon quality and variety. Flour has nearly doubled with the adding of the government's processing tax and continually increasing wheat prices. Butter also is gaining in value, a gain totalling some 26 per cent in three months.

Even the perishable fruits and vegtables which are coming into season have been marked up. Radishes, beans, peas, lettuce [with local supplies of none too high quality], tomatoes, carrots, and cabbages are higher priced, mainly because Chicago's supplies have been curtailed by a devastating storm which sheared many acres of green foods from nearby fields early this month.

Macaroni and spaghetti have advanced with the wholesale wheat price increases and the federal wheat tax. Bread prices are one cent higher on all loaves made from wheat flour by common agreement among local bakers. Lard prices have doubled in four months, grades which sold at 5 cents a pound now bringing 10 cents. Eggs are about 2 cents a dozen higher than they were in April.

Meats and Canned Foods Rise.

Even breakfast cereals, canned foods of most kinds, cookies, cakes, nearly all kinds of meat, pickles, preserves, dried fruits, rice and canned pork and beans have joined in the price crescendo.

Part of the rise is traceable to advancing wholesale commodity prices, and part to federal and state taxes such as the sales tax in Illinois. Some blame is placed by grocers on the weather, for an excessively dry summer has curtailed many crops such as sweet and Irish potatoes, peaches, berries, spinach, lettuce, and cream production for butter.

The next few days will see the first arrivals of roasting ears from nearby sweet corn patches. Cooking apples and peaches will continue to improve in quantity and ripeness, while the season has just opened for seedless fresh grapes. Bananas, however, have gone up 40 per cent in recent weeks.

Puddy Gits Tho'ed Outen Cote

(By Edward F. Younger.)

Well, suh, cullud man aint got ary sorter chance,

PEANUT ROAST LENDS VARIETY TO TRITE MENU

Serve Hot with Tomato Sauce.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented today by June Baker over station W-G-N. Tune in at 11 o'clock for Miss Baker's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

The most common venture with peanuts on the menu has been that of rolling halved bananas in finely chopped, salted peanuts and bedecking them with a spoonful of mayonnaise. This has ever been a favorite, even of men with anti-salad complexes.

But there are other salad winners to consider. For instance, add chopped peanuts to cream cole slaw. You'll like it! Or combine chopped peanuts and grated carrots in this way:

CARROT AND PEANUT SALAD.

2 cups grated carrots.
1¼ cups peanuts, finely chopped.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 cup mayonnaise.
¼ cup whipping cream, beaten stiff.

Combine the ingredients and serve in lettuce cups.

PEANUT ROAST.

3 tablespoons chopped celery.
2 tablespoons chopped onion.
2 tablespoons fat.
½ cup hot water.
1¾ cups chopped peanuts.
2 eggs.
1½ cups bread crumbs.
½ cup mashed vegetables [peas, carrots, beans, etc.].
Salt and pepper to taste.
2 tablespoons lemon or orange juice.

Pan fry the celery and onion in the fat until they are tender and brown. Add the hot water and simmer 5 minutes. Combine the remaining ingredients and mix with the celery and onion. Form into a loaf and place in a greased baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] 40 minutes. Serve hot with tomato sauce.

PEANUT MACAROONS.

1 egg white.
¼ cup sugar.
1-3 cup finely chopped peanuts.
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Beat the egg white until stiff; then beat the sugar gradually into it. Add the peanuts and vanilla. Drop small spoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet 1½ inches apart. Put ½ a peanut on top of each and bake in a slow oven [275 degrees F.] from 12 to 15 minutes. And finally peanut honey brittle is a 1933 variation of the old fashioned peanut brittle.

PEANUT HONEY BRITTLE.

1 cup peanuts.
½ cup sugar.
1 cup honey.
2 tablespoons light corn sirup.
½ cup water.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1½ tablespoons butter.

Place the peanuts in the oven until delicately browned. Mix the sugar, honey, sirup, water and salt and boil slowly, stirring occasionally, to the crack stage [290 degrees F.]. Remove from the burner and add the butter and nuts. Pour quickly into greased pans.

FOR THAT LAZY FEELING EAT LOTS OF VEGETABLES

This Gives Hints on Cooking Them.

BY DOROTHY MASTERS.

If you feel lazy and your appetite is poor it may be the fault of the summer weather. The remedy is frequently found in eating plenty of garden greens and fresh fruits.

The markets are now offering an intriguing display of crispy greens, home grown berries, and fresh legumes. All this calls for digging up some of those old recipes you'd forgotten—that fancy one for spinach, or the one for vegetable salad. These ought to take the place of the starches, sugars, and fats that go into cold weather diets.

Hints on Cooking Vegetables.

Now for a few general hints on preserving flavor and color, as well pigment in vegetables may be destroyed by heat or acid, and foods of this class should not be cooked too long or in covered vessels.

But cooking experts are divided on the amount of water to be used. Most of them maintain that the vegetables should be generously covered, but a few others cook their greens almost entirely without water, watching them carefully, and depending on the natural juices to keep them from burning.

Those of the "lots of water" school say that part of the value of the water lies in diluting and partly neutralizing the nonvolatile acids as they seep out of the vegetables. Alkaline content in water is important in retaining color, they say.

Soda May Be Used.

If the cooking water is not alkaline, but neutral, a dash of soda may be used to preserve the color of all green vegetables that require long cooking, such as green beans. No more than a sixteenth of a teaspoonful to a quart of water should be used, for, though it intensifies the coloring if used in larger amounts, it makes the vegetables soft and destroys the vitamins. It has been found that cooking quickly, in salted water, also helps to preserve the green pigment.

For the red vegetables, particularly beets and red cabbage, covered cooking vessels are used to retain the color. There is no danger of the beets losing their redness if they are cooked with their skins; the acid of their own juices helps to preserve the color. But for the cabbage a little vinegar should be added to keep it from turning blue or green.

But the outstanding rule for cooking all vegetables ought to be: Don't cook them a minute longer than you have to in order to make them tender.

Household Hints

Apple peels are said to be six times as rich in vitamin C as is the flesh near the core, says the University of Wisconsin.

Dry celery leaves, green onion tails, and parsley may be stored in an air tight container, and used to flavor soups, salads, dressings, and cream dishes.

SALAD DRESSINGS PROVIDE WAYS OF VARYING FOODS

Means of Making Distinctive Combination.

Salad dressings are the means by which you can vary your lettuce, fruit, meat, or fish salads. They have the power of making it the distinctive combination of foods that you want it. Recipes for the basic dressings, such as mayonnaise, French, and boiled dressings follow:

MAYONNAISE.

2 egg yolks
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons mustard
2 teaspoons powdered sugar
½ teaspoon cayenne
2 cups salad oil [vegetable or olive]
3½ tablespoons vinegar

Have salad bowl, rotary egg beater and ingredients chilled. Beat egg yolks until light. Whip in the dry ingredients. Add a few drops of oil and beat into the egg mixture. Continue adding the oil and the vinegar very slowly, beating thoroughly until the mayonnaise thickens. Then the oil may be added more rapidly until the entire two cups have been whipped in. Beat to the desired consistency. Yield: 2¼ cups of thick mayonnaise.

BOILED DRESSING.

2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon red pepper
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup vinegar
½ cup water
Yolks of 4 eggs or 2 whole eggs

Mix the dry ingredients. Then add the butter, vinegar and water. Cook over boiling water until thick, stirring continuously. Beat eggs. Gradually pour the hot mixture over them. When ready to serve, add a little cream, plain or whipped, or lemon juice to thin. Yield: 1 cup.

FRENCH DRESSING.

2 teaspoons sugar or
1 tablespoon honey
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 clove of garlic [may be omitted]
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 to 3 tablespoons orange juice
½ cup salad oil

Mix all ingredients except oil. Then either whip in the oil or shake it with the rest of the ingredients in a cocktail shaker. Remove garlic. Yield: ⅔ to ¾ cup, depending upon amount of fruit juice used.

GOLDEN DRESSING FOR FRUIT SALAD.

¼ cup pineapple juice
¼ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
Pinch cayenne
2 eggs
One-third cup sugar

Scald the fruit juices, salt, mustard and cayenne in a double boiler. Beat egg yolks until light, adding gradually half the sugar. Add hot fruit mixture to egg yolks, whipping constantly with a rotary egg whip until very foamy. Return to double boiler and cook over hot water until thickened, stirring continuously. Beat whites until stiff, fold in rest of sugar. Then add yolk mixture, beating until thoroughly blended. Chill thoroughly before serving. Yield: 2¼ cups foamy dressing sufficient for 8 salads.

HONEY DRESSING.

6 tablespoons strained honey
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Mix the honey and lemon juice. Excellent for fruit and fig or date salads. Yield: ½ cup.

CHEESE FRUIT DRESSING.

3 tablespoons currant jelly
7 tablespoons orange juice [1 orange]
3 tablespoons lemon juice [1 lemon]
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon maraschino juice
4 [3 ounce] packages cream cheese

Whip up the currant jelly with the orange juice, lemon juice, honey and maraschino juice. Then whip into cheese that has been stirred until soft. Excellent for pear, peach and pineapple salads. Yield: 1½ cups.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING.

1-3 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1-3 teaspoon sugar
1 cup thick sour cream

Blend the salt, pepper and sugar. Whip the cream until smooth. Add the spice mixture slowly, whipping constantly. Excellent for lettuce or cucumber salad. Yield: 1 cup or sufficient for 7 salads.

CHILDREN ARE WON OVER TO SPINACH BY THIS NEW METHOD

Spinach enthusiasts have discovered a new way of interesting children in this food, and the method lends itself to use in getting children to consume other nourishing foods as well.

The secret, according to food psychologists, is to let the youngsters help in the preparation. Better acquaintance with any commendable food, it is argued, means that the palate will need less tickling and the child less coaxing.

Nursery school children in experiments conducted at the Iowa State college [Ames] are said to have proved the point during a two year study. It's no longer necessary to "bribe" a child to eat certain foods if the more interesting system is used, according to Miss Miriam Lowenberg, assistant professor of child development at Ames.

Miss Lowenberg has had considerable success with what she named the "Wee Cook Kitchen." Small stools and tables, a low electric plate and a few simple implements constitute the equipment for the small scale kitchen.

Pleasant conditions for preparing and consuming the food, the experiments indicated, were far more effective than were attempts at explanation, or systems of bribery whereby a child was granted some privilege if a certain food was eaten.

"Usually it isn't the food itself that offends the child," Miss Lowenberg says. "More often it is something associated with the food. In the Wee Cook Kitchen we found that it is possible to make food associations pleasant even for children 4 years old."

149,000 COFFEE PLANTERS NOW IN COLOMBIA

In a recent 10 day coffee conference of Colombian coffee delegates a new picture of the size of the industry in the various departments or states was obtained. Reports from growers indicate a total of 143,000 coffee planters.

DRYING OF SURPLUS FRUITS, VEGETABLES EASY; HOW IT'S DONE

Garden and orchard surpluses of fruits and vegetables will permit households economies in fall and winter menus. Drying of the surplus requires little equipment. The principal disadvantages are that the dried food needs to be soaked several hours when it is to be used and the drying often changes and detracts from the appearance.

The prepared fruit or vegetable is placed on trays and placed in the sun, or the trays may be placed in the oven, heat turned low and the oven door left open, since cooking is not the object. In outdoor drying some netting should be placed over the trays as a protection from insects.

RAILROAD WORKER KILLED.

Bernard Bowen, 57 years old, a railroad worker, was instantly killed yesterday when he was struck by two cabooses which had been shunned onto a side track in the yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Pacific railroad at Franklin Park.

CUBS WHIP DODGERS FOR 8TH IN ROW, 4 TO 1

DON'T BE UPSET IF A LONG SHOT WINS CLASSIC!

Fans Scan Skies for 'Eagle Birds.'

BY FRENCH LANE.

A hectic hunt for the "eagle bird" that can win the renewal of the Classic stakes at Arlington Park tomorrow was on yesterday among the thousands of racegoers here awaiting the $35,000 turf battle.

The Noah Websters of the turf define an "eagle bird" as a surprising longshot which falls out of the clouds to win a horse race.

The horse fans were particularly diligent as they swept the skies with their binoculars in this instance because they believed the Classic coming up is the kind of a horse race most likely to bring the "eagle bird" fluttering down at the winning post.

An Old Timer Tells 'Em.

The name he might carry no one could guess, yet one old fellow who says he saw Hickory Jim win his first race as a 2 year old [turf traditions say that happened 75 or 100 years ago] and who claims to have cleaned up on more "eagle birds" than any other man alive, says there are three of the nicest "eagle bird" prospects in the Classic field that he has looked at in many days.

So far he hasn't been able to separate them and declares it will take him another 24 hours to do that. He is so confident that he is right, however, that he has issued invitations for an "eagle bird" dinner on Classic night.

He makes no secret of his prospects and says they are Joseph E. Widener's Golden Way, the Kentucky colt Red Roamer, and Man O'War's colt, War Glory.

How Would You Like 50-1.

"From the way the betting will go I expect to get about 12 or 15 to 1 if either Golden Way or War Glory wins and if Red Roamer drops down from the clouds the dividends will be about 50 to 1," he said.

"They all classify as 'eagle birds' in my ratings. I am quite confident Kerry Patch will be one also, and Silent Shot will be the nicest bird of them all to kill if he should get one of his muddy gumbo racing strips."

If this old fellow from back in Hickory Jim's day is correct all of the Classic wagering, or at least a good part of it, will center around Mr. Khayyam, Gold Basis, Barn Swallow, Sarada, Okapi, The Darb, W. R. Coe's entry of Pomponius and Pomposity, Edelweiss, Charley O. and Head Play.

Head Play Loses Support.

One thing is noticeable and that is the Westerners are not nearly so anxious to back Head Play and Charley O. as they were in the Kentucky Derby and the American Derby. The lack of Head Play backing is probably due to the reports that he bruised a foot in a workout on Wednesday and may not start.

Head Play wasn't asked to go on the track at all yesterday, but was walked for about three miles through the fields which adjoin Arlington Park. He did not limp nor favor the bruised foot. It encouraged Trainer Tom Hayes, who plans to have the Preakness winner on the track for a short speed test this morning, and if the lameness continues to stay away Head Play will face the barrier.

Favorite Usually Loses.

It would not be unusual for the favorite to take a sound beating in the Classic. In the first running back in 1929 Rose of Sharon was the choice. She was out of the money and Blue Larkspur won the race. Gallant Fox came along and won a thrilling nose decision over the long shot Gallant Knight in 1930. Gallant Fox was the only favorite ever to win the race. There are no Gallant Fox's in this year's 3 year old division.

In 1931 the outsiders Mate and Spanish Play were up in time to trounce the odds on choice, Twenty Grand. Last year Top Flight and Faireno were the ones with the most backing. The "eagle bird" Gusto galloped out and won it.

Steffen to Ride Sarada.

Excepting for a scurrying for jockeys and a few easy workouts, there wasn't much activity among the Classic candidates yesterday.

Earl Steffen, the contract rider for Mrs. John Hertz, was engaged to ride Sarada in the race. Trainer Tommy Taylor employed E. Arcaro to pilot Charley O., and Johnny Gilbert, 1932 riding champion, arrived from New York to have a leg up on War Glory. Pete Walls was ordered to come from New York to handle Mr. Khayyam.

The only workout that bordered a serious move was turned in by W. R. Coe's Pomponius. He went the Classic route of a mile and a quarter with heavy weight up in 2:08 4-5 and did his work handily. War Glory galloped an easy mile in 1:47 1-5 and Projectile breezed a mile in 1:44 4-5.

Expect Largest Crowd.

While there were some reserved seats for Classic day unsold yesterday, officials of the Arlington Jockey club were making plans to handle the largest crowd of the season.

Frankie Petrolle Loses to Knapp in 10 Rounds

New Haven, Conn., July 13.—(AP)—Frankie Petrolle, 147 pounds, of Schenectady, N. Y., brother of Billy, lost a 10 round decision here tonight to Carmen Knapp, 147, of New Haven. Petrolle scored the only knockdown of the bout in the fifth round.

CLASSIC FAVORITE?

Gold Basis, owned by Morton Schwartz of New York, will go to the post favorite in the Arlington Classic tomorrow if fans accept the recommendations of the clockers.

In the Wake of the News

ARLINGTON CLASSIC.

THE Arlington Classic tomorrow is the most open race in its history. Since its inception in 1929 the Classic has become noted for its surprises. In three of its four runnings, previous form was upset. Never before, however, have so many candidates been given a chance in advance. From the viewpoint of contention it is the most difficult Classic to pick.

In 1929, in its first running, Blue Larkspur over a heavy track defeated Clyde Van Dusen, to which he had finished outside the money in the Kentucky Derby. The following year Gallant Fox repeated his Kentucky Derby victory, but only after being given a thrilling hand ride by Earl Sande the length of the stretch which kept his head in front of Gallant Knight at the finish.

Mate was winner in 1931 with Twenty Grand in third place, exactly reversing the Louisville result when Twenty Grand won with Mate third. Last year Gusto, winner of the American Derby, repeated that triumph at odds of $20.54 for $2. Burgoo King had gone out of training, but Stepenfetchit, Evergold, and Top Flight were behind the winner.

With a dozen or more likely to essay the struggle for the rich prize, there is no outstanding favorite tomorrow. No 3 year old thus far has developed a clear title for first honors. Brokers Tip, Kentucky Derby winner, went lame. Head Play, Preakness winner, has been beaten since. Mr. Khayyam, American Derby winner, was nowhere in the Kentucky Derby. He has been given plenty of rest since the Washington Park feature.

Meantime, other colts have come into the picture as challengers for the 3 year old title: War Glory in the Dwyer, Gold Basis in the Latonia Derby, Hurryoff in the Belmont, The Darb in the Withers. Others, unmentioned in the spring, have shown improved form.

The setting is made to order for another surprise. Those more highly regarded have been in training long enough to have dulled in speed. If there is a recognized 3 year old champion for 1933 it must be claimed today and clinched in the remaining stakes for that division this year. There is no champion at this time.

I suggest a double header because more players could be used. Four players from each of the eight teams, selected by vote of fans in each city, would be about right. It would insure a large charity fund.

20 HITS A RARE TONIC FOR SOX; THEY WIN, 9-6

4 Senator Pitchers Feel Fury of Attack.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The White Sox today made another contribution to the argument that the Yankees eventually will be the 1933 champions of the American league. The Chicagoans did this by making such good use of their bats that their usual bad pitching meant nothing. They assaulted an assortment of pitchers for a total of 20 hits, thereby trouncing the top place Senators, 9 to 6, and reducing the latter's margin to one game over the revived New York troops.

The Sox's hitting caused no end of discontent for Mr. Alphonse Thomas, who for years thought himself too skilled a gentleman to waste his time trying to win for the team that lathered him without mercy today. Mr. Thomas, before being yanked so a few others could share the suffering, was blasted for 14 hits.

Sox Needed Hits.

At one point the Sox seemed destined to another trimming because of the customary fadeout of young Paul Gregory. Four runs routed him in the fourth, making the seventh consecutive start he has failed to finish. Those four runs gave the Senators a 4 to 1 advantage and the Sox tied it up only to drop behind again by two runs in the sixth before they won.

Five hits in a row by Heinie Manush made him the premier batter of the performance, but he had a worthy competitor in Red Kress, lately restored to first base duty with the Sox. Kress got a triple, double, and two singles.

It wasn't exactly Thomas' fault that the Sox were able to score one run in the first inning. After the first two men had been put out, Kress banged a high fly to left. Manush arranged to make the catch, but suddenly decided the sun was in his eyes. Kress tore for third. The ball arrived there just in time to nip him, but Bluege dropped it. Simmons promptly whacked a single to center, Kress scoring.

The business of scoring four runs and banishing Gregory in the fourth began with a single by Cronin, who pulled up at third on Schulte's double to right. Both scored when Kuhel tripled to right center on the first pitch. Bluege popped out and on Sewell's grounder Kuhel should have been flagged at the plate, but was safe when Hayes threw wild. Sewell hiked to third before the ball was recovered. Gregory threw out Thomas and then walked Myer. Manush singled for the third time and Sewell scored. Kimsey stepped in and retired Goslin.

Sox Keep on Hitting.

Four hits in a row off Thomas served to get the Sox back into the game in the fifth. After Swanson had filed to center, Haas singled there. Kress did the same. So did Simmons, scoring Haas. Appling also singled to center and Kress scored. Both Dykes and Hayes filed out, leaving the Chicagoans one run shy of a tie.

The first three Sox up in the sixth inning hit. Berry singled and took third on Kimsey's single. Swanson's single sent Berry home with the tying run. Haas tried to sacrifice, but failed, and then walloped a whistling liner toward short which Cronin speared with one hand and tossed to Myer to double Kimsey off second.

Manush came along with a triple just at the right time in the home sixth and enabled the Senators to get in front again, 6 to 4. Sewell singled with one out and Thomas sacrificed. Myer walked and this proved costly. Manush followed with his three bagger, a real drive into left center, Sewell and Myer scoring.

When the Sox broke loose with another flock of hits in the seventh, tying the score, Manager Cronin finally decided to quit gambling. Kress started this assault with a triple to left and ran home on Simmons' infield out. Appling fanned, but Dykes singled and pulled up at third on a two bagger by Hayes. Thomas was excused and Russell replaced him. Berry then singled to score Dykes. Hayes also would have scored if Cronin hadn't knocked down the hit in deep short. Kimsey filed out.

The two run foray that put the Irish Engage in First Drill Aboard Ship

BY JERRY CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. MAJESTIC, July 13.—The eight Irish Free State boxing champions resumed training today, doing their first work aboard ship one day out from Southampton. They are en route to the International Golden Gloves bouts in Chicago on Aug. 2.

After a day of rest yesterday and a good night's sleep the boxers were up early this morning for a mile run around the Majestic's wide deck. At noon an hour's workout was ordered by Sergt. Dwyer, the team's coach, in the gymnasium, where the athletes exercised on saddles, cycles, and rowing machines before a large gathering of passengers.

Private Paddy Connolly, the soldier flyweight, was excused from this drill and the thirty minute sparring session on the promenade deck later on complaint of misery, diagnosed by the ship's physician as a slight case of sea sickness. He was able to be around this evening, however, and will take part in tomorrow's drills.

Speed Up for Crowd.

The sparring drills attracted most of the passengers on the ship, a circumstance that spurred the boxers to unnecessary effort and brought sharp warnings from Sergt. Dwyer. After the boxing the team and coaches took a dip in the pool, which has been reserved for the exclusive use of the boxers one hour each afternoon.

At the talking picture program in the evening the boxers were introduced individually and were loudly applauded. Several of the team have renewed old friendships on board made when they went to the United States last year to compete in the Olympic games.

Ireland's Best Team.

Sergt. Dwyer, when introduced by the ship's captain, said the team was made up of men sufficiently experienced to supervise their own training, making the team the best the Free State has sent into international competition. Barring training accidents or illness, the team will have a better than even chance of wining from the Chicago Golden Gloves champions, he said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 13.—Frankie Kerr, Irish Free State bantamweight champion now en route to Chicago for the International Golden Gloves matches, fought his first fight in Alexandria, Egypt, ten years ago. He was just eight years old.

DOUBLE PLAYS HELP WARNEKE IN 11TH VICTORY

Bruins Keep Up with Leading Giants.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Eight in a row for the Cubs and victory No. 11 for Lon Warneke. These were the main entries set down in the champions' pennant log yesterday after the Chicagoans had beaten the Brooklyn Dodgers once more, this time by a score of 4 to 1. The Cubs remained three games behind the Giants and are one game ahead of the Pirates, who climbed to third place yesterday.

Lon's victory was the ninth straight the Cubs have accomplished over the Dodgers at Wrigley field, their eighth in eleven starts against the Dodgers this year here and at Brooklyn, their seventh straight against eastern invaders, and their ninth out of ten games played since they opened up shop at Wrigley field on July 4.

Double Plays Big Help.

Warneke would have scored his second successive 4 to 0 shutout against easterners, except for an unearned run in the second inning. But Lon didn't sing much at his failure to do this, seeing as on three occasions he was pulled out of serious jams by three of the Cubs' four double plays.

The first of these jams was the worst, for in the first inning the Dodgers had the bases full with none out. Then Hack Wilson fanned and Leslie hit into a double play. In the sixth the score seemed as good as tied when, with runners on third and second, Cuccinello slammed one a mile a minute only to see Jurges jump high in the air, pull it down, and effect double play No. 3.

Cubs Make Eleven Hits.

If you want to get fussy about earned and unearned runs, you'll have to consider the Cubs honest winners just the same. Shorn of misplays, the game would have ended 3 to 0 for the Cubs, though an error was mixed up in both of the Cub counters in the second inning. The Cubs made eleven hits and all were pure. Only three were wasted, incidentally.

Here is the record of how Warneke got himself into a peck of trouble in the first inning, then got out of it without bruises or lacerations: Boyle beat out an infield single and went to third on Frederick's single to right. Flowers walked, filling the bases with no one out. There was none out when Wilson fanned and there were three out when Leslie grounded into a double play, Bill Herman to Jurges to Grimm.

Bases Full, One Run In.

In their half of the first the Cubs got the bases full with one down and eked a run out of the situation. Koenig pushed off with a single and was forced by Bill Herman. Mosolf singled to center, putting Bill Herman on third. Then Babe Herman walked, filling the bases. Demaree filed to Frederick and Bill Herman scored, after which Hartnett fouled to Lopez.

The Dodgers tied the score in the second inning after starting out like they intended to do much more. Cuccinello doubled to left. Lopez bounced to Warneke, who threw the ball to Koenig in time to get Cuccinello at third. Mark dropped the ball, however, so Cuccinello was safe at third and Lopez at first. Lopez stole second while Hartnett was debating with Umpire Magerkurth. Wright filed to Mosolf, Cuccinello scoring. Beck and Boyle supplied infield outs.

Lucky Bounce for Cubs.

In the fourth the Cubs got busy after two were out to produce a pair of runs. Hartnett singled to left and went to third on Grimm's single to right. Boyle's throw to third seemed accurate enough until it hit a hard spot and bounced into the Cub dugout, Hartnett scoring and Grimm taking second. Jurges followed with a single to left, scoring Grimm. Warneke was called out on strikes.

In their sixth the Cubs got the bases full after two were out on singles by Grimm and Jurges and a pass to Warneke, but the threat ended when Koenig bounced out to Leslie.

Everybody Happy When He Wins at Arlington.

Warren Wright's Prince Pompey showed a fine line of speed to win the Bob o' Link purse, the best event on the program at Arlington Park yesterday.

He took the lead soon after the start and gamely withstood a stretch challenge from C. V. Whitney's Salaam which Jockey Sonny Workman was riding with all his skill. Gay Monarch finished third, but was disqualified because he swerved into the Dixiana stable's Full Tilt near the finish. The disqualification moved Full Tilt into third place.

Prince Pompey ran the 5½ furlongs in the fast time of 1:05 4-5 and was backed by nearly everybody in the big midweek crowd. He paid $4.96.

Another Chicago victory came in the Shore Acres purse at 6 furlongs when Mrs. William E. Schmidt's 3 year old Fair Image outgamed the favorite, Clear, and won by two lengths, with Old Baldy finishing just ahead of Warren Jr., for third money. Fair Image was a long shot, paying $20.48.

Jockey A. Tipton was the hero of the daily double when he booted Gunfire home in the second race and whipped the well backed Cog Air home in the third. The daily double paid off at $132.04.

In order to provide more parking space for the thousands of motorists who will travel to the Arlington track to see the running of the Classic stakes, officials of the Arlington Jockey club are opening up a wide strip of parking room along the outside of the back stretch. There will be space for hundreds of cars there, and the occupants may reach the grandstand and clubhouse side of the track by walking directly across the infield.

Warren Wright yesterday purchased the contract on the apprentice jockey, F. Springer, from T. McCroan, a California turfman. Springer is fourth on the list of America's riders and with the Wright stable will get a chance to ride many winners.

Gene Tunney, former champion heavyweight boxer, and Mrs. Tunney arrived yesterday to visit A Century of Progress as guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hertz. They also will attend the races at Arlington Park.

MRS. HURD AND MISS BROOKS IN TOURNEY FINAL

Eastern Point, Conn., July 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia and Jane Brooks, Sparkhill, N. Y., will meet tomorrow in the finals of the Shenecossett invitational golf tournament. Mrs. Hurd, twice winner, defeated Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., another double victor in the tournament, 1 up, and if she wins tomorrow will gain permanent possession of the cup.

DONOVAN AND KUMIS BOX AT FRONTON TONIGHT

Roman Meets Gravelle in Other Windup.

Art Donovan will meet Mennen Kumis and Joe Roman is matched with Freddy Gravelle in five round matches. Other contests:

Pete Blanchard vs. Ed Smith [4].
Elnar Hedquist vs. Sammy Adams [4].
Art Hoganson vs. Jack Matthews [4].
Rudy Kay vs. John Holda [wrestling].

Barney Ross, former Golden Gloves featherweight titleholder, now world's lightweight champion, is to coach Frank Mirabal, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE novice Golden Gloves champion, in his match tonight at Ashland arena, Ashland avenue and Addison street. Eight contests will be presented, two between wrestlers.

The 10 round bout between Tommy Loughran and Johnny Risko at Mills stadium was switched to July 26 instead of July 27 yesterday when Billy Cepak, Sparta stadium promoter, cancelled his July 26 date. Georgie Turner, Oklahoma light heavyweight, and Jack Robinson have been matched at four rounds on the Mills stadium card.

Three bouts were arranged yesterday by Johnny Coulon for the opening outdoor show at White City Tuesday. Eddie Chinski and Art Donovan are paired in the six round main event. Curtis Mills meets Jack O'Brien at five rounds and Lou Vine will box Ed Esson at four. There will be three other matches.

Young Geno vs. Johnny Fitzpatrick [6].
Eddie Stiegal vs. Roy Moore [6].
Eddie Evans vs. Vince Perino [4].

The 10 round windup may match Charley Retzlaff with Jack Pallat of Cleveland.

Jackie Purvis, Indianapolis welterweight, last night accepted terms for a fourth meeting with Johnny Phagan of Chicago, at Northwest stadium Wednesday. . . . Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight champion, refuses to answer an offer to face Billy Petrolle in a nontitle bout in Chicago on Sept. 2. The Southtown Sportsmen's Athletic club made the bid 10 days ago.

BREADALL AND BLACK TO PLAY IN FINAL TODAY

St. Louis, Mo., July 13.—(AP)—The finals of the Western Junior Golf tournament tomorrow will be an all-St. Louis event with Frank Breadall, St. Louis district junior titleholder, meeting Jim Black in a 36 hole match.

Breadall won his way to the finals with a 3 and 2 victory over Chester Grosse, Chicago, this afternoon, while Black won from Eddie Hogan, St. Louis, by the same score.

Outdoor Treat Awaits Hiker in Woods, Meadow

BY BOB BECKER.

July, the month for northwoods fishing and canoeing trips and vacations of all kinds, is now at its peak. The Chicagoland outdoors man will find scores of interesting things to see if he drives or hikes through fields, meadows, and woods.

In the fields all the flowering weeds which flourish at this time of the year have reached their full growth. Look especially for the tall, thick bodied mullin which stands in the meadows with a lovely yellow flower at the top of its stalk. In the woods the jack-in-the-pulpit plants can hardly be recognized because the leaves have grown so large and the stalks so tall.

Most of our summer birds have nested and now have their youngsters to look after. Young martins are being put through their flying paces. Some of the swallows still have tiny young ones on the nest while others have left the nest to see the world.

The birds are taking their share of the 1933 fruit crop. Up our way the robins come into the thick honeysuckle shrubs to feast on the small red berries. Cherry trees also are being raided because the robin is now taking his pay for consuming so many noxious insects throughout the summer.

The horned larks fortunately have led their young from the nests, some of which were awfully poor risks from a safety standpoint. This lark probably is better known to golfers than most sport minded fans because the birds insist on nesting on courses.

Sticks had been stuck into the ground to tell golfers to look out for the nest and the young. The adult birds had constructed a grass lined nest in a slight depression, just deep enough so that when the mother bird was on her young she was flush with the surface of the ground.

July finds many bird voices muted. The wrens still bubble over with song and the cardinal whistles morning and evening. But many of our singers will put on no more of the magnificent concerts which are heard in fields and woods during May and June.

3 U. S. GOLFERS IN SEMI-FINALS OF CANADA MEET

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 13.—(AP)—Three players from the United States and one from the Dominion advanced into the semi-final round of the Canadian amateur golf championship tournament at the Shaughnessy Heights club today.

Filling the last four brackets were Frank Dolp of Portland, Ore., Albert [Scotty] Campbell, and Harry Givan of Seattle, Wash., and Ken Black of Vancouver.

Parker in Semi-Finals of New Jersey Tennis

Spring Lake, N. J., July 13.—[Special.]—Frankie Parker of Milwaukee, national clay court tennis champion, led the field in the Spring Lake invitation tournament into the semi-finals here today. Herbert L. Bowman, Francis X. Shields and Berkeley Bell complete the quartet which will play tomorrow.

Parker defeated Albert Law, 6-4, 6-2. Arturo Randin of Cuba was beaten by Shields, 6-1, 6-1; Bell whipped Dr. Eugene McCauliff, 6-4, 6-1, and Bowman took the closest match of the day, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6, from Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J.

NATIONAL SWIM MEET TO START TODAY AT FAIR

More than 100 Aquatic Stars in Four Events.

More than 100 of America's best swimmers will compete in four events of the National A. A. U. swimming, diving and water polo championship meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the north lagoon at A Century of Progress. The program will be completed with final events tomorrow and Sunday afternoon at the same hour. All 8,000 seats erected by A Century of Progress will be free to the public.

Walter Spence of the New York A. C., several times national champion at sprint distances, has a huge task on his hands to win the 100 meter free style swim this afternoon. Three other former national champions and a host of new stars are in the big field of 26 starters which will meet in elimination trials in the morning.

Schwartz in Race.

Al Schwartz of the Illinois A. C., making what may be his final appearance in competition, is one of the stars Spence must beat. Other in the field are Harry Kamienski of the University of Michigan, Ted Wiget of Stanford, Manuella Kalilli, Bob Browne, and Duke Callaghan of the Los Angeles A. C., Jim Gilhula of the Detroit A. C., Everett Flanagan of Miami, Art Highland of Northwestern university and Spence's three teammates from the New York A. C., George Fissler, John Howland and August Harms.

The two Spence brothers, Leonard and Walter, of the New York A. C., might finish one-two this afternoon in the 440 yard breast stroke, but Don Horn of the Northwestern university, national intercollegiate champion, should be a factor in the race. Walter Savell of Yale, Al Glisdorf of Ohio State university, and John Paulsen of the Los Angeles A. C. are other good men in the event.

Degener Leads Divers.

A field of twenty fancy divers will start trials on the low springboard this morning, with the finals scheduled for the afternoon. Dick Degener of the University of Michigan rules the favorite over John Riley of the Los Angeles A. C., Dave Russell of the Penn A. C. of Philadelphia and Marshall Wayne of Miami.

With three teams entered in the playoffs for the national water polo championship, one game will be played each afternoon, each team meeting the other two. The three teams are the Illinois A. C., New York A. C. and the Jewish Peoples' institute of Chicago.

Qualifiers in the first heat of the mile yesterday were Jack Medica, Washington A. C., Seattle, James Christy Jr., University of Michigan, Louis Nagy, New Orleans, unattached, and Bruce Grove, University of Iowa. The two failing to qualify were Mike Lockavitch, Scranton Swimming Association, Scranton, Pa., and Allan McKelvey, Battle Creek, Mich, unattached.

Qualifiers in the second heat were: Ralph Flannagan, Greater Miami A. A.; Tex Robertson, Ann Arbor, Mich., unattached; Gordon Connally, Boston Swimming association; and Edward Faukner, Kansas City, Mo., unattached.

Starting Point Shifted for Yacht Race to Mackinac

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Twenty of Lake Michigan's speediest craft and a stranger from Toronto are ready for the big show of Chicago's yacht racing season—the twenty-sixth annual haul to Mackinac island, the world's longest fresh water race, which will get under way tomorrow afternoon off Belmont harbor. The starting point, originally scheduled for A Century of Progress course off the east Skyride tower, was shifted north because of the expected arrival of Gen. Italo Balbo and his Italian air armada at the Fair grounds.

In addition to the 21 boats which will compete for the two Mackinac trophies, a three cornered free for all race which will include Bluenose, famed Nova Scotia fishing schooner, also will be headed toward Mackinac. The Bluenose, which was chartered yesterday by a group of Chicago sportsmen, will have two fast rivals in Julian Armstrong's Tecumseh and Lyman Dwight's Milwaukee entry, Dorello. The trio will be the first away from the starting line, leaving at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon.

Cruisers Off at 2 o'Clock.

The first group of cruisers will begin the long journey north at 2 p. m. They will be followed by the second portion of the cruising division at 2:30 p. m. The racing class will get away at 3 p. m. The starting line is east by south, a half east of the flag at Belmont harbor.

Skippers in the race are requested by George Catto, chairman of the Chicago Yacht club's race committee, to note the two obstruction marks about 200 yards off the Belmont light, set Wednesday by Harbor Master Henry C. Grebe, to mark a reef at that point.

The stranger in this year's race will be the Chimon, 67 foot schooner flying the burgee of the Royal Canadian Yacht club and entered by Henry K. Hill of Toronto. It will be matched against a score of the fastest boats in these parts, including both of last year's winners. They were Princess, the Q boat owned by Ed Jedzry-Kowski and Carl Kallgren of the Jackson Park Yacht club, and Bagheera, Bob Benedict's schooner, also from Jackson park.

Record Set in 1911.

Princess was home first of the entire fleet last year and won the racing division trophy with a corrected time of 62 hours 19 minutes and 46 seconds. Bagheera's winning time among the cruisers was 61 hours 58 minutes and 54 seconds. The best corrected time on record for the Mackinac race was set by Mavourneen in 1911—53 hours 21 minutes and 51 seconds.

The largest boat in the race will be Sterling Morton's Freedom, with an over all length of 89 feet, four more than that of Milton Knight's Bimesa II. from Toledo. Kenneth C. Brown's Fortune will boast the longest over all in the racing class—55 feet.

Australian, English Cup Teams Divide

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, July 13.—The Davis cup tennis forces of England and Australia were deadlocked with one victory apiece today in the first two singles matches of the European zone finals. The winner of the five match series will meet the United States for the right to challenge France for the cup.

Jack Crawford of Australia, Wimbledon singles champion, rallied from a shaky start to defeat the British ace, Henry W. [Bunny] Austin, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3. Fred Perry, first ranking British player, later evened the count with a smashing triumph over Vivian McGrath, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Crawford Stages Rally.

Crawford was slow to start and in the seventh game of the first set Austin broke the Australian's service for a 5-2 lead. Crawford came back with a service break and counted on his own delivery, but Austin captured the set on his own service.

Austin played a losing game from the start of the second set, however, as Crawford found the form that enabled him to defeat Ellsworth Vines for the Wimbledon title. The veteran Briton was at a loss to solve the Australian's baffling baseline shots, varied with brilliant point winning net sallies. Austin was seldom successful at the net in the face of Crawford's fine control.

Easy Job for Perry.

Perry's defeat of McGrath was quick and easy. The Briton upset his rival for the duration of the match with an opening rush which gave him the first five games.

17 Grid Stars Accept Places on East Eleven

The names of 17 of the 22 players who will play on the east football team against the west coast eleven in the all-star game at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 24 were announced yesterday by Coach Dick Hanley. The Northwestern coach said he expected to have acceptances from the other five in the near future. Coach Howard Jones of Southern California has charge of the west team.

Nine schools are represented on the east team. Minnesota has the largest representation with four players. Northwestern is next with three, while Notre Dame, Ohio State and Purdue each have two players. Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Nebraska are represented by one each.

Tackles—Joe Kurth, Notre Dame; Jack Riley, Northwestern; Marshall Wells, Minnesota.

Ends—Wesley Fesler, Ohio State; Dick Fencl, Northwestern; Brad Robinson, Minnesota.

Center—Lawrence Ely, Nebraska.

GOMEZ BAFFLES BROWNS WHILE YANKS WIN, 12-0

Cut Down Washington's Lead to One Game.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Lefty Gomez let the Browns down with five scattered hits today as the Yankees hopped on Bump Hadley and Hank MacDonald for a 12 to 0 triumph. The victory enabled the second place Yankees to gain a full game on the Senators, who now are only a game to the good.

It was New York's sixth straight win and its third over St. Louis.

The Yanks got five runs off Hadley in the first inning and repeated the onslaught against MacDonald in the fourth. The latter rally was featured by Bill Dickey's ninth home run of the year with two on. Gomez did not permit a St. Louis runner to reach third. Score:

TIGERS BEAT RED SOX, 3-2.

Boston, Mass., July 13.—(AP)—Big Fred Marberry extended his number of victories to 13 today as Detroit, recovering from two straight setbacks at the hands of the Red Sox, scored a 3 to 2 victory.

For the third day in a row the game was decided by a one run margin, and the five runs scored in today's contest were one more than both teams had scored together in the previous two games.

NORTH SIDE GOLF TEAM WINS IN WOMEN'S MEET

North side golfers made 29½ points, south 12½, and west 12 in the Chicago women's intradistrict team matches yesterday at La Grange Country club.

Cubs and Tinning Go Out to Extend Win Streak Today

The Cubs this afternoon will go after their ninth straight victory and at the same time will be working for Bud Tinning to hang up his eighth straight. Mungo will be the Dodgers' choice in the final of the series.

The second guessers, it is observed in some of the public prints, are scrambling aboard Tinning's bandwagon now that he has become something of a north side hero. There even has been some scoffing at the overworked baseball reporters, who in their ardor for accurate reporting, recorded this spring that Bud was much too fat for the kind of service the Cub nabobs had expected of him. The fact remains that Bud WAS fat—fatter by 22 pounds than he now is—and did not win a start until June 15, two months and three days after the opening of the season.

The Boston Braves, who seem to have been slowed up by Pittsburgh after a fine splurge in which they won 12 out of 16, will come to town tomorrow for a hop and skip series. They will play a single game tomorrow, a double header Sunday, and a single game Tuesday.

Even if the Dodgers win today they will go out of town with headaches to face more tough going. They will play the fourth place Pirates in Pittsburgh tomorrow and jump to Brooklyn for Sabbath endeavor with the Pirates in the form of a double header.

Irish Engage in First Drill Aboard Ship

transferred to Egypt with the Royal army corps. Social and athletic life in an Egyptian army depot is confined to whatever activity the soldiers and their families can manufacture within the depot limits.

One of the chief attractions for these fighting Tommies was the intercorps boxing bouts held periodically under the blazing sun of Africa. It was at one of these shows that little Frankie Kerr was matched with an opponent of equal weight and age in one of the preliminaries to the soldiers' contests.

Kerr Wins Handily.

It was a spirited two round contest in which Kerr defeated his man easily. There was much joy in the Kerr family, but Sergt. Kerr was a little apprehensive. Frankie's opponent was the son of the Captain.

The Alexandria victory was a harbinger of Frankie's future success, although, of course, it was not recognized as such at the time. In fact Kerr paid little attention to boxing until six years later. In the meantime, Sergt. Kerr had been transferred back to England and was stationed at Aldershot, an army encampment.

Frankie started to school in the Royal Engineers' and Royal Army Service corps school, maintained for the education of soldiers' children. He immediately became a star member of the Aldershot school's football, hockey, cricket, and swimming teams and ran the hurdles. Despite his size he was the school's outstanding athlete. In 1928 he was awarded the school medal for sportsmanship and all-around athletic ability.

Takes up Boxing.

Five year's ago he began frequenting the school's boxing classes and before many lessons he was matched against school chums. Frankie won only fourteen at the time, but he won his first three fights by knockouts. He won the Army school boy championship late in 1928 and also the school title.

"At this time," he explained, "I weighed only 70 pounds. The weight didn't bother me, though. You see, I was always fighting anyway. I had seven brothers, and sometimes we did not agree. Dad was quite a boxer in the army, and when I won several bouts he gave me some special attention. He made over my style, making me box instead of slug, because I was so slight. What dad was too busy to teach me I learned from Carl Petersen, the Mediterranean fleet champion, and I was soon able to take good care of myself."

The family moved to Belfast after Sergt. Kerr's transfer from Aldershot. Frankie joined the Corrigan Park Boxing club. The Corrigan club matched him immediately with Boy Ward, a well known flyweight. Kerr won the decision and the club promptly sought a bout with Bud Lawlor, the Royal Ulster rifle champion. Kerr defeated the soldier in four rounds.

Strings Tennis Racquets.

When the time came for Frankie to go to work he found employment stringing tennis racquets in a Dublin athletic goods house. This meant the transferring of his club affiliation, and he choose the Arbour club of Dublin in which to do his boxing.

The Arbour trial was severe, but Kerr emerged the logical choice for the Irish team which met Norway in 1932. He won two bouts, finishing up with the Norwegian champion, whom he had down four times.

After his return from Norway he scored victories in the Ulster, the Irish national and the army championship tourneys, winning the flyweight championship in each.

Puts On Weight.

He repeated his victories in these tournaments this year, but several additional pounds made it necessary for him to fight as a bantamweight. An important factor in Kerr's success, his trainer contends, is his willingness to train. Frankie actually likes the training routine.

Kerr has had eighty bouts, not including the Alexandria match, and has won thirty-five of them by knockouts. He has been beaten only four times in four years.

South Side Makes Plans for Irish Boxers' Reception

More than 100 south side sportsmen last night discussed plans for the reception of the Irish amateur boxing team at a meeting in the Del Prado hotel. Patrick W. Barrett, chairman of the south side committee, presided.

In addition to taking part in the parade from Union station to Mayor Kelly's office upon the arrival of the team Thursday the south side committee will sponsor a civic welcome for the boys in Jackson park Monday evening, July 24. The program will be concluded with a street dance. Every one is invited to the reception.

Peter M. Kelly, general chairman of the Irish committee; Judges Matthew Hartigan and D. J. Normoyle, Ald. James Cusack of the Fifth ward, and the heads of community business clubs addressed the gathering.

Pirates Beat Braves, 8 to 3; Get 5 in 8th

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 13.—(AP)—Five Pirate hits, combined with two Boston errors in an eighth inning outbreak, today produced five runs, breaking a 3 to 3 tie and giving Pittsburgh an 8 to 3 victory over the Braves.

Hal Smith held the Braves scoreless for four innings while Pittsburgh piled up a three run lead. In the fifth Boston scored three, deadlocking the score until the Pirate uprising in the eighth blasted Ben Cantwell from the mound. Boston made seven errors, three by Rabbit Maranville.

Schildberg's 73 Low Score in C. D. G. A. Handicap Meet

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Edwin O. Schildberg, an 18 year old youngster from the North Shore club, did some remarkable sharpshooting in the Chicago District Golf association's handicap tournament yesterday at Knollwood. In the field of 82 contestants he was the only one to equal par, his score being 37—36—73.

This earned Schildberg low gross prize in class A. He was a former C. D. G. A. junior champion. Next in order came Henry Hafer of South Shore and John Lehman of Olympia Fields, each with 77. Art Sweet of Ridgemoor, who shot 78, was the only other member to finish under 80. C. L. Cassale of St. Louis, a guest, came in with a card of 76.

Hafer's 77, less a handicap of 6, gave him a net score of 71, which was good for low net in class A.

Over Par Three Times.

In class B Ray Odman took low gross with 41—39—80, while low net honors went to E. V. Barnes of Tam O'Shanter, 82—13—69.

Low gross in class C was won by Robert L. Glanz of Edgewater, 85, and low net by H. A. Bangham of Bunker Hill, 95—23—72.

In shooting his 73 Schildberg went over par three times, but he made up for it with three birdies. On his drive from the third tee the ball came to rest in a divot hole. As a result his second was short and he was forced to take a 5. On the par 4 fifth he also scored a 5. Misjudging the distance to the elevated green, he failed to reach it with his second shot. He made up a stroke on the par 5 ninth by putting his second on the green. That brought him to the turn in 37.

Gets Birdie on Tenth.

Schildberg got a birdie at the tenth by dropping his approach six feet from the pin and sinking the putt. On the 14th he holed a 15 footer for another birdie. He overshot the 15th green and took a 5, one over par, but he shot perfect golf the rest of the way home, scoring 36 on the incoming nine. His card:

Par, out	444	345	345—36

Medalist Loses in First Round of County Golf

Two upsets marked the opening rounds of match play for the Cook county open golf championship at Garfield park yesterday. Frank Hayes of the home club, medalist in the qualifying round, was eliminated by George Quinlan, a clubmate, 1 up, on the 19th hole.

Hayes, one down on the 11th hole, won the 12th with a par 3 to even the match. They halved the next six holes. On the 19th Hayes drove out of bounds while Quinlan sent his shot straight down the fairway, put his second on the green, and was down in two putts to win the hole and the match. Quinlan, county open title holder in 1930, went into the quarterfinals by winning his afternoon match from Al Eisenstein, 2 and 1.

In the other upset, Bobby McLean defeated Robert Ball, open champion in 1929, on the 20th green. McLean later was beaten by Roy Hunter, 3 and 2. Results of yesterday's games:

Tausz Ties Walter in Furrier Golf

Martin Tausz, with 44—40—84, and Fred Walter, 45—39—84, tied for the Central Furriers' association cup in the sixth annual golf tournament at Medinah yesterday. It was ruled by the committee that Walter, who won the trophy last year, should surrender it to Tausz for a period of six months, after which they might flip a coin to decide ownership.

John Belmont, with 34—40—74, received the guests' prize. The second went to Louis Lock, a Lake Geneva professional, who had 42—40—82. Winners of the net prizes were Phil Banchik, 86—16—70; Ed Reinert, 91—19—72; Ed Tiepe, 87—14—73, and Mike Callaghan, 92—19—73.

Ben Roman and Harry Goldsmith tied at 13 for the best score on the short holes. Winners of awards for 13 holes on the putting clock were George Cronin, 40; Sam Mileneach, 41, and Joe Engler, 41.

Leading gross scores:

Jack Belmont	34	40	74
Louis Lock	42	40	82
Martin Tausz	44	40	84

Sox in front in the eighth was started by Haas' single. Kress walked and the bases were filled when Boken, successor to Cronin at short, fumbled Simmons' grounder. Two of the three scored on Appling's single, but neither Dykes nor Haas could produce. Then Kimsey proceeded to get into trouble in the Senators' half on Manush's fifth hit, a single, and a double by Goslin, but no runs scored.

As a matter of precaution the Sox went in for more scoring in the ninth, although Kimsey didn't need the extra margin. Kimsey himself engineered the final run. He singled and went to third on Swanson's double. Kimsey was nailed at the plate on Haas's tap, but Swanson scored when Kress singled. Then McAfee was called to get Simmons for the last out.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Speculative issues resumed leadership of an active bond market after a recent lapse in profit-taking. The old favorites enjoyed their customary demand, while a number of new ones appeared.

Following the lead of stocks, bonds of rubber companies advanced sharply in heavy dealings, notably United States, Goodyear and Goodrich.

Rails Trading Heavy.

Dealings were especially heavy in such issues as Alleghany 5s of 1950, Chesapeake corporation 5s, Rock Island 4½s of 1960, Milwaukee adjustment 5s and the 5s of 1975, International Telephone 5s of 1955, Postal Telegraph 5s, Hudson Coal 5s, International Great Northern adjustment 6s, Nickel Plate refunding 4½s, New York Central debenture 4s, Louisville and Arkansas 5s, New York railways income 6s, Missouri Pacific refunding 5s and convertible 5½s, Seaboard 6s, most of the Frisco bonds and Studebaker 6s.

Higher prices ruled for Nickel Plate and New York Central issues.

High Grade Issues Firm.

High grade industrial, railroad and utility bonds were firm in a quiet market. With the treasury's plans for Aug. 15 financing still a matter of speculation, government bonds moved narrowly around previous closing levels.

German corporate and municipal obligations were strong features of a generally good foreign list. Argentina led South Americans higher.

NEW ISSUE.

Offering is being made today of $4,356,000 state of New Hampshire 3½ per cent bonds by a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. The bonds are due in varying amounts annually July 1 from 1935 to 1949.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed firm: sales, 2,510 bales. July, $2.21B; Oct., $2.18@2.19; Dec., $2.17@2.18. Open market quotations [sixty day basis]: Shanghai steam filature, 78 per cent seriplane, 20-22s, $2.02; Canton double extra "A" 14-16s, $1.55; Japanese special crack double extra, 81 per cent seriplane, 13-15s, $2.45.

Lincoln National Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: Kindly give me information regarding Lincoln National Life Insurance company.—M. W. C.

Answer: Lincoln National Life Insurance company, Fort Wayne, Ind., was established in 1905. It does a large reinsurance business. In the early part of 1933 the company purchased the business of Old Line Insurance company of Lincoln, Neb., and reinsured Northern States Life Insurance company [in receivership].

Insurance in force at the close of 1932 amounted to $824,999,000, compared with $924,289,000 the year before. It amounted to $890,892,000 on Dec. 31, 1930.

Income in 1932 was $23,828,000 and disbursements amounted to $22,565,000. In 1931 income was $26,472,000 and disbursements were $20,133,000.

Net life reserve at the close of 1932 totaled $65,984,000. Other liabilities aggregated $11,740,000. In addition the company set up a reserve of $1,001,000 for contingencies. This is sufficient to account for the difference between market values and book values of securities owned.

Admitted assets totaled $84,725,000. Real estate of $8,241,000 was 10 per cent of assets; mortgage loans were $46,736,000, 55 per cent; collateral loans, $706,000, 1 per cent; policy loans, $17,329,000, 20 per cent; bonds, $2,769,000, 3 per cent [amortized values]; stocks, $1,750,000, 2 per cent [June 30, 1931, values], and cash, $1,795,000, 2 per cent.

Unusual number of suicides and accidental deaths have resulted in an increase in mortality. Whereas 10 or 12 per cent of claims are normally the result of accidental or suicidal death, 28.3 per cent of Lincoln National's claims were of this type in 1932, against 28.7 per cent in 1931 and 26 per cent in 1930. As a result, ratio of actual to expected mortality was 69.3 per cent in 1932, 67.7 per cent in 1931, and 60.9 per cent in 1930.

The management stated that mortgage loans average less than 40 per cent of appraised value of the security and that no one loan exceeds 6-10 of 1 per cent of assets.

The company earned 4.4 per cent on its assets in 1932, against 4.9 per cent in 1931, 5.1 per cent in 1930, and 5.2 per cent in 1929.

U. S. Transfer Tax.

Investors' Guide: I had an occasion to check the transfer tax on stock. The internal revenue department informed me that only one charge of 4 cents a share is collected by the government and that is paid by the transferor. Brokers charge both on a purchase and a sale. Is this just another commission which is exacted?—B. A. F.

Brokers collect the federal transfer tax from only the seller on round lot transactions. The custom has grown up, however, to charge both the buyer and the seller on odd lot transactions.

RESERVE BANKS HOLD 2 BILLIONS FEDERAL BONDS

Holdings Take 91% of Total Credit.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

(Statistics on page 30, column 7.)

With the federal reserve system continuing to pump credit into the federal treasury the holdings of United States government bonds by the 12 federal reserve banks now total more than 2 billion dollars for the first time in history, according to the reserve report released last night.

In the week ended Wednesday, the report shows, the reserve banks bought an additional 12 millions of government bonds, bringing their total holdings to 2 billion 7 million dollars.

Thus, since February there has been an expansion of 200 millions in the holdings of government bonds by the federal reserve banks. In the sense that this represents an artificial forcing of credit it may be regarded as inflationary.

Comprises Bulk of Credit.

Reserve bank holdings of government bonds are now 1 billion 250 million above the amount of such holdings at the beginning of 1932. The lion's share of reserve bank credit is now represented by these loans to the federal treasury. Total outstanding reserve bank credit outstanding is only 2 billions 190 millions. This means that the reserve banks are now extending more than 91 per cent of their total credit to the federal government and about 81-3 per cent to ordinary commercial use.

Brokers' loans in the week ended Wednesday advanced 97 million dollars, the biggest weekly jump in years, according to the reserve report. In the preceding week such loans had mounted 94 millions. The total of 955 millions on Wednesday compares with 345 millions a year ago and 398 millions in March of this year.

Out of Town Loans Rise.

These figures represent loans made by reporting member banks in New York City, both for their own account and for the account of out of town banks. In the week ended Wednesday the increase in the amount of loans made for out of town banks made up 37 millions of the 97 million increase in brokers' loans.

Prevented by the new banking act from receiving interest on demand balances they formerly carried with New York banks, the out of town banks are shunting their excess funds into the stock market.

An indication that the drain on member bank demand deposits due to the prohibition on interest payments has been checked is seen in yesterday's reports on the condition of member banks in New York. Demand deposits of New York member banks increased 46 millions for the week, after several weeks of severe falling off. Chicago member banks, which have not been seriously affected by the interest prohibition, enjoyed a 37 million dollar increase in demand deposits for the week.

Commercial credit continues to expand moderately in Chicago, commercial loans of member banks here expanding 18 million dollars in the week ended Wednesday. In New York, however, commercial loans remained at approximately the level of a week ago.

Total gold reserves of the twelve federal reserve banks combined declined about 3 millions during the week. The amount of federal reserve notes in circulation dropped about 48 millions, due to the decline in the demand for currency which usually occurs in the week following the July 4 holiday. Circulation of "asset" money dropped about 8 millions, the first weekly decline since this kind of money was put out after the bank holiday.

Bank Clearings Are Nearly 1¼ Billion Over Year Ago

Bank clearings for the country last week rose to $5,351,557,000, compared with $4,125,834,000 for the corresponding period last year, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. The gain in New York was 43.4 per cent, with the aggregate for centers outside of New York up 3.2 per cent.

Chain, Mail Order Sales Nearly 7% Above June, '32

New York, July 13.—(AP)—The Standard Statistics company said today that the first 12 important chain store and mail order systems to report June sales had an aggregate gain of nearly 7 per cent over the dollar volume in June, 1932.

Deficit of U. S. $98,132,000 in Eleven Days

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Marked improvement in the federal government's fiscal position during the first eleven days of July over the corresponding period of 1932 was shown by the treasury's financial statement today.

The treasury had a deficit of $98,132,800 on July 11, as compared with $263,130,800 on the corresponding day of 1932. In the current fiscal year's expenditures, figuring the deficit, were included expenditures by the Reconstruction Finance corporation amounting to $8,474,200. Last year similar items were carried separately and not accounted for in the deficit.

Miscellaneous internal revenue, including the beer, tobacco, excise, and stamp taxes, amounted to $52,010,400 for the first eleven days of the present month, approximately the same as in the corresponding period of June and comparing to $11,795,900 from July 1 to 11 last year.

Internal Revenue Higher.

This indicated to officials that miscellaneous internal revenue in July, as in June, would exceed $100,000,000.

A healthy gain was shown in customs receipts, which for the first eleven days of this month were $6,540,400, as compared with $5,062,500 a year ago. Anticipating a further rise in prices of foreign raw materials there has been considerable gain in imports during the last two months, as indicated by the customs receipts.

Income tax payments of $3,162,500 in the first eleven days of July compared with $3,452,400 a year ago, but were not significant since July is not a quarterly payment month.

The treasury showed total receipts during the first eleven days of July of $64,808,800 as compared with $23,776,300 in the corresponding period of 1932. Expenditures of $162,941,700 this year compared with $268,907,100 a year ago.

Veterans' Expense Largest.

Included among the important expenditures so far this month were $9,866,100 for the operation of the government departments, $2,584,000 for public construction expenditures of the treasury, $1,446,600 for rivers and harbors work, $13,751,500 for national defense and $35,784,100 for the veterans' administration.

Under emergency headings the expenditures included $5,926,900 for the federal emergency administration of public works, $5,296 for administration of industrial recovery, $5,300,700 for administration of emergency conservation work and a credit of $5,210 under the agricultural adjustment administration.

The public debt on July 11, 1933, was $22,621,730,000, as compared with $22,538,672,500 at the beginning of the current fiscal year and $19,487,002,409 on July 11, 1932.

DOLLAR HOLDS STEADY; THINK GYRATIONS OVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—The dollar was comparatively stable in the foreign exchange markets today closing at 69.49 cents in terms of French gold as compared with 69.84 cents yesterday.

There was a feeling among traders here that the wild fluctuations which have been witnessed in the dollar prices in the last few weeks may be over for a while. This is based largely on the approach of the period when the dollar is seasonally strong against foreign currencies.

While Washington has steadfastly refused to commit itself on stabilization the action of the market in the last day or two is interpreted as meaning that the administration wanted the dollar to sink far enough to put the pound near its old parity of $4.86 2-3.

The pound closed today at a cable rate of $4.80, less than 7 cents below par, as compared with yesterday final quotation of $4.75. The franc closed 5.63¾ cents, up .0274 cents for the day. Dutch guilders advanced .15 cents to 58 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN BOARD TO TRADE IN HIDES, WOOL

Chicago is the largest hide market in the world and also handles millions of pounds of wool annually. It is proposed to have a speculative market in both of these commodities on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A special committee has been appointed to make investigations and decide on the best methods of starting the new departments. The committee is composed of James A. Prindiville, R. I. Mansfield, Kenneth Templeton, William E. Webbe, and Lewis R. Stern.

Permit Issued to Build $80,000 Catholic Rectory

FORD WILL RIVAL GEN. MOTORS AS DETROIT BANKER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Henry Ford and the General Motors corporation, giant rivals in the automobile business, will be arrayed opposite each other in the Detroit banking world, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, revealed tonight.

At the same time Jones declared that the corporation is willing to make loans to the two closed Detroit banks which would free about 60 million dollars in frozen deposits. The two old banks can never be reorganized and reopened on a 100 per cent basis, he said.

Formation of the new five million dollar Ford bank, which will be arrayed opposite the National bank of Detroit, organized by the General Motors corporation, Walter Chrysler, and the R. F. C., may involve the absorption of some of the assets in the two closed banks.

R. F. C. May Lend $75,000,000.

These assets will be the remainder left over, if the corporation makes new loans to the closed banks. It signified today its willingness to advance 20 or 25 million dollars more to the receiver of the Guardian National bank and 50 millions more to the receiver of the First National bank.

The loans would permit the release of another 20 per cent of their deposits to depositors in the Guardian and of 15 per cent to depositors in the First National.

Formation of the new Ford bank and the possibility that it might take over, in addition to some small closed Detroit banks, some of the assets of the two large closed banks held up today the stock assessment against stockholders in the two old banks. J. F. T. O'Connor, the controller of the currency, stepped in a second time and delayed the assessment until July 31.

Some of Assets Sold.

Some of the assets of the closed banks, the Guardian and First National banks, have already been taken over by the National Bank of Detroit, the institution set up with the assistance of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. What is left may be taken over into the second new bank, it was explained, and this is the reason for again postponing the stock assessment, which would be one of the last steps in liquidating the two defunct banks.

O'Connor, in his statement expressed "regret over what he called the unfair criticism in Detroit papers and particularly the unfair statement of A. J. Groesbeck, who joins in the request for the delay of the assessment."

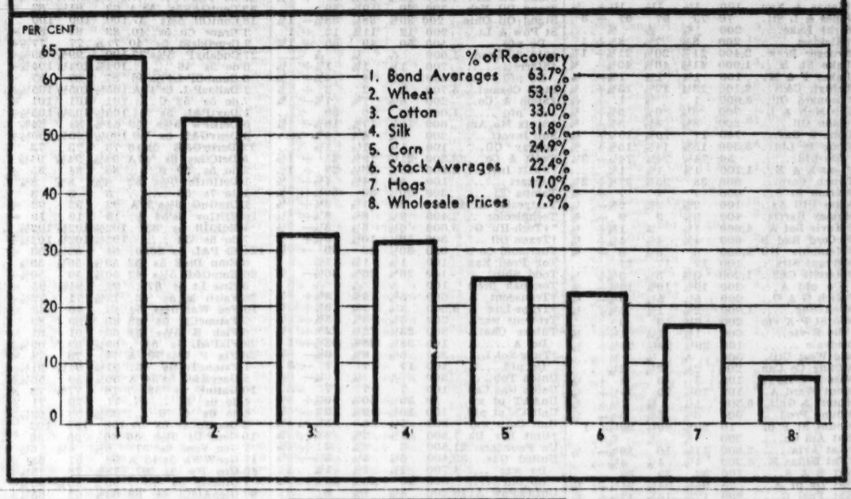
Ford Announces Plans.

Detroit, Mich., July 13.—(AP)—The new bank to be formed by Edsel Ford and his associates will be known as the Manufacturers' National bank, according to a statement tonight. The new bank, it was announced, will take over and assume the deposits in full of the Highland Park State bank, the Peoples Wayne County bank of Highland Park, the Guardian bank of Dearborn, and the Dearborn State bank. Ultimately, it was believed, the new bank will take the place of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

The Manufacturers' National will have a capital of $3,000,000, a surplus of $1,500,000, and undivided profits of $750,000 at the time it opens, the joint statement of the organizers announced. The capital has been assured, the announcement said, but the stock will be available to the public.

As the result of plans for the new bank, Judge Harry B. Keidan earlier in the day adjourned his grand jury investigation into Detroit's banking situation until next Thursday.

Extent of 1929-1933 Decline Which Has Been Recovered to Date



Selling Stocks in Bull Market SameOldStory

"There is," says the sage, "more than one way to skin a cat." Despite the fact that our statesmen in Washington have gone to a lot of trouble to enact a federal securities law to protect amateur speculators and investors against temptation, the present bull market in a lot of ways looks very much like its predecessors. The pattern is the same. First a new stock is offered. Then its sponsors shove it up a peg or two at a time, while their press agent sends out daily "releases" telling about how many men the company is putting back to work, how much new equipment it is ordering, how its sales are expanding, etc. The amount of publicity material sent out by a company varies in inverse proportion to the size of the company. One concern which is out for some kind of a record sent out three "releases" last week and two this week, in each of which the president tells how good his business is.

Financial circles in Chicago were surprised yesterday to see trading in stock of Godchaux Sugars, Inc., on the New York Curb. The principal backing of the company, whose headquarters are in New Orleans, is said to be in Chicago. The stock sold on the curb in its first appearance there at 20. It has been selling over the counter here at from 12 to 14.

The movement to make bank statements more intelligible to persons only casually familiar with financial bookkeeping methods is gaining impetus. The Main State bank, 2654 West North avenue, explains the methods used in valuing its assets, such as bonds, real estate loans, and other holdings. The bank's bond account is carried below the market valuations. Deposits have increased from $73,000 on March 13 to $488,000 at the close of June. Monthly statements will be issued hereafter, L. Shirley Tark, president, said.

The Century club at A Century of Progress is said to be a nightly gathering place for Chicago's financial leaders. Among those seen there frequently are Melvin Traylor of the First National, James Leavell of the Continental Illinois bank and Charles Glore of Field, Glore & Co.

A Chicagoan who recently made a survey of the finances of the leading American universities reports that despite the inroads of the depression the net yield from investments which they hold averages a little better than 4 per cent. Prior to the depression the average yield for their investments was a little better than 5 per cent, it was stated.

"EXPENSIVE LOOKING" PEWTER BECOMES SO; PRICES UP OVER 100%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Influences working toward industrial recovery have added another bit to the household budget.

Pewterware is up nearly 100 per cent in the wholesale price and more than 100 per cent, in many cases, in the cost to the public. This includes vases, pitchers, and hollow ware of all kinds and, of course, those beer mugs which since the historic 7th of last April seemed to appeal to practically everybody as swell bridge prizes because they were so rich looking and so comparatively inexpensive.

The factor in the price rise has been the increase in the cost of tin, which is up about 130 per cent over last year's low. Copper and lead, which are also ingredients of pewter, are up, too. But tin, which comprises about 96 per cent of the alloy known as pewter, has governed the increase.

Pewter manufacturers and dealers here expect the price gain to be permanent and that, if there are further fluctuations in the market, prices will be stabilized at higher levels than they were at during the depression period.

PRICES ADVANCE AT WHOLESALE FOR 13TH WEEK

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Wholesale prices advanced last week for the thirteenth consecutive week, according to the index of the federal bureau of labor statistics.

The index now stands at 67.2, the highest level since January, 1932. The present figure compares with 66.3 on July 1 and 59.6 on March 4, the low level of the depression. The index is based on 784 commodities, weighted according to their importance, with the 1926 average as 100.

The cost of living was 5½ per cent below June, 1932, 2.9 per cent below December, 1932, and 24.6 per cent below the peak year 1929.

I.C.C. Cancels All Recapture Railroad Suits

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Acting under the provisions of the Roosevelt Emergency Railroad law, the interstate commerce commission today dismissed all proceedings relating to recapture of excess railroad earnings.

Repeal by congress of the recapture provisions of the old transportation act which directed the recovery of half of all net rail earnings above 6 per cent on the values of the properties and dismissal of all recapture proceedings, relieves the railroads of possible payments to the government that have been estimated as great as 360 millions.

97 Railroads Affected.

Refunds of $13,500,000 to 97 railroads that complied with recapture orders of the commission at one time or another in the period between 1920, when the recapture provisions became operative, and 1933, and paid excess income to the government, soon will be made by the United States treasury.

The Duluth, Messabe and Western, the largest contributor of excess income, will obtain a refund of more than $6,000,000. The Bessemer and Lake Erie contributed $442,270, and the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern, $55,147.

Contribution of $199,000.

The Chicago and Illinois Midland will obtain a refund on the basis of a contribution of $199,219.

The Illinois Terminal railroad paid $300,000 to the government but this sum was later refunded to the company to enable it to continue construction work.

Grain Board Seats Sell at $14,500, Best in Years

A Board of Trade membership sold yesterday at $14,500, while earlier in the day two were sold at $14,000, the best price in years. At the top price there was a net advance of $2,000 in three days. The only offerings of memberships at the close was at $18,000.

World Selling Rye in Chicago; Prices Break

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Chicago's rye market, looked upon by traders as relatively the highest in the world, is being used for disposal of holdings. Six hundred thousand bushels of Canadian rye has been bought to come to Chicago at a price showing a good profit to the seller. The Cargill company, the largest cash handlers of grain in the northwest, is said to have made the sale on Wednesday. A New York cash handler is said to have sold 600,000 bushels of Argentine rye to go to Albany, N. Y., for storage.

Rye was offered from a number of European markets yesterday in Chicago, with the 15 cent duty paid, at lower prices than the market here. It is an unprecedented situation, and is based largely on expectations of a greatly increased demand from makers of whisky and from millers.

Rye Undersells Wheat Flour.

Rye is cheaper than wheat, and rye flour in the Chicago market yesterday sold at $5.60 to $5.70 for white patent, the highest grade, in 140 pound sacks, as compared with $7.10 to $7.30 for the highest grade of hard spring and hard winter wheat flour. Stocks of rye at leading points of accumulation in the United States are 10,730,000 bushels, with one-third in Chicago.

Rye traders say there is no corner in July rye, as there is only 149,000 bushels of rye contracts open in Chicago and yesterday 1,000 bushels of cash rye was delivered on July sales.

Edward A. Crawford, the New York trader, who has been active in the rye market in Chicago for many months, sent out a statement yesterday that he has not cornered the July rye market, neither was he trying to.

Wheat Traders Nervous.

Wheat traders are showing more nervousness as the price advances, which was reflected in the erratic price movements. A large percentage of local traders are bearish and growing more so as prices advance, while the public, who have been most successful in buying on every break and have taken big profits, are strong believers that the government will use its inflationary powers in a way that will result in a continuance of the upward course of all grain and commodities for some time.

New high prices were reached on wheat futures in Chicago yesterday, the top on July was $1.06¾, while the close was $1.05½, a loss of 1¼ cents; September reached $1.09⅝ and finished 1⅞ below that; ecember, in which the trade is fast enlarging, touched 1.12 at the top and was 2 cents under that price at the last, establishing a net loss of 1 cent for the day. May wheat at $1.15¾ at the high closed 2 cents under that level at $1.13¾ to $1.14.

Corn Finishes Lower.

Heavy buying of corn, credited to eastern interests, rushed the price up sharply early. The rise met a selling movement which resulted in a break of almost 2 cents and a finish of 1 to 1½ cents lower for the day. At the top December was 73¼ and finished at 71 to 71⅛, as against 63¼ for July, the latter losing only 1 cent.

Price on oats was off ⅝ to ⅝ cent for the day, with July 46⅞ and September 47¼ to 47⅝ cents.

Barley futures were ½ to ¾ cents lower.

Chicago Bank Pays Bonus for Indiana City's Bonds

Anderson, Ind., July 13.—[Special.]—An Anderson school bond issue for $165,000, bearing 5 per cent interest, was sold to the Harris Trust and Savings bank of Chicago for a premium of $1,950.

STOCKS GO UP; TRADE HEAVIEST IN THREE YEARS

Early Gains Are Cut; 7,460,000 Shares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—There was plenty of excitement on the New York Stock exchange today. Trading hit the fastest pace since the inflation movement began, the turnover running to around 7,460,000 shares, the heaviest since May 5, 1930, when 8,279,000 shares were traded. The nearest previous approach to the day's activity in the last three years was on April 20 last, when a total of 7,198,000 shares changed hands.

Prices were hurled up to new high levels throughout the list and at their peaks some of the fast movers showed gains of as much as 16 points above yesterday's closing figures. Late afternoon profit taking shaved the margins severely in most instances, however, and the net improvement in most departments did not exceed 1 or 2 points on the average. A few scattered issues managed to emerge 3 or 4 points better on the day.

Trade Outdistances Tickers.

The rush of buying orders kept brokers working overtime. The tickers were behind a good part of the day, the gap at one time amounting to more than nine minutes.

Buying again centered largely in the so-called alcohol stocks, such issues having captured the popular fancy for the time being because of the scope given the imagination on profits to follow the anticipated repeal of prohibition. Many of the issues of this group also have the advantage marketwise of small capitalizations.

Thus, American Commercial Alcohol, which led the rise with a net gain of 11 points on top of the dozen it piled up yesterday, has only 245,583 common shares listed.

Allied companies, such as Commercial Solvents, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Anchor Cap, Crown Cork, Liquid Carbonic, Owens Bottle, and others were turned over in hevay volume and their prices were boosted as much as 5 or 6 points in some directions before realizing cut them down.

Other Groups Boosted.

When the "repeal" group began to tire under their constructive endeavors the bull campaigners turned to other sections, first the rubber group, in which Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone, U. S. Rubber, Kelly, and Lee were tossed about in more or less reckless fashion to the accompaniment of reports that another boost of tire prices is on the way; then to the sugars, the motors, various industrial favorites, and, finally, the utilities.

Most of the chemical stocks rose sharply, although virtually all of them, like the rest of the list, wound up substantially below their best levels of the day. Packing and other food shares came in for profitable attention, the play being especially heavy in Standard Brands.

In the industrial section early advances of 1 to 5 were cut down to around 1 to 2 by American Can, American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Western Union, and U. S. Smelting.

The rails came in for a late afternoon rise, and aviation stocks had a fine time generally.

Stockholders Drop Suits with Settlement.

New York, July 13.—(AP)—Stockholders of the American Tobacco company will have a larger equity in the earnings of that corporation—titan of the industry—as a result of the settlement of suits, announced today, scaling down bonuses and compensation paid to the management.

Under the agreement reached between the company and the shareholders, covering the bonus distribution—most important of the suits—it is provided that in 1933 the company must first show net profits of $13,000,000, instead of approximately $11,000,000, as heretofore, and the officers shall share 10 per cent of earnings in excess of this amount. For succeeding years the minimum net profit before a bonus is paid is progressively raised and the percentage is reduced.

Stock Allotment Rescinded.

The settlement of the suit against the stock allotment plan provides that the issuance of 27,500 shares, including practically all of the shares allotted to the directors, is rescinded.

The termination of the feud, extending over two years, brings to a conclusion one of the most bitterly contested battles ever waged between an outstanding company and an organized group of minority stockholders.

Richard R. Rogers, New York lawyer and substantial stockholder, led the opposition forces. In behalf of the stockholders, Rogers filed the most important suit on which the settlement hinged, and argued it personally before the Supreme court. George W. Hill, head of American Tobacco, fought with equal persistence for the policies which he contended had pushed the company in the forefront of the world's large corporate earners.

Hill Defends Policies.

George W. Hill, president of American Tobacco since the death of his father, Percival S. Hill, in 1925, instituted a generous bonus system as a spur to greater initiative, he said. Under his leadership net earnings during the three depression years, 1930 to 1932, inclusive, were the largest in the company's history.

Hill is one of the highest paid executives. His cash compensation for 1931 consisted of a fixed salary of $168,000 and a cash bonus of at least $850,000, or a total of $1,018,000, it was brought out in the Rogers suit. It was the second consecutive year in which his pay exceeded $1,000,000. For 1930 his fixed salary was $168,000 and his bonus $842,507, a total of $1,010,507. Stock allotments under the company's plan brought his aggregate compensation up to more than $2,200,000 for 1930, the records revealed.

France Reduces Interest; Will Repay British Loan

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, July 13.—Coincident with the announcement today that the French government would repay on Aug. 1 half of the £32,000,000 borrowed in London, though it is not due until Nov. 1, George Bonnet, the minister of France, reduced interest rates on treasury bonds. Interest on bonds of less than a month were reduced from 1¾ per cent to 1 per cent, bonds of one to two months from 2 to 1½ per cent, bonds of two to three months from 2¼ to 2 per cent. For those of longer than three months the rate remains at 2½ per cent.

Spiegel, May, Stern Has 6 Mos. Income of $170,068

Spiegel, May, Stern Company, Inc., Chicago mail order house, reported yesterday a net income of $170,068 for the six months ending June 30, 1933, compared with a net loss of $320,914 for the same period in 1932. Net sales increased 32 per cent in the six months' period, and 100 per cent in June, over net sales in the corresponding periods of 1932.

President of General Tires Says Prices Must Be Raised

New York, July 13.—(AP)—W. O. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber company, today said: "Tire prices will have to be increased as the direct result of President Roosevelt's signing of the textile cotton code. How much or how soon will be up to the industry. We are thoroughly in accord with the fixing of a minimum wage for textile mill labor and the child labor provision."

Royal Typewriter Business Here Largest Since 1927

The Chicago branch of the Royal Typewriter company had the largest amount of business in June of any month since 1927, Paul Jones, manager, stated yesterday. Mr. Jones said that the July business to date is even better than that of June, with no signs of any letup in sight. The Chicago branch has increased employment in all departments, Mr. Jones said.

Silver Up to 40⅛ Cents, Highest Price Since 1930

New York, July 13.—(AP)—Another rush of buyers in silver today sent that metal up to new highs since 1930. Bar silver spurted 1⅞ cents to 40⅛ cents an ounce, while future contracts soared nearly 1½ cents. Today's price for bar silver compares with a low of 24½ cents reached on Jan. 3, last.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Pending word to go ahead under the recovery act, cotton goods sellers are doing comparatively little. New prices are being formulated on higher ranges. Some second hand offerings in the gray goods divisions have been sold readily at ¼ cent under current prices. The demand for worsted dress goods and coatings cannot be supplied due to a scarcity of weaving yarns. Sales of silk goods are very moderate at rising prices. Rayon yarn producers are sold very closely through September. Burlaps were quiet.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was higher today on renewed covering and Wall street buying but after showing net gains of 13 to 15 points prices reacted under realizing with the market closing 1 to 12 points net higher. Lower cotton, lard and grain markets had little influence. Sales, 199 lots, or the largest single day's business in months. Bleachable spot closed 6.55c; July, 6.82c; Sept., 6.88c; Dec., 7.12c; Jan., 7.14c.

ROADS EXTEND TRAFFIC GAINS OVER YEAR AGO

Estimate 558,000 Cars for Week Ended July 8.

Estimates indicate that freight car loadings for the week ended July 8 will total around 558,000 cars. Despite the fact that the July Fourth holiday occurred during that week, loadings were only about 76,000 cars behind those of the preceding week.

A gain of 141,000 cars, or roughly 38.8 per cent, is indicated over the corresponding week of 1932. Loadings for the preceding week—a full period—ran 145,793 cars, or about 29.9 per cent, over the like 1932 week.

Reports from 17 leading railroads show total loadings of 426,191 cars in the week of July 8, compared with 483,537 in the preceding week and with 324,880 in the parallel period of last year.

Milwaukee Earning Interest.

A dispatch from New York yesterday stated that the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific will be able to meet its Aug. 1 debt service requirements from its own resources. As a result of the increase in traffic and improvement in its cash position the Milwaukee's application for a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation will not be pressed, it was stated, although the application has not been formally withdrawn.

On Aug. 1 semi-annual interest of about $2,660,000 is due on the 5 per cent series A mortgage bonds of 1975. A principal installment of $618,000 on series D 5 per cent equipment trust certificates and interest on $4,944,000 of these and on $1,152,000 series B equipment 6s also are payable Aug. 1. Another August payment is interest on a $7,287,000 issue of the Southern Indiana railway, guaranteed by the Milwaukee road.

Pennsylvania Traffic Rises.

W. E. Newcomet, vice president of the Pennsylvania road, with headquarters in Chicago, reports a substantial increase in midweek business into Chicago.

"Passenger traffic into Chicago on the Pennsylvania during recent weekends has been greater than at any time in many years," Mr. Newcomet said, "and now our midweek business is showing a decided pickup."

Mr. Newcomet said that a number of trains are running in sections during the middle of the week.

COTTON CLOSES STEADY TO LOWER AFTER BULGE

Heavy trading with an erratic movement of prices in futures Thursday made an excited and active market. A drop of 10 to 15 points in futures at Chicago in the early trading proved to be the lowest of the day, while there was an advance of 18 to 23 points before midday. A large part of these gains were lost and the finish being practically unchanged to 7 points lower while New York was under greater pressure and lost 13 to 18 points on futures and 15 points on spots, although the latter were 11.40c at the finish. New Orleans was the same, 11.40c after a loss of 10 points and a dip in futures of 3 to 10 points. Galveston was 11.30c and Houston 11.35c.

SLUMP IN HOGS LAID TO FEARS OF LARD MARKET

Statistically the hog market is in a stronger position now than it was a month ago. Supplies are running a little lighter. Cash lard is in demand and almost $1 higher than at the middle of June and 40 per cent higher than at this time in 1932.

Lard Causes Narrow Range.

The rise in lard prices over 1932 levels has caused a narrower range for hogs this summer. Top sales yesterday at $4.85 showed a loss of 25 cents, compared with the corresponding day last year, yet heavy packing sows, the lard type hogs, show gains of 20 to 40 cents compared with the same period last summer.

Eastern buying of hogs held upwell, but local demand lagged, making an unsatisfactory trade from start to finish. Some hogs were held off the market in an effort to halt the break.

Cattle feeders hurried to capitalize on recent price gains in steers and halted the upturn with a run of 8,000 head here yesterday, the largest Thursday run since March, 1932. Considering the pressure of receipts, the market behaved well and gave way only in spots after most of the largest orders had been filled.

Steers Hold Advance.

Bulk of offerings were cleared at prices about in line with the Wednesday advances. Most steers show upturns of 50 to 75 cents for the week. It was one of the sharpest four day advances in some time for cattle. Eastern order buyers and Swift & Co. bought the 1,225 to 1,244 pound steers that topped the market at $7.25. Numerous loads reached $7, while 1,403 pound heavies sold at $7.10.

The bulk of steers cashed within a range of $5.75 to $6.75, with plain thin kinds down to $4.50 to $5.

Lambs lost 25 cents more of the recent gains, closing 75 to $1 lower than a week ago, but prices still are a shade above the low spot of early last week. Best strongweight native lambs were closely sorted at $7.50 to $7.75, with culls at $4.50 to $5, and buck lambs at $6.50 to $6.75.

USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

STUDEBAKER'S SUMMER CLEARANCE

You may have read about used car clearances before, but never anything like this. We are placing on sale all the cars in our big building at 26th and Michigan, and this tremendous selection includes all popular makes and models. Prices have been cut to the bone. You can save as high as 25% to 50% by buying during this event.

BUICK SPORT COUPE. 1931 Big 8, on the long wheelbase, with wire whls., side mounts, driving light, rumble seat, etc. The original tires are still practically new. Motor was driven just enough to be properly broken in. This Buick is a real beauty. Will not remain long at $695.

CADILLAC SEDAN. 1929 7 pass., de luxe model. It was chauffeur driven and thoroughly oiled and greased every 500 miles. Finish has not a mar on it; upholstery is luxurious, and the motor is really 100%. Has wire wheels, side mounts, etc. For today, $595.

CHEVROLET COUPE. 1931 business model with practically new tires and many extras. It's unusually clean throughout and has a sweet running motor. We marked this Chev. at $245.

DODGE SEDAN. 1930 Senior 6 that looks and runs as though it were never driven a mile. The finish, upholstery, tires, and motor are in the original new condition. Considering the high quality of this car, it's the best Dodge buy in Chicago at $245.

HUPMOBILE SEDAN. 1931 de luxe 8 with wire wheels, side mounts, driving light, etc. This Hupp has the orig. factory freshness. The appearance is very smart and the motor has a world of power and pep. Excellent tires. Only $445.

HUDSON 8 SEDAN. 1930 with side mts. and extras galore. Fin. a smart maroon and has attrac. upholstery to match. The motor was carefully gone over in our shop, and now will please you in every respect. Don't miss this at $325.

NASH 8 SPORT COUPE. 1931 de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, rumble seat, etc. Finish glistens like a new dollar and the upholstery has not a worn spot. Motor is smooth and powerful. It's an outstanding Nash value at $425.

OAKLAND 8 SEDAN, 1931. You'll have to look far and wide before you can equal this Oakland at our price. The appearance is very attractive and the performance will please the most exacting buyer. Has many nice inside appointments; extras galore. For quick sale, $395.

PACKARD CONV. COUPE. 1929 de luxe with wire wheels, side mounts, air horns, rumble seat, etc. Owned by a Lake Forest sportsman, who kept it always in the "pink of condition." Now it's the last word for beautiful appearance and it performs like Lindy's plane. $425.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1931 President 8 seven pass. sedan with safety glass throughout. Free wheeling and many extras. It was owned by a Chicago alderman, who gave it the very best of attention. Every detail of the interior, motor, tires and motor appears new. Only $695.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1932 Six that was used as a demonstrator for 6 months and was in storage for the balance of the time. We can truly say this Studebaker will give new car satisfaction. Has advanced free wheeling, safety glass throughout, etc. Spec. priced, $595.
